CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Two airport firemen were killed while bringing a fire under control at a recently-renovated terminal at the Greater Cincinnati Airport here, fire authorities said. The building, which houses airport administration offices and a few airline terminals, was almost deserted at the time. The main terminal was not affected by the 2½-hour blaze. The dead were identified as Donald Phillips, 28, and Thomas Zaferes, 28.

Long Pregnancy

LONDON (AFP) — A British woman gave birth to her first child on Friday the 13th after a record 13-month pregnancy.

Linda Wheatie, 25, and her son, Matthew Jerome, will enter the Guinness Book of Records, since the longest pregnancy previously recorded was one year and 25 days.

"He's been worth waiting for," said happy Mrs. Wheatie said of her newborn son.

New Law to End Strike by Nurses

HALIFAX (CP) — A legislated end to the current strike of 1,000 Nova Scotia nurses appears inevitable.

Weekend talks failed to solve their contract dispute with 15 hospitals in the province and Health Minister William MacEachern said the government will proceed today with a back-to-work bill introduced in the legislature Thursday, the day the strike started.

The nurses, after rallies Sunday night in Halifax and Cape Breton, vowed not to agree voluntarily to binding arbitration saying the government has would be necessary to enforce such a step.

"If the government insists on railroading dictatorial special legislation through the house to break our legal strike, we will, of course, abide by law," said a news release from the Staff Nurses' Associations of Nova Scotia, the strikers' bargaining agent.

"We will not, however, volunteer the loss of our rights as legal bargaining units for our members."

Mr. MacEachern said there were "no results" from the Saturday meeting between representatives of the nurses and a cabinet committee. While the nurses have individual contracts with the hospitals involved, the money to pay them comes to the hospital administrations from the provincial treasury.

The statement from the nurses reiterated their contention that the government is trying to use them as a "whipping boy for use as an example in forthcoming negotiations with other unions."

Their news release included a statement on the state of contract talks.

"Principal proposals in dispute are: maintenance of the present nurses in registered nurses to non-professional nursing staff and to patients, recognition of advanced professional training, portability of benefits, increased differentials for postgraduate and supervisory duties and salaries," the statement said.

"Nova Scotia nurses seek to maintain relativity to the salaries of other nurses in other places. For example, the government's last offer of a $134 increase per month falls substantially short of the $285-per-month increase granted recently to Manitoba nurses.

"Nova Scotia nurses receive a minimum $945 per month; Ontario nurses receive (a minimum) $945.

"In spite of these obvious inequities and admissions by government ministers that 'nurses are underpaid,' the cabinet intends to force this repressive legislation through the house."

Better Education Promised

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — If elected, Ontario Liberals will improve the quality of education, give power back to local municipalities and show fiscal responsibility, says Liberal leader Robert Nixon.

He told about 300 members of the Brampton Liberal Association on Saturday the party must "wrest authority away from bureaucracy and serve the community in a more effective way."

Mr. Nixon said if the Conservatives are re-elected, Ontario will be "regimented from Ottawa to Windsor," adding the government policy of "taking away power of local government" is eroding local traditions.

"A nameless, faceless computer is taking power from municipalities," he said. "After four years of Davis government—and record-breaking deficits—I think it's time for a change. We want a new, stiff broom at Queen's Park."

Public Said Misled On Union Demands

VANCOUVER (CP) — The public has been misled and misinformed on the costs of union wage increases, says Jack Cram, president of the 200,000-member Canadian Union of Public Employees.

He told a convention of the union's British Columbia division Saturday that Beryl Plumptre, food prices review board chairman, Prime Minister Trudeau, Finance Minister John Turner and the news media have misled the public.

He said Mrs. Plumptre's June 5 statement that B.C. food union wage demands were excessive and would contribute to a needless food price increase trend was anti-union propaganda.

Mrs. Plumptre referred specifically to recent demands from grocery store employees. Checkout personnel in B.C. have asked for wage increases to $18,200 from $15,800. Meat cutters want $19,200, up from $16,900.

Mr. Little said a recent review board report, Direct Labor Costs in the Food Processing Industry in Canada, disputes Mrs. Plumptre's statement.

"If Mrs. Plumptre would take the time to read and study the report, she would find that while the food industry increased prices to consumers by an average of 19.5 per cent in the years between 1966 and 1971, labor costs only contributed to 1.9 per cent of that increase," Mr. Little said.

He said food industry workers' average wage increases during the first nine months of 1974 were 13.6 per cent, which was below the national average.

About one-half of food industry workers are organized into unions, he said. In 1974 their average wage was $3.88 an hour, compared with $4.27 for all manufacturing workers.

"That means the food worker makes an average annual salary of $8,174, not a very princely sum when you remember that Mrs. Plumptre makes $40,000 a year and shops in the same supermarket as the worker."

He said government leaders, are casting about for scapegoats rather than tackling inflation honestly and responsibly.

"No union worker for Domtar (in Sarnia, Ontario) enjoyed a 29-per-cent wage increase for the Irish Corp., in Lexington, use mirrors and a computer to distort the distance so that observers instantly get a clearer image of celestial objects.

Visions of Victory Scrapped in Hamilton

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Writer

If it weren't for bad luck, the Belleville MacDonalds would probably have won last at all. At least, that's the way it looked on the weekend when the Macs lost two close games to the Hamilton Westdale Scrappers, at Hamilton's Victoria Park. Then, to add things up, Sunday's scheduled game against Woodstock was rained out.

In the first game of the Ontario Football League twinbill in Hamilton the score changed several times, with the Macs going back and forth. Hamilton started off the scoring in the bottom of the first inning, when the first two batters singled off starter Bob Ebbler, to make it 1-0.

The Macs still weren't on the scoreboard, when, in the bottom of the second frame Dick Booker cranked a homerun 375 feet over the left field fence.

With the score at 3-0 the Belleville squad started their own attack in the third when Carl Boomhower reached base on an error, after Dale Duval had already singled. That set things up for a two run double by Jim Cassidy, which moved to third on an error, and scored, on a sharply hit grounder by Larry Mawhey. That gave Hamilton a 5-2 edge.

The roof fell in in the bottom of the fourth, when pitcher Ted Wallis came in and gave up a single to Scrapper Dick Booker, a single to Doug Forth and another single, this time to Bill Everest. That put Belleville two runs behind and Hamilton scored again in the bottom of the fourth to a Belleville error and a single by Hamilton starter Ed Neadmann.

Scott Reid pitched the final frames of the contest, allowing just one run. The final score, 8-3, with Neadmann getting the win, Ted Wallis taking the loss. The three Belleville pitchers allowed six runs, two to Ebbler, three to Wallis and one to Reid. Wayne Hartgart added a double to the Belleville attack, along with Paul Goodfellow, while Dale Duval singled.

In the second contest Belleville again came close, this time losing by a score of 5-2. Scott Reid, a workhorse Saturday night, pitched the entire game for Belleville. Wally Dick threw for Hamilton.

The Scrappers took an early lead, scoring two runs in the first inning off a walk and Doug Forth second of the three triples during the evening.

They scored again in the third when Frank Lederer singled and Forth collected his third triple. Then Forth scored on a Belleville error to make it 4-0 Hamilton.

The Macs never say die although rang'rin in the fifth game, as Jim Clement singled, was sacrificed, moved to second by Glenn Carleton, and then scored when Larry Mawhey got on base on an error to the Hamilton shortstop.

In the seventh the Macs scored two more runs, as Wayne McTaggart singled and was moved over to third by Carl Boomhower's line drive single. Boomhower then stole second, Doug Dafoe put one up in the air and McTaggart scored. Bruce Lilly, hit a long ball which allowed Boomhower to tag up and score though the ball was caught.

That's as far as the Macs could go, and the final score was 4-3 in the eighth game the Belleville team has lost by one run. The winner was Wally Dick on a 5-hitter, allowing three runs and striking out four batters. The loss went to Scotty Reid, who allowed four runs and five hits and struck out four batters.

The Belleville team did begin to hit, with a double from Peter Hunter and singles from Jim Clement, Wayne McTaggart, Doug Dafoe and Carl Boomhower.

The Macs play next in Belleville, at the Fairgrounds Park this Saturday, beginning at 7.30 p.m., in a twinbill against London.

HAROLD REID

Macs Seek New Coach

As it is with most teams who go on a bad streak where they can't seem to win any games, the Belleville MacDonalds of the Ontario Football League have become a little disconcerted. When a team gets disconcerted moves must be made, to try to straighten things out. As usual, the changes are being made in the front office, the first place people usually look. On Sunday, June 18th in Woodstock the Macs held a mean meeting and made an official announcement. Doug Adams has been moved strictly to General Manager, where he will concentrate on the organization of the team and Harold Reid has been moved from coach to manager, a move MacDonalds hopes will promote some winning results.

As yet no one has been named to replace Reid in the third base hot, though Adams said, "We have some names in mind, but we're not certain yet".

When asked why the moves had been made, Adams replied "We feel Harold will be able to concentrate on the game better from the bench than from the coach's box.

Alex and Betty Ingram took first place honors in the low gross category, with a combined 144. Jim and Jackie Hughe took second place in the net scores, while John and Judy Hall were close behind the Ingrams in the low gross, to take second in that category.

Vern and Gloria Goodwin took top honors at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club's Mr. and Mrs. Tournament on the weekend, coming up with a low net score of 67, to top the field of some 54 couples.

CARL BOOMHOWER

A Flash On Paths

A new face in the MacDonalds lineup of the Ontario Football League is Carl Boomhower, better known to Belleville fans as Boomer. Carl is one of the things the Macs have admitted is needing most, a fast man on the basepaths who can also get his share of hits.

Actually, Boomhower was scheduled to play the year with the Macs, but instead started off with Dennis Mirters of the Quinte Football Club, who was carrying out the lure of major league softball during the summer to come play for the Macs.

Not only can he run, but he also hits every position, and that includes pitcher. He prefers the infield though, because, "it's easier to stay" in the game (meet Carl playing with Corbyn, Rollins and Devwilins of the OFL before coming to the Macs (hitting better than .300 ball every year).

He proved his worth quickly on the weekend when he scored two runs, had a game tying single and stole second base on Sunday. Manager Harold Reid said, "He's a good fast man and a good hitter, he's sure to help us".

With skip Vi Duff (centre) leading the way, this Kingston treble won the right to represent District 15 in the second round of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Playdowns, to be held July 22nd, here in Belleville. The trio, which also includes Alice McLeod, (left), at lead, and Eunice McGill, vice, defeated Belleville's Jesse Hunter treble in the final match of the six team tournament.

Kingston Treble in Tune

A Kingston threesome won the right to represent District 15 in the second round of the Provincial Ladies Lawn Bowling Playdowns at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club yesterday. The treble, skipped by Vi Duff, defeated Belleville's Jesse Hunter trio in the final game by a 13-6 count.

Duff's treble, which includes Eunice McGill as vice, and Alice McLeod as lead, went undefeated in their three matches in the six team tournament to take the win. Hunter's treble picked up two wins before the final game loss to Duff. Members of Hunter's trio are Ann Ridley, lead, and Hazel Masters, vice.

Six teams were represented in the tourney, three from Belleville and three from Kingston. Trenton, which is included in District 15, did not have representation. The Kingston treble now continues to the second round of Play Downs, to be played Sunday, July 22, once again here in Belleville. The winners in that competition earn the right to go to the provincial finals, to be held in London in early August.

All is not lost for Hunter however. As runnerup, she gets to go to the doubles competition, held in Kingston next Sunday. Grace Clapp will accompany Hunter to that competition. Th same routine is followed for selection for the singles competition, to be held on the 24th of this month at the Trenton Lawn Bowling Club.

All winners in the Provincial Playdowns advance to the Canadian Championships, being held this year in Vancouver, in late August.

Garney Adams Proving Stingy

Garney Adams fired his second shutout in a row Saturday in leading Plante's Concrete to a 3-0 win over Read in South Hastings Baseball League action. In the game great, Adams scored six runs in the bottom of the ninth inning in a come-from-behind 7-5 Sunday win over Forbes Merchants.

Adams allowed only three Read hits in picking up the win for Plante's, firing three strikes past 11 batters, walking only two. Larry Coffey was nicked for six hits in taking the loss for Read, fanning six and walking two.

John Tweedy and Warren Hay had a pair of singles each for Plante's, while Larry Adams picked up a double and Steve Moore a single. Gary Farrell, Pat Walsh, and Coffey each singled for Read.

Bob Reid picked up the win for Latta in their comeback, going the full nine frames, giving up four hits. He fanned 11 while issuing four free tickets.

Ron McTaggart went eight and a third innings for Foxboro, before leaving in place of John Masterson. McTaggart struck out six and walked the same number before leaving the mound. Masterson struck out the final two batters.

Rodger Ray swatted a triple and Bob Smith a double to pace the winners, with Barry Ray and Rob Allison each connecting for two singles. Steve Harrison had two safeties for Foxboro.

Minor Baseball Roundup

Yardmen Midgets Take a Pair

Chalk up a pair of Eastern Ontario Baseball Association wins for Belleville Yardmen who got solid pitching Sunday while sweeping a twin bill with Deseronto and Thurlow.

Belleville Broadloom Peewees had their four-game winstreak broken at home Sunday when Trenton Legion topped the local squad 5-4 in an exciting match at Parkdale.

The Trenton team came from behind with a pair of runs in the top of the seventh to up Broadloom.

Winning pitcher Steven Smith went the distance on a four-hitter, fanning nine and walking five. Tony Parks worked the first six and collected Bowmanville offerings.

allowing eight hits, striking out three and walking two. Glenn McGoad closed the door on Trenton in a brief relief stint in the seventh, giving up one hit and retiring one to the third strikes.

Belleville Elliott Motors Tykes joined a split on the weekend, losing 9-2 in Oshawa, and taking a 10-2 win Sunday vincing 26-4 win, Saturday, in Bowmanville.

Robert Boomhower and Robbie Revoy shared the Elliott pitching at home Sunday. Took had a single and a single to defeat while Robert Boomhower each chipped with two singles.

Tykes pitchers Trevor Powell and Robert Boomhower shared the winning team's three base hits while their opponents were chipping 23 safeties off Bowmanville offerings.

Yardmen Close But Not Quite

The Belleville Yardmen, of the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League, came close to the semi-finals of the Oshawa Intermediate Senior Tournament on the weekend before bowing out Sunday. They won two of three games and lost two in the five games they played against the top notch 3275 Oshawa.

In their initial start Saturday morning, the locals bounced Hamilton Pontiacs, 8-2, behind the three-hit pitching of Shirley Gulliver. Gulliver struck out four and walked six in taking the win. Debbie Devinell took the loss for Hamilton.

Gulliver got nine-hit support from her mates, with Joyce McFarlane and Sharon Alexander each coming for a double and single. Donna Preston stroked two singles, while Gulliver added her own centre with a double.

In their second contest, played Saturday afternoon, the Yardmen pounded Oshawa Chrysler by a 15-3 count. Sharon Alexander again paced the Belleville crew at the plate, with a triple and double, while Nancy Birch, Judy Rappel and Carol McFarlane added a pair of singles each.

Sue Morton picked up the win on the Belleville mound, giving up only three hits. She struck out three and walked

The same number.

The Agincourt Senior team defeated the Scarborough Juniors 5-2 in the final game of the 16-team tourney to take the grand championship.

Rich Get Richer In Quinte Fastball

In the top of the third the Junior Jets put a three run rally together a single and two Barden errors produced a run. Ron Howard scored again in the fourth when John Barden lost doubled and came on on Jim Richardson's hard hit single.

In the fifth, Barden stormed back for four runs, on a triple by Mike Weese, Tom Cassidy's single, and an error. To top off the Barden rally, Mike Weese hit a homerun over the field fence. Bobby Jones, Ron Howard and Robert White Gary Kleinsteuber took the mound for Barden, in an effective forum for it and it was Jim Cassidy with a single and a home run over the left field fence. Wayne Woods had a single and a triple, while Dave Gravis and Dwight Rathwell both singled twice.

For Rorabeck, Lyle Lloyd singled twice and Ron Ferguson and Bernie Coughlin both had singles.

President of the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway, Lyle Van Clief, presents the winners' trophy to Neil Proud, of 24 Dunbar St., for his win in the fourth annual Demolition Derby at the Quinte Ex Sunday afternoon. It was the third try for Proud in the event, the first time he has been victorious. His vehicle was the last one left running in the Derby, which lasted about five minutes.

ICKX and Bell Winning Team

LE MANS, France (AP) — Jacky Ickx of Belgium and Derek Bell of Britain around their silver Gulf-Ford to victory Monday in the 1975 Le Mans 24-hour endurance race.

It was the second victory for Ickx in six years and fourth for British manager John Wyer. But it might be the last time spectacular sports cars will appear here.

If organizers go through with plans to run only grand touring cars in 1976, it might sound the death knell for one of the world's great sporting events.

Ickx, 30, and Bell, 33, took the lead from lead-footed Vern Schuppan of Australia and France, after three hours. They never lost it, but a rear-end rattle played havoc with the second half of the race.

"Every time we rounded a right-hand corner there was a thumping sound," Bell said. "There was no way we could repair it. It was in the transmission. We just had to pray it would last."

The second Gulf-Ford had similar problems, cooling trouble by electrical troubles, and had to cede second place to the French Lifier JS2. Ford coupe of Jean-Louis Lafosse and Guy Chasseuil.

Two hours from the finish, Ickx pulled into the pits with a broken exhaust pipe. The repair dragged on as the Lifier moved to within two laps of the leaders. But Bell took the car out with sufficient lead to hold off the Lifier.

Rule changes limited fuel, so the Ford Cosworth engines were run at 8,000 revolutions a minute instead of the usual 10,000 r.p.m., but the cars were only marginally slower.

"This used to be a 24-hour sprint race, a real battle," said Bell. "Now it's a bit like an economy run. I'm really happy we won it though. Le Mans will never be the same again."

L'Enjoleur Mystery Deepens

TORONTO (CP) — L'Enjoleur became even more of a mystery horse after finishing a disappointing fourth Saturday in the $18,910 Toronto Cup Handicap at Woodbine racetrack.

When jockey Jeff Fell asked last year's Canadian horse of the year to overtake Mystery Time moving off the turn into the stretch, nothing happened.

His stride was choppy, especially through the stretch, and Mystery Time stood off a challenge on the inside from Big Destiny to win the race and dim still further L'Enjoleur's hopes in the Queen's Plate later this month.

"I can't figure the son-of-a-gun out," said trainer Yonie Starr.

Made the 3-to-10 favorite in Saturday's race, L'Enjoleur broke sharply from the gate on the Woodbine turf, then let Mystery Time take the lead.

Mystery Time led by as much as three lengths along the backstretch, with L'Enjoleur second, three lengths ahead of the rest of field.

Big Destiny lost to Mystery Time by a nose. Across the Channel was third, half a length back, with L'Enjoleur three lengths behind the winner and only a head in front of Patrick O'Hara.

"I couldn't get his mind on running," said Fell. "I don't know whether it was the grass or what.

French Title To Borg

PARIS (AP) — Bjorn Borg, the 19-year-old Swedish tennis star, trounced Guillermo Vilas of Argentina 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 Sunday and won the French title for the second straight year.

The dynamic young Swede, who lost his Italian crown two weeks ago, was back in top form and made it a one-sided final.

Vilas, Borg's close friend and doubles partner, lost many unforced errors from the net and led only for a brief period in the second set.

The title, traditionally the world's premier clay court crown, was worth $90,000. Vilas earned $15,000.

A crowd of 11,000 watched the match on the centre court of Roland Garros Stadium where the weather was cool, the skies were overcast and a light rain fell during the first set.

The weather was in sharp contrast to the heat and humidity that hung over the stadium from the start of the six-day tournament through Saturday when Chris Evert successfully defended her crown with a 1-6, 6-3, 6-4 triumph over Marina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia.

Miss Evert, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Miss Navratilova, then ranked fourth in the world, teamed Sunday to beat Julie Anthony of Santa Monica, Calif., and Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union, 6-3, 6-2 in the women's doubles final.

Boyer Captures Ontario Open

BARRIE, Ont (CP) — Michel Boyer of Montreal has parlayed a brief construction job into a promising golf career that received a big boost when he walked off with a seven-stroke victory Sunday in the Ontario Open golf championship.

The construction job last fall earned the 26-year-old musser a spend the winter in Florida under the tutoring of Montreal golf professional Roger LeClerc, versus with built Boyer up to become a confident winner after a rookie 1974 season when his best finish was 11th in the Alberta Open.

Lyepsque taught him how to play the game, said Boyer, and once he knew he could play he found the confidence to take the lead from the start and hold on it throughout the 54-hole tournament over the 6,818-yard, par-72 Barrie Country Club course.

But Boyer, despite having just celebrated his 26th birthday on Saturday, seemed to have some natural confidence and a touch of showmanship of his own.

The big crowds that followed him Sunday and the fact he was the leader didn't make him shrivel.

"I like playing with a crowd around me," he said. "Then I play slower because I know they want to see how I am making the shots."

Helping Boyer's confidence throughout the tournament was the fact that at no time did anyone give him a serious threatene for lead.

Tom McGinnis of Memphis, Tenn., was the only one to make any kind of a charge on the final day but Boyer said he wasn't even aware that the American had pulled to within three strokes half way through the round.

Boyer coasted to a two-under-par 70 Sunday to finish with a six-under total of 210, winning the Peter Jackson Cup and $3,900.

McGinnis finished in a tie for second spot with Pat O'Donnell of Windsor, with a total of 217. McGinnis, despite his brier charge that included an eagle three on the par-five 14th hole on the back nine and finished with a 72 while O'Donnell shot a 70.

Defending champion Artie McNickle of Sacramento, Calif., who, like Boyer, was this year by leading from start to finish, finished tied for third at 218 after a final 72. American Greg Pitzer shot a 72 for his 218.

Mike Moalla of Toronto finished as the tournament's top amateur, also coming in at 218 after a final 74. His round of 68 on Saturday were the two best rounds of the tournament.

Miller Warns Leader

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Jenkins held a five-shot lead going into today's 36-hole windup of the $150,000 Philadelphia golf tournament.

But Johnny Miller had a warning for him:

"There's a lot of golf to be played yet," Miller said. "Tom has a big lead. He could blow it right open. But 36 holes is a lot of golf. Anything could happen.

"If I'd been putting decent, just putting average, I'd be where he is now. And my putting is coming around. It's getting better every day."

Mario Andretti Shades Redman in 5000

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — With reigning Formula 1000 champion Brian Redman riding his tail-pipe, Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., won the Canadian section of the enduring race car series Sunday.

Andretti finished about six-tenths of a second ahead of the Englishman.

The duel between the two around 40 laps of Mosport's 2.5-mile road course was the most thrilling part of a speed weekend here and brought the American, a former winner of the Indianapolis 500, home first in 1:06.1 on prize money and the Labatt's Blue trophy.

Redman, still leader in points after the first two races of the series, won $10,000.

The 24 points his second place brought him gives him a total of 60 when added to the 36 he gained by virtue of his win June 1 at Pocono where the opener of the 1975 series was held. He won the championship in 1974.

Warwick Brown of Australia, who races out of California, took third place and $6,000.

The top three drivers all drove Lolas as did more than half the starting field of 18.

It was the first time a Formula 1000 race had ended in a dead heat, a result of a Canadian rule that allows the tie to be broken by the number of laps led.

Andretti led 21 laps and Redman 20 in prize money and the Labatt's Blue trophy.

Redman, still leader in points after the first two races of the series, won $10,000.

The 24 points his second place brought him gives him a total

Experience Pays Off

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — Carol Mann, handling heavy winds that plagued her and other rivals, scored her 20th Ladies Professional Golf Association victory Sunday, taking the $50,000 Medina Open by two shots.

She posted a two-over-par 74 for a 54-hole total of 217, one over par on the Weymouth Valley Country Club course and two strokes ahead of Judy Rankin, who had a closing 71 for 219. Sandra Palmer finished with a 72 for third place at 220.

Jocelyn Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., was tied with three other players—Sandra Haynie, Joyce Kazmierski and Jane Blalock—for 14th place at 225 with a closing round 75 which won her $637.

Sandra Post, the Oakville, Ont., native who now makes her home in Florida, was fan back at 230 with prize money of $310.

IMSA Race to Harwood

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Hurley Harwood of Jacksonville, Fla., won the 100-mile International Motor Sports Association (IMSA) race Saturday at Mosport Park with an average speed of nearly 100 miles an hour.

Haywood's elapsed time for 40 laps around the 2.5-mile track was 59 minutes, 34.16 seconds. He took the checker rod flag in his Porsche Carerra 1.6 seconds ahead of Carl Shafer of Wyoming, Ill., driving an American-built Camaro.

In third place was Toronto mechanic and car dealer Lothar Heimrath driving another Porsche.

The race, one of a series of 14 taking in the U.S. and Mexico and making its first appearance here, was dominated by German-built cars. Of the first 10 cars seven were Porsches.

Haywood, who pocketed $2,500 for the win, trailed Brad Redman of England, 1974 winner of the IMSA series, and Shafer until the 29th lap before taking over top position.

The IMSA race was for sedans—modified compact cars with an emphasis on American production models—but less than six of the 15 cars entered were American.

In other racing action, Don Sobering of Brantford, Ont., won the 30-mile race in the Nova championship series in a Grande with an average speed of more than 95 miles an hour.

For Sobering, 27, it was the first win of the 1975 season in the race for small, single-seat, open-wheeled cars of the Formula 100 class.

In a 50-mile race for vintage sports cars, Dave Leamine of Windsor, Ont., took the flag in a 1957 Maserati with an average speed of about 80 miles an hour.

The performance of Englishman Jackie Oliver.

Oliver had ignition trouble in qualifying and was next to last placed at the back of the starting grid. But in the first six laps he had worked his way well through the field.

Then he blew his right rear tire a half mile from the pits. But with the crowd the flapping about his wheel, he drove to the pits where his crew changed it quickly and he was out on the track again with a loss of only two laps.

When the chequered flag fell, Englishman was in sixth place, two laps behind the leaders.

"I tried everything I knew and couldn't pass him," Redman said of his chase after Andretti.

Andretti had to work hard to keep Redman back. "He was fast there and I just couldn't even breathe" said the Pennsylvanian.

The race was a disappointment for some of the stars. Former Indy winner Al Unser had to cancel out before the start when his crew were unable to replace his engine in time.

Mangual – Hitting Spree

Expos Flexing Their Muscles

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There's an old baseball axiom that good pitching stops good hitting.

San Francisco Giants, wiped out by Montreal Expos in a four-game weekend series, with it applied to them.

"We've had not hitting at all and most of the hits we've gotten are with two outs," manager Wes Westrum said after Sunday's 2-1 and 5-2 losses in a doubleheader.

The Giants have lost five games in a row and six of their last seven, going down quietly to such pitchers as New York Mets' Tom Seaver and Philadelphia Phillies' Steve Carlton. But on Sunday, the Expos started Steve Rogers, 1-4, and Dennis Blair, 3-6, and both improved their records with the help of the bullpen.

"We've been getting good pitching lately, but I think maybe we've also run into some teams that don't swing at the balls too well," said the Expos' Barry Foote, who caught both games of the doubleheader.

Montreal's pitching staff has a 3.01 earned-run average in the last nine games, and the Expos have won seven of them, threatening a burst out of the National League East cellar.

"We're still in last place, but we won't be there long," said reliever Dan Warthen, who saved the first game for Rogers.

Fred Scherman and Don Demola finished the first game for Blair, who was hurt only by Marc Hill's two-run home run in the fifth inning. Pepe Mangual had four of the Expos' 16 hits.

Montreal's pitchers allowed the Giants just six runs in the four-game series. San Francisco has scored more than five runs in just four games this month.

"It all started with the injury to Gary Matthews," Westrum said of the team's hitting problems.

Nate Colbert To Montreal

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Montreal Expos purchased first baseman Nate Colbert from the American League's Detroit Tigers for an undisclosed amount of cash Sunday night.

The National League team also said it was returning to playing status right-handed relief pitcher Dale Murray, who had been on the disabled list with hepatitis since May 12.

To make room for them, the Expos optioned outfielder Rich Coggins and first baseman Hal Breeden to their Memphis farm club in the International League.

Slumping Dodgers

Dark Cloud's Silver Lining

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There was some good news and some bad news Sunday for the slumping Los Angeles Dodgers.

The good news was that relief ace Mike Marshall's staff was "the best it's been since coming back from his injury," according to manager Walter Alston.

The bad news was that Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski walloped a Marshall fast ball into the right-centre field seats with one out in the eighth inning, giving the injury-plagued Phillies a 4-3 win over the injury-plagued Dodgers in a National League baseball game.

In other games Sunday, Cincinnati Reds lost to Chicago Cubs 4-3 after completing an 11-2 triumph suspended by darkness on Saturday, Pittsburgh Pirates downed Atlanta Braves 5-4, New York Mets beat San Diego Padres 8-6, Houston Astros edged St. Louis Cardinals 8-7 and Montreal Expos swept a doubleheader from San Francisco Giants 2-1 and 5-2.

In games Saturday, Los Angeles trapped San Francisco [illegible] burgh edged Atlanta 9-1, Houston blanked St. Louis 9-0, San Diego tripped New York 7-1 and Chicago Cubs skinned Philadelphia 4-2.

Luzinski was the second better to face Marshall, 1-5, and hit his 13th home run of the season, breaking a streak of seven the Dodgers in their fifth straight game. Luzinski's blast was their 34 game-behind Cincinnati in the West Division.

Despite injuries to shortstop Larry Bowa, centre fielder Gary Maddox and third baseman Mike Schmidt, the third-place Phillies have won 14 of their last 14 games and trail Pittsburgh by 3½ games in the National League East.

The Dodgers, on the other hand, have hit the skids after leading the West by 3½ games less than a month ago.

Bill Madlock drove in three Chicago runs with a double and a single after the Reds had completed their 11-3 victory in Saturday's suspended game. Ray Knight's victor for the regularly-scheduled game snapped Chicago's five-game losing streak and ended a four-game winning string by the Reds.

Gaylord A Ranger

Former Mates Spoil Debut

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gaylord Perry made his first start for Texas Rangers on Sunday night and quickly turned himself surrounded by Indians.

Perry was facing his former Cleveland team-mates in his first start since being dealt to Texas. Fans in the American League baseball trade.

Before the 37,071 fans were seated into their seats at Arlington, Tex., the game was all but over. Three successive hits in the first inning, the final one Boog Powell's two-run double, started Cleveland on its way to a 5-1 victory.

In other games Sunday, New York Yankees blanked Chicago White Sox 3-0, Boston Red Sox outlasted Kansas City Royals 8-7, Minnesota Twins beat Baltimore Orioles 5-4 and California Angels split with Milwaukee Brewers, winning 5-2 in 11 innings and losing 7-4.

A game at Detroit between the Tigers and Oakland A's was rained out.

In Saturday's games, Texas edged Cleveland 3-1, Chicago stymied New York 7-2, Boston trounced Kansas City 7-3, Detroit wiped Oakland 3-0, Milwaukee topped California 6-4 and Baltimore blanked Minnesota 7-0.

"I'm tested to beat Gaylord bad," admitted winner Dennis Eckersley, the Indians' rookie. "That was why we here, it's kind of sad."

Cleveland manager Frank Robinson took a different view. Though he said, "We didn't want to just hit my years that anybody else, but I get tired when I read about trades that come back to haunt you."

This trade, Robinson said, reminded him of many ex-Mets who became "anything the ball up."

"That's one of his problems . . . He had been giving up a lot of hoping and a home run a game."

Brand name sport's coat.
You've survived a whole Canadian winter. Do you survive the summer, too. The finest survival fashion this season is our sport's coat—a life-jacket with our brand name on it.
brand name as a seal of approval tag. Look for the label whenever you buy or use a life-jacket and be sure to follow the manufacturer's instructions for how to use and care for your life-jacket. Remember, life-jackets are ok a lot for children too, but no life-jacket can take the place of adult supervision. A life-jacket—adds some fashion for the lazy days of summer.

Problems Are Multiplying for NHL Governors'

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's four-day annual meeting opens today amid an atmosphere of crisis, disappointment and lack of interest.

The Pittsburgh Penguins franchise precipitated the crisis Friday when it was placed in receivership after the United States Internal Revenue Service slapped a $232,000 tax lien on it.

Disappointment emanat from the shelving of 1976-77 expansion plans to bring Denver and Seattle into the NHL fold, and a lack of interest in what was available prompted cancellation of the intra-league draft in which NHL clubs got a crack at talent on 19 rosters of the American and now-defunct Western leagues.

League governors were expected to huddle more than once before formal sessions in try to find solutions to their multiplying problems.

Bright spots on the grim agenda include announcement tonight of the 1974-75 first and second all-star teams and possible clarification of a proposed series of games next winter between NHL teams and club teams of the Soviet Union major leagues.

One draft that may generate some fan interest in the intra-league pick, in which clubs can protect 18 players and lose only one. The draft price is $40,000, with goaltenders and first-year professionals exempt.

General manager Jack Button was named receiver of the Penguins Friday and required to post a $5,000 bond. NHL president Clarence Campbell has said he does not know whether the club will be able to play next season.

He said the matter must be treated on, however, by July 1, the deadline for changes in next season's schedule.

The Penguins owe the league slightly more than $1 million, the amount of a loan made last winter to keep the floundering club afloat. Owner Ted Foster has been trying since last fall to secure an infusion of new money.

Campbell described the Penguins as the new primary headache the league faces, but California seals, perennial problems, are a close second.

Campbell said he hoped the California case will be clarified at the meetings with concummation of the purchase of the team by San Francisco businessman Mel Swig.

"If it is, it will be a transfer of control only," Campbell said. "I expect that management would remain the same and they would be on their way for this year."

Denver and Seattle dropped from NHL consideration, at least for the time being, when prospective franchise holders in both cities failed to meet terms of conditional entry.

Ivan Mullanix, negotiating for the Denver franchise, took his bid to the rival World Hockey Association and then filed an anti-trust suit against the NHL in U.S. District Court. He is seeking almost $1.5 million.

The league faces the prospect of another law suit from Greg Neeld, a defenceman who lost an eye in 1972 while playing for Toronto Maple Leafs of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series. He plans, wearing a special mask, with Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League last season, and is contemplating legal action if he would do until he had talked with Richard O'Connell, executive vice-president and general manager of the Red Sox.

He said he tried to call Red Sox officials at the ball park in Kansas City but did not reach anyone. The Red Sox were playing a four-game weekend series with Kansas City Royals.

Pele A Hit

NEW YORK (AP) — Pele starred as expected in his United States professional soccer debut Sunday.

If his teammates had done the same, New York Cosmos would have won, but it didn't matter. The star was the Brazilian whose multi-million dollar signing last week attracted a world-wide television audience, 300 reporters and a crowd of 21,278.

He gave the assembled crowd what it wanted—a goal and an assist in the second half which gave the Cosmos a 3-2 tie with Dallas Tornado in a North American Soccer League exhibition game.

But more than an exhibition game, it was a display of the talent of Pele, the 34-year-old forward who has averaged nearly a goal for each of his 1,254 career games.

The contest was beamed to Japan, Costa Rica, Mexico, Panama, Puerto Rico and nationally in the U.S. as Pele began a three-year stay by bringing his team-mates back from a 2-0 deficit.

Until Pele set up the tally that brought Cosmos within a goal, the fans had little to cheer about. His teammates appeared thrown off somewhat by their new left wing and his passes frequently were botched by those for whom they were intended.

The Tornado took its lead into the second half on goals by Alkmanot, Mickelson and David Chadwick. Then, at 56:32, Pele set up Mordecai Spingler for New York's first goal and headed in a corner kick 9½ minutes later.

Nykoluk - Headed to Toros?

Baun and Nykoluk Being Considered

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The header says that assistant coach Mike Nykoluk of Philadelphia Flyers, National Hockey League champions, is being considered as head coach of Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

The inquiry said that Nykoluk, 40, was interviewed by Toros officials last week and that he must tell management of the WHA team his decision by Wednesday.

He indicated Sunday night the job was his for the taking.

"They told me to let them know," he said. "I'm not going to say they offered me the job outright because they wouldn't sound too good to the other guy in the picture."

The inquiry identified the other guy as Bobby Baun, a 17-year NHL veteran who had his best years in Toronto with the Maple Leafs. Baun retired three years ago with neck problems.

He was interviewed for the job but was to meet today with Toronto owner John Bassett.

"I would say right now that I think my loyalty still lies with the Flyers," said Nykoluk, who signed a three-year contract with the Flyers after their first Stanley Cup season.

General manager Keith Allen of Philadelphia said no roadblocks would be thrown up to keep him from taking a head coaching job.

"If that's what he wants, then I think he should take it," said Allen. "But I don't think that is the type of position Mike is really looking for."

We realize that in time we will lose him but I would like to see him get a better opportunity."

Ponders Future

BOSTON (AP) — Former American League home run champion Tony Conigliaro, whose baseball career was interrupted by injury, returned home Saturday after being asked by the Red Sox to report to the minor leagues.

Conigliaro, 30, said he would not make any decisions on what

Fell, Clifford Tops in CORK

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Paul Clifford and David Fell of Toronto won the Canadian trials for world championship and CORK 75 held in Kingston during the last two weekends.

Of 10 races held over four days, only the best five counted for both crews. Clifford won two races in light winds during the first weekend and three in medium to heavy winds on the second weekend to win the series with no penalty points.

Colin Park of Vancouver, sailing with his American crew of Bunker Hallet of Michigan won three races and counted two seconds for second place overall.

With the exception of two races, Clifford and Park dominated the series, but third-place John Bieby and Chris Norton from Toronto and fourth-place Jerry Rosss and Phil Wilmot of Montreal consistently finished in the top four.

Jabbar On Block

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Lakers will announce today a National Basketball Association trade sending Kareem Abdul-Jabbar from Milwaukee Bucks to Los Angeles for four players, it was reported late Sunday night.

Ross Porter, a sportscaster for television station KNBC, said he had learned that the Lakers would get the seven-foot, two-inch centre for centre Elmore Smith, guard Brian Winters and the Lakers' top two draft choices in the recent Neil Johnson draft, David Meyers and Junior Bridgeman.

Musso Traded

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League have dealt import running back John Musso to Birmingham, Ala., of the World Football League, Jackie Parker, the Lions' general manager, announced Sunday.

Parker also announced the retirement of import offensive guard Mike Lalford, in a two-year veteran with the Lions.

Musso, 35, went to Birmingham for an undisclosed amount of cash and player considerations.

BELT-O-GLASS

STRONGEST of GLASS BELT CONSTRUCTIONS

- 4 Body Plies of stronger-than-ever Du Pont 66 Nylon instead of the generally-used 2 body-plies on most new cars.
- 2 Glass Belts for extra strength and extra mileage.

Think about it! Six undertread plies instead of the usual 4 plies found in new-car tire 2+2 constructions. That means extras in strength, mileage and safety! The 4 body-plies of Du Pont 66 Nylon actually provide twice the 'Run-Soft', Safe-Warning Time (see the Nevada Desert Test results posted in all our stores). Naturally the 4+2 Glass-Belted construction is costlier to make and is seldom offered for sale elsewhere, let alone at our famous value-packed prices. But your slight extra cost pays off in more tread miles, more gas miles and doubled safety!

Broadway Stages Comeback After Five-year Slide

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway staged an impressive comeback during the 1974-75 season after a five-year slide in revenue, audience size and number of plays.

On the other hand, four shows out of five were losers as usual. The unhappiest angels of all dropped $1 million on a production that didn't even get to town.

At the end of the traditional June - May theatrical contracts, the healthiest sign was a $10-million jump in box-office gross from the previous year's $42.2 million, closely approaching - the $58-million record set in 1968-69.

Most of the upswing appeared attributable to an increase in the number of the productions and to audience growth. The two items generated a 20-per-cent increase in the total number of playing weeks. Ticket prices generally remained at the previous year's scale.

Commercial interests put on 56 productions, seven more than the year before. Nine other evenli were presented by non-profit repertory organizations whose ticket receipts are included in total box-office revenue.

Five years ago, when the slide from the 1968-69 peak began, there were just 40 regular commercial entrants, and activity has hovered thereabouts until the present resurgence.

Observers who had been bewailing the decline in initiative of Broadway impresarios noted that 24 of this year's exhibits were originals. There were only 10 in the previous season, when revivals, rehashes and imports dominated.

For a while, however, made-in-England items appeared about to turn the Great White Way into a West End annex.

A dozen shows, mostly from the National Theatre and the Royal Shakespeare Company—which also did repertory in the Brooklyn Academy of Music—threatened to blitz native effort.

The invasion produced the Tony Award drama Equus and a highly popular Sherlock Holmes. But it also included such hideous mistakes as Flowers and The Rocky Horror Show.

Eleven of the season's arrivals continued after May 31, including nine local products. Among them are such top money-makers as The Wiz, which won seven Tony musical prizes, and the comedy sell-out Same Time, Next Year, which stars Ellen Burstyn, the Oscar and Tony winner.

That popularity doesn't always reflect artistic merit was shown by Edward Albee's Seascape. The philosophic comedy won a Pulitzer Prize after leaving Broadway with a $138,000 deficit on its $190,000 investment. It has been recouping since on the road.

Despite a generally upbeat outlook, many angels got badly singed. Five shows bombed out after single performances.

Four of the 38 commercial offerings that have closed made modest profits; four others, like Seascape, expect to make up deficits on tour and the backers of 25 other arrivals lost $6.75 million. Another million was lost by the musical Miss Moffat, which was withdrawn on pre-Broadway tour after its star, Bette Davis, suffered a back injury.

The current display, however, includes five holdover musicals from prior years that are still piling up dividends. Thirteen other shows ended runs during the season—four at a combined profit of about $1 million; the rest at a total loss of $1.5 million.

There was a significant decline in the off-Broadway area where rising costs cannot readily be absorbed by small-capacity playhouses.

There are signs of strenuous effort to make sure that Times Square vitality won't turn out to be a one-season wonder. The Shubert Organization, chief landlord with 25 theatres, is actively encouraging production with investments and loans. Bookings already indicate a housing jam come autumn.

Instead of the usual summer halt in arrivals, the new season opened June 5 with the premiere of Chicago, a musical starring Owen Verdon, Chita Rivera and Jerry Orbach.

The Negro Ensemble Company planned to transfer The First Breeze of Summer to Broadway June 10. And a new Tennessee Williams play, The Red Devil Battery Sign, is slated to arrive Aug. 8, starring Claire Bloom and Anthony Quinn.

OFFERS CRITICISMS

OXFORD, England (CP) — The Church of England has for years made marriage too easy and divorce too difficult, says the Bishop of Oxford, Right Rev. Kenneth Woollcombe. He told a churchmen's conference that there was inadequate spiritual preparation for those about to be married and for many years the church had been "obsessed" with divorce.

PETS GET FAN MAIL

WASHINGTON (CP) — A bundle of mail arrives daily at the White House for President and Mrs. Gerald Ford's pets, Liberty, a golden retriever, and Shan, a Siamese cat. All letters get a personal reply from the president's 17-year-old daughter, Susan.

REPLICA OF LAUNCH

OXFORD, England (CP) — A boatyard on the River Thames has produced a copy of a 19th-century steam launch that combines traditional design and modern materials. Suitable for private and commercial use, the launch has a 31-foot, single-hull, hull of glass-reinforced plastic. The design is that of a typical Thames launch.

To Your Good Health

Lack of Energy Solution Sought

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write something about fatigue and energy. I'm sure that for thousands of people "energy" exercise and so on. These are signs of oil or electricity, but in the awful dragged-out, weary, heachy feeling that takes all the enjoyment out of life.

How does a human being produce energy anyway? Like one increase a feeling of well-being and energy? Why should a person feel tired all the time when the doctor says there is no apparent cause? What can a person do beyond an adequate medical checkup, a balanced diet, rest, and exercise? Where does the elusive secret lie? Mrs. L.P.

Yours is an ambiguous request. As to your individual problem, many points are missing from your letter—your age, sex, marital status (wife or owed?), family, work, etc.

Physiologically, energy results from the metabolism of the foods we eat, so let's discuss this briefly. You mention a well-balanced diet, rest, exercise and so on. These are fine, but they do not necessarily take into account the many orders that can account for fatigue.

Do your medical check-ups include tests for anemia and thyroid and adrenal function? These can be infectious, toxic, too, can be a common and chronic cause of fatigue. Deficiencies in these a can be diagnosed and treated, and usually successfully.

But let us assume that all of these are normal and you are left are a fit physiological specimen. You still have the "dragged-out", feeling.

This brings us to another important aspect of the problem. It can be very important, for example, how your energy is expended. So we quickly get into the elusive area of the mind, which I would normally prefer to leave in the capable hands of psychologists and psychiatrists.

Is your husband a problem, perhaps a heavy drinker, a philanderer, gambler?

Are there any sexual frustrations? Are you a loner? Worry and fear can be important factors in fatigue, often difficult to separate from physical weariness. Do you mix with friends, take vacations, the phrase, "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy" applies to women, too, and has real meaning in such situations as you describe.

Boredom is a common and potent cause of depression and fatigue. A person doing effort-less but rather unchallenging work can appear as exhausted at the end of a day as someone doing heavy but interesting work.

Do you have plans for your future? Life can be a long dreary treadmill. The very drabness of a goalless existence can cause physical fatigue.

If you find yourself in such a state, you can use yourself to some of the suggestions I've made. Don't may be time to find out why you seem so out of step. Life, with all of its problems should, after all, be a pleasant experience, lived out in health and optimism.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please give me some information on Buerger's exercise for varicose veins. I remembered this once, but you did not explain how it is done.—J.G.

Buerger's exercise consists of raising and lowering the leg. The best way to do it is to place a tire rest (about 8 or 10 inches) at the foot of the bed or couch. A folded-up blanket will do fine.

Lying flat on the bed, raise one foot and the leg on the object for from 10 to 15 seconds. Next lower the leg below the level of the couch for three minutes. Then rest the leg horizontally for about four to five minutes before repeating the cycle. It is recommended that this be done for about a half hour at a time, repeating the cycle and alternating the legs.

Jacoby Pushed Bidding Limits

Just a little and give it one more diamond and one less club and the grand slam would be a cinch.

Oswald: "South also thought about the possibility that zero six would be a trifle too much. Finally, South came to the conclusion that there was no way to investigate and simply jumped to six."

Jim: "The guess was good one. Playing at six, South grew trumps, discarded his small diamond on the queen of hearts and wrapped the slam up with no fanfare at all."

Military Ruling Much of Black Africa

JOHANNESBURG (AP)— Military rule has become a way of life in black Africa. More countries south of the Sahara now have soldier rulers than at any time since the "wind of change" in the early 1960s that brought down colonial flags across Africa.

An army takeover in Chad in April was the latest in a series of more than 30 military revolts in black Africa in the last 15 years.

Personal ambition, tribalism, civilian dictators, political and economic chaos and widespread corruption, breed by acute poverty all have fuelled the unrest that has sparked military intervention. This has rarely been a peaceful transfer of political power in black Africa since Ghana, shedding British rule in 1957, became the first colonial territory to win independence.

Today about 185 million Africans live under direct military or quasi-military rule in 19 African states.

In contrast, only 17 million Africans live in 17 civilian-ruled countries with governments ranging from the Marxist dictatorship of Guinea to the one-party rule of Western-orientated Ivory Coast and the moderate parliamentary democracy of tiny Gambia.

Africa's military regimes all have one common factor: heavy spending to keep the soldiers in the barracks! pacified.

The International Institute of Strategic Studies in Britain says black Africa's military regimes spend more than $1 billion a year on their military forces which total nearly a half-million men under arms.

Oil-rich Nigeria, black Africa's most populous and powerful country, has a defence budget alone of $548 million.

The Nigerian army of 200,000 men is the largest single standing force in black Africa with more men than the combined armies of all of Africa's former military colonizers.

Some experts contend that military governments are not really changed things very much in some countries. West Germany, military officers drive Volkswagens, a West German diplomat said in Lagos, Nigeria's capital. In Nigeria they drive a Mercedes Benz.

But military governments are not necessarily more repressive than many of the governments that were overthrown.

Gen. Idi Amin of Uganda has a reputation of being one of the most notorious military leaders on the continent.

Yet the military governments of Nigeria or even little Togo and Dahomey are viewed as hardly democratic compared with the civilian governments of President Sekou Toure in Guinea.

A military government in Ghana restored civilian rule in 1969 and held elections, won by Prime Minister Kofi Busia.

But in 1972, when economic troubles hit the country, military rule was overthrown while travelling abroad.

A similar attempt to return Dahomey to civilian rule by army officers in 1963 failed four years later.

Rocky Thinks Kennedys Knew About CIA Plots

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller suggested Sunday that the late president John Kennedy and his brother Robert may have known of CIA plots to kill foreign leaders.

Rockefeller raised the possibility as he defended the absence of any details on alleged assassinations in the CIA report prepared by a committee he headed.

He said he had no proof the Kennedy brothers knew of CIA assassination plots. But he said the deaths of the Kennedys and a "real problem of amnesia among those still around" made it impossible for his commission to reach positive conclusions about any White House involvement in CIA assassination plots or attempts.

In response to Rockefeller's statement, two former aides to Robert Kennedy, Frank Wallinky and Frank Mankiewicz, issued a statement saying:

"The White House and Senator Church have both stated flatly there is no evidence that either John or Robert Kennedy were involved in any assassination attempts. Either Rockefeller has not read his own report or he is deliberately lying."

Evidence discovered by Rockefeller's committee concerning allegations of CIA assassination plots was not contained in its report, but was passed on privately to President Ford. Rockefeller said he expects Ford will share it with the Church investigation of the CIA.

Rockefeller said on NBC's Meet the Press that his commission did not pursue the question of CIA assassinations because many of the persons involved have died or others were assassinated themselves.

Asked if some Kennedy leaders involved, Rockefeller said:

"We, as a panel, have no conclusive information but the president of the United States and the attorney general of the United States were both assassinated tragically in this country."

Several former government officials have said the CIA was involved in assassination plots against Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. However, those officials indicated doubts that the Kennedy White House gave specific approval to such plots.

Some Domestic Spying Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the Rockefeller commission's report outlined a number of "plainly unlawful" domestic activities by the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), it also described a variety of circumstances in which domestic spying would be legal and proper.

Per instance, the 300-page report released last week said the CIA's 20-year program of mail surveillance violated laws which forbid the opening of letters.

However, the commission also said that "surveillance operations (examining and copying of envelopes) were legal when carried out in compliance with postal regulations on a limited and selective basis involving matters of national security."

The eight-member commission headed by Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller also suggested domestic mail opening might be allowed in time of war.

The commission's views lack the force of law but instead are findings of fact and recommendations about what the CIA should do in the future.

The commission report criticized the agency for infiltrating domestic dissident organizations to determine whether the groups were planning activities against CIA installations.

However, the report also described as "unobjectionable" which, in the commission's view, would allow the CIA to use such spy techniques as infiltration and surveillance in the United States.

The report leaves the agency broad powers to use spy techniques against "persons presently or formerly affiliated directly" with the agency, directly or indirectly.

When investigating such persons for possible violation of agency security rules, "the use of physical surveillance is not unlawful unless it reaches the point of harassment." Electronic eavesdropping is permissible if the agency has "the written approval of the attorney-general on the basis of a finding that the national security is involved," the report said.

The report said domestic break-ins and the surveillance of reporters suspected of receiving classified information are improper under any circumstances.

Boy Charged With Murder

ORLEANS, Ont. (CP) — A 14-year-old Orleans youth has been charged with non-capital murder under the Juvenile Delinquents Act in the weekend death of eight-year-old Richard Johnston of nearby Queensway.

A provincial police spokesman said Sunday an autopsy has revealed death resulted from asphyxiation.

The youth was arrested Saturday several hours after the boy's body was found along the Ottawa River near the Queensway village recreation centre, about 10 miles east of Ottawa.

The boy was reported missing from his home about 10:30 p.m. Friday and a search was organized.

His body was found at 2 a.m. Saturday floating face down on and half-mile along the river's edge behind the playground where he often played ball.

His bicycle lay on the ground nearby and one of his running shoes was lying about three feet away, members of the search party said.

Shawn Johnston said Richard had his supper at 5:45 p.m. Friday and went out to play with his friends.

About 8 p.m. he was seen briefly by neighbor's children on a side street, but failed to return after nightfall.

Weather Underground Says It Set Bomb

NEW YORK (AP) — A thunderous explosion ripped the facade from the Puerto Rican-based Banco de Ponce early today in mid-Manhattan's Rockefeller Centre. A short time later, a person claiming to represent the Weather Underground said the group was responsible for the blast.

The only injury reported was suffered by the driver of a nearby truck passed by the explosion at the time. Flying glass cut his arm.

The explosion, which went off at 4:41 a.m. EDT, was set in a revolving door of the bank at 59 Rockefeller Plaza.

Windows in the area of the bank were shattered, littering the street with glass.

A woman caller to The Associated Press said the explosion was set in support of "the Puerto Rican cement workers."

It was the seventh time in less than five years that someone claiming to represent the Weather Underground has taken responsibility for a bombing.

The Weather Underground is an offshoot of Students for a Democratic Society, a campus protest group of the 1960s.

The bank damaged in today's blast was hit by an explosion last April 3. A Puerto Rican

Canada Will Study F-16 Plane Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — Government officials say they will take a close look at what has been called the aircraft sale of the century to see if there are any advantages in it for Canada.

They say they must determine whether the financial savings to be gained by joining other countries in buying United States fighter aircraft outweigh the inadequacies of the aircraft. Canada must make a decision this year on a plane to replace, in the 1980s, the three fighters it now is using.

The label "sale of the century" has been given to the decision by Belgium, Denmark, the Netherlands and Norway to purchase 300 United States General Dynamics F-16 fighters for about $2 billion, rather than the Swedish Northrop fighter, French Mirage or Swedish Viggen.

The United States is buying 650 of the F-16s and authorities are talking of a production run that could reach 1,500.

Canadian officials said the F-16 is among the four U.S. and one British-West German-Italian aircraft being considered to replace the CF-101s, CF-104s and eventually the CF-5s now in use.

But on the surface at least the single-engine, single-seat F-16 had fewer qualifications than other aircraft.

Marchand Will Outline New Transport Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — A new policy formally announcing the government's plan to give greater control over transport is to be outlined in the Commons today by Transport Minister Marchand.

It is understood the statement will propose transferring policy-making powers now in the hands of the Canadian transport commission to the transport minister and cabinet.

And it will sketch a broader role for the government in energy and economic transportation, partly through stepped-up subsidies.

The minister's statement will be followed by a debate in the Commons.

The policy, which is expected to be skimpy on detail, is the outcome of more than a year's work by government planners.

The reassessment began unofficially with the Western Economic Opportunities Conference two years ago when the federal government agreed to look at rail freight complaints and proposals by western premiers.

The review got into full swing in March, 1974, after Mr. Marchand told the Commons that transportation was in a mess and he had the power to manage the system.

The thrust of the policy was rushed out for the federal election last summer when the Liberals promised such items as a national passenger corporation to operate passenger trains and some buses, a national rail car leasing agency also was promised to provide backup equipment when railways run short of freight cars in peak demand.

Neither of these is likely to be mentioned specifically by Mr. Marchand today.

Mr. Marchand also has said urban transit will not be touched on in the statement and neither will the famed Crowsnest Pass grain rate. The grain rate, written into law, is half a cent a ton a mile. It is stoutly defended by western politicians and many farm groups although the railways say it is too low.

The policy statement is expected to say the government will build a 20,000-ton ice-breaking cargo vessel for the Arctic and the Great Lakes. It will be a joint venture with private interests.

A major concern of the new policy will be the philosophy of the 1967 National Transportation Act, which freed transport companies from much government control.

The act stressed that transport rates should be governed as much as possible by freedom of prices and competition between different forms of transport.

The aim was to make transport companies pay their own way, helping them to become more efficient and economic and lifting the burden of heavy government subsidies from taxpayers.

The new policy is expected to propose greater control of rates where competition is inadequate and more government subsidies.

Italian Communists Score Heavy Gains

ROME (AP) — The Italian Communist party ran fewer than 600,000 votes behind the Christian Democrats Monday in nationwide local elections, increasing pressure for its admission to the national government for the first time since 1947.

"Italians showed they know that the Communist party is the real bastion of freedom," party secretary Enrico Berlinguer told supporters gathered outside party headquarters.

"The Communist party is indispensable for the salvation and rebirth of the nation," Berlinguer added.

The elections were for 15 of the country's 20 regional legislatures, advisory councils in 86 of the 94 provinces and municipal councils in 6,300 of the 8,000 cities and towns. But the campaign was fought on national issues, and the outcome is certain to produce demands for the dissolution of Parliament and national elections.

The Communists did not call for the resignation of Christian Democratic Premier Aldo Moro and his minority cabinet and sources say they will concentrate instead on solidifying their new power in the local governments.

Although Berlinguer has abandoned open criticism of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and its bases in Italy, the election result is certain to send shock waves through the White House and the state department. Washington's concern over growing Communist strength in both Italy and Portugal has been apparent.

President Ford and State Secretary Henry Kissinger visited Rome two weeks ago in an attempt to strengthen NATO's ties with Italy. The Communists accused them of trying to aid the Christian Democrats in the election.

Final returns gave the Communists 19,146,135 votes, or 33.4 per cent of the total, compared with 27.9 per cent in the last regional elections five years ago.

The Vatican-backed Christian Democrats, Italy's dominant political party since the Second World War, collected 10,707,082 votes, or 35.3 per cent, down 3.3 percentage points from 1970.

The Communists replaced the Christian Democrats as the No. 1 party in Rome, and also ran first in Milan, the hub of industrial northern Italy, and Turin, the country's automobile capital. They maintained their dominance in Bologna and Florence and added Genoa and the Ligurian region in Umbria, Tuscany and Emilia.

The acute economic crisis was the chief campaign issue.

U.S. Given Deadline To End Arms Embargo

ANKARA (AP) — Turkey apparently stalled again in the four month old American embargo on arms aid with a demand today that the United States begin negotiations within 30 days on the status of U.S. bases in Turkey.

"It seems is not taken to initiate the talks," the 20 U.S. military installations in Turkey will be subjected "to a new situation," said a note delivered to the U.S. embassy. There was no elaboration.

Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil said Turkey has waited for vain for reversal of the American decision, which is both unjust and wrong in all its aspects."

"It was finally imperative for Turkey to consider retaliatory action as our hopes were upset by a growing anti-Turkish attitude."

Sources report that Turkey's National Security Council has drawn up a timetable for the withdrawal of U.S. forces.

The council announced Monday night it has given Premier Suleyman Demirel a package of "proposals containing measures to be implemented against U.S. interests in Turkey."

Quebec Given 1968 Warning On Bad Meat

MONTREAL (CP) — A former high-ranking official of the Quebec agriculture department testified Monday he warned the Quebec government in 1968 that illegal trade in dead animals had been going on for at least four years.

Dr. Marc L'Heureux told the Malouf Commission investigating inquiry into organized crime he made the warning in a report submitted that year to the department's head of regional coordination for Montreal North, a position he held from 1964 until his retirement in 1971.

The report urged greater force and stricter regulations to prevent meat from dead and sick animals from being sold to the public, Dr. L'Heureux said.

He said he was told the provincial government took once the report was received in March, 1968, he replied: "None, to my knowledge."

Planners Give Approval To Harbor Condominium

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's subordinate planning advisory committee Monday gave qualified approval to a proposed 19-storey condominium building for the city's harbourfront.

The committee met with legal representatives to discuss the revisions — the major one being the addition of three floors from the original nine.

In total, the building will house 108 units and will provide 114 resident parking spaces and approximately 40 guest parking spots. The project will be located at the foot of south Front St.

Members of the committee were confused by a hand-revised drawing of the project and said their recommendation to council that the project be approved hinged on the fact that "before any approval developers must submit a more detailed site plan for council consideration," said chairman Ald. Joe Cox.

The committee was particularly concerned about access in and from the parking areas and how people will actually get into the building. Routes were not clearly marked on the drawings.

"With greatest respect surely to God the plan should show how to get into the building," said Ald. Ben Corke.

Wolfram Taussedlfreund representing the developers, said he would attempt to have revised site plans complete in time for council's next meeting June 23.

He declined to give the identity of the new owners of the project and said that until the company building the project has been legally incorporated, "the new owners will remain confidential."

Need to Tell Public Nuclear Facts Stressed

OTTAWA (CP) — The nuclear industry must devote more time to educating the public if it is to head off needless delays caused by environmental groups, the president of the Canadian Nuclear Association said Monday.

Speaking at the association's annual meeting, J. M. Douglas of Galt, Ont., said the nuclear programs of some countries had been set back by misinformation provided by some environmental groups.

The association members must guard against a similar occurrence in Canada, providing factual information to ensure "other, inaccurate information does not enter a vacuum which may otherwise exist."

Morgentaler Has Heart Attack After Confinement in Solitary

GRANBY, Que. (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler, taken to hospital Monday after apparently suffering from a heart attack, was in "fairly good" condition today, a hospital spokesman said.

The doctor's wife said Monday he was taken to Shefford General Hospital following recurrence of heart trouble after allegedly arguing with guards at the nearby Waterloo Rehabilitation Center, three hours after he was taken naked and by force to solitary confinement.

Mrs. Morgentaler said she talked with her husband at the hospital where he was taken early Monday. Dr. Morgentaler is currently serving an 18 month sentence for performing an illegal abortion.

She said at least six guards late Sunday night "went into his room, where 14 other prisoners slept, and asked my husband to strip."

The guards would not tell Dr. Morgentaler why they wanted him to strip, she said. "So he stripped and threw his underwear in one of the guards' faces because he was so enraged."

He said he was then taken naked and by force to solitary confinement, Mrs. Morgentaler said.

The 53-year-old doctor complained of stomach, chest and arm pains and guards sent another doctor to see him. He was taken to the intensive care unit of the hospital and given oxygen and morphine, his wife said.

"This condition obviously has something to do with stress," Mrs. Morgentaler said. "It could have been brought on partly by the pressure of the trial."

The doctor suffered similar pains and was taken to hospital briefly during his second trial in which he was acquitted by a jury for performing an illegal abortion.

James McGillis, a fellow prisoner at the Parthenais detention centre in Montreal, where the doctor was detained during his trial, said Dr. Morgentaler was taken to hospital on five days last week, but was refused.

Epileptic Said Kicked

TORONTO (CP) — George Switzer, a prisoner who has accused a guard of brutality, told the Archer commission Monday that he was kicked as he collapsed into an epileptic seizure at the Toronto jail.

Mr. Switzer testified that he has a Grade 1 education and said guard Glenn Bennett laughed at him for signing a request form with an X.

He told the hearing he got angry and threw a cup, missing Mr. Bennett, and then sat down to watch television. He testified the guard picked him up by the pyjama bottoms and kicked him.

Sadat Praises Ford, Urges PLO Government

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Anwar Sadat praised President Ford today and urged the Palestine guerilla movement to form a provisional government, so the U.S. government could deal with it.

The Egyptian president, who met Ford two weeks ago in Salzburg, Austria, said in an interview with the Beirut newspaper An Nahar:

"We were told on several occasions that the United States could not possibly hold contacts with a revolutionary movement, as a matter of principle. But Washington could initiate contacts with a provisional government.

A provisional Palestinian government would facilitate the Arabs' quest for a settlement with Israel through American mediatmaking and assistance, Sadat said.

He said Ford was "a man of straight-forwardness, stability and candor."

"We are sick of the cowboy politics of Harmer President Johnson, but Ford was frank and open and I can say the man wants a settlement for the problem, in fact he is determined."

Hastings Educators Concerned With Training for Talented

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

There may be as many as 1,000 gifted and talented children in Hastings County and a group of educators here is wondering if these children's needs are now being met.

The educational task force Alternatives in Education met Monday night at the Ann St. Education Centre to explore the estimated four per cent of the student population who can be classified as gifted or talented.

Most members of the committee agreed there are programs in which to deal with the academically gifted but some showed concern in the area of talents, because they are not as detectable.

Since the First World War, testing has tended to concentrate on the academic gifts. As a result the gifted individual has been identified exclusively as one who does well in purely academic pursuits.

There is a growing awareness among educators now that there are other types of talents, including special gifts in the fields of human relations, creative and performing arts, and the management of practical affairs.

Belleville trustee Richard Williams, a teacher at Loyalist College, outlined the problems facing gifted and talented students.

Mr. Williams said the educational system has tended to deal with these students by either celebrating them or segregating them with enrichment programs. All these methods have produced controversy over the years.

Today's gifted or talented student, because of the personalized schedules, has to rely on teachers for help in developing their particular gifts or talents. Members of the committee felt people from the community could also play a role in the education of the gifted.

After the meeting Mr. Williams said that no matter "how we feel about the education of the gifted and the talented it is a segment of the population we can't ignore".

Some suggestions for these programs promote elitist groups and that these students would achieve regardless of the type of education.

Ame ican studies reveal that three per cent of a population will have academic gifts while between 5 and 10 per cent have one particular talent.

The task force, which has already launched and supported new programs, will attempt to investigate the problems of the gifted and talented next fall.

Council Still Skeptical On Subdivision Proposal

MARMORA — A Toronto man was advised by Marmora and Lake Townships Council at their June meeting to get the approval of the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit as the first step in development of a subdivision on Marble Point Rd.

Melvin Kline reported his company had purchased the land known as Grove Lake Estates from Terry Coughlin and needed council's approval to proceed with building temporary roads into the back lots, with the idea the roads would be brought up to municipal standards within 18 months.

Mr. Kline offered to give the municipality ownership of two or three lots or put up a performance bond as proof of his company's good faith.

Reeve Richie Wells and Deputy-reeve John Wilkes detailed for Mr. Kline some of the problems connected with the area which has prevented development before and of the [illegible] that went bankrupt and folded leaving money owing to several local companies.

He was advised that he couldn't count on Marmora Village supplying water as the pumping station is nearing its capacity and doubts will be that depth of rock could be costly with no guarantee of good water.

Many of the proposed lots are as acre in size while some are about three acres. Mr. Kline said he admitted he might have to go to larger lots in order to get the authorities' approval on septic systems.

Reeve Wells said the municipality would prefer to see larger building lots and permanent homes instead of the prefab homes Mr. Kline has in mind.

Council declined to make any commitment until Mr. Kline has the approval of the health unit. "I hope you haven't very much money in that property" Mr. Wilkes commented to Mr. Kline.

CONSERVE ENERGY
How to use less electricity and stay just as cool
1 Make sure there are no gaps around your air-conditioner. Even a small crack means loss of cool air.
2 Clean or replace the filters regularly, as advised by the manufacturer.
3 Help the air-conditioner by keeping drapes drawn when sun shines into the room.
4 Washing, drying and ironing all heat up the house. Try to do them during the cooler times of the day.
5 Avoid operating the air-conditioner for extended periods with the thermostat in the "constant run" or "maximum" position.
6 If you leave the house for part of the day, set the control at "low". If you turn it off, you'll probably use more electricity cooling the room when you return.
7 Turn off any lights you longer need.

Don't Bargain with Convicts Most Agree

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Events last week in a British Columbia prison where three convicts held 15 hostages for 41 hours at knifepoint resulted in the death of 23-year-old Mary Steinhauser, a prison social worker.

The three men, all in prison for life, demanded a plane be made available to fly them out of the country in exchange for the hostages. Negotiations with federal government cabinet ministers, among them Solicitor General Warren Allmand, ended prematurely with a shooting end to captivity of the hostages.

People in downtown Trenton were asked if the federal government should have given in immediately to the demands of the convicts, and thereby, possibly saved the life of the prison social worker. Their reactions:

HAROLD CAMP

Speaking with an English accent, Harold Camp of Trenton, said the situation should have been left to the provincial government to deal with.

Bellcitor General Allmand "could have handled it better" than he did, said Mr. Camp. It was a problem in the west and the east (of Canada) should have stayed out of it.

RICK TOLBART

Trenton High School student Rick Tolbart, 15, said Ottawa should not consider releasing prisoners holding hostages.

"I don't want people like that walking the streets anywhere at all."

LYLE LARABY

Trenton resident Lyle Laraby, 48, was not in favor of releasing the convicts, feeling strongly that they should get what they "deserved" and not be allowed to go free.

Advocating capital punishment, he said, "They should get what they're asking for."

"If I got in trouble, I wouldn't expect mercy because I asked for it," he said.

GERTRUDE KOEKSTRA

"Definitely not," said Gertrude Koekstra of Brighton. "If they (Ottawa officials) start with that, there'll be no end to it."

She said she didn't feel it was "right" for any other country to have to accept criminals, just as it wasn't good for us to accept them from another country. "Why should we have criminals from another country," she asked rhetorically.

STEVE GWYNNE

Steve Gwynne, 16, also a student at Trenton High School, agreed with his friend Rick and added that the prisoners "should be dealt with severely."

"There should be more security. Maybe some of the guards didn't do their jobs," the youth speculated.

JACKIE BEATON

At CFB Trenton for two-months training, Thunder Bay resident Jackie Beaton said she felt the government shouldn't consider letting prisoners free, "because if they did it once, other people would try it."

"Not few people would get hurt now, but it's better that now, than a lot more later," she said. She did have a word of criticism however, saying that the government shouldn't have "waited around".

Town Hall Clock Needs Repairs

TRENTON — The town hall clock, one of Trenton's poorest timekeepers, may soon be repaired and its four faces tell the right time, simultaneously.

Trenton council decided Monday the clock will be repaired, at a total cost of $3,500, if the town parking authority agrees to help defray the cost.

Clerk Ashlie Sharp said Monday the parking authority has discussed the problem and may provide some funds.

Mayor Bob Patrick indicated that if the town can financially afford repairs, the clock will be fixed.

"Everyone looks at the clock and we keep hearing it never keeps time properly," he said.

The town hall clock tower, containing four faces, sits atop a tower once part of the post office on Dundas St. West.

REAL ESTATE:

THAT BEAUTIFUL LEVERAGE

Ed. McKinney
Realty Ltd.
J. E. McKinney

One of the great advantages in real estate investment is that wonderful world called leverage, in its simplest terms it means using someone else's money to vastly increase your profit potential.

Real state has traditionally been very good security for loans. This means that real estate can be acquired with a smaller percentage of cash outlay than most other investments.

Leverage arises because ALL of the income and ALL of the appreciation in property value belongs to the property holder regardless of the amount of the loan.

To illustrate, assume a $100,000 property was purchased for only $10,000 cash and a $90,000 mortgage loan. Five years later, the same property is sold for $150,000 (a 50% gain in value). After paying off the $90,000 mortgage, the investor would realize, not a 50% gain, but rather a 500% gain on his actual cash investment because he only invested $10,000 not $100,000 for the property.

BLOOMFIELD — A report on curriculum development and a suggested curriculum development program in Prince Edward County schools was heard Monday night by Prince Edward school trustees.

Divided into three segments, the report was presented by Keith Barnett, principal of Wellington Consolidated School, Eugene Bright, Kente School principal and Dan Rainey, principal of Pinecrest School in Bloomfield.

Mr. Barnett outlined the sequence in curriculum development in primary and junior divisions and noted consideration by principals of realistic curriculum development in Prince Edward County.

A steering committee has been appointed for 1975-76 and Monday's report to the board was the second this spring.

In June and again in September staff orientation sessions will be held.

"There has been considerable work to date in setting up the frame-work for curriculum development in Prince Edward County," observed Mr. Barnett.

Eugene Bright of Kente School explained the sequence of curriculum development in the schools.

He said general school goals must be established first and later specific goals.

A general goal might be to provide the best academic program for every student in the school, while a specific goal could be learning to add, subtract and multiply efficiently.

These goals should be set by October, 1975, and later in the fall planning of learning experiences will begin.

The latter will be achieved in accordance with the needs of the students, resource personnel and resource material.

Evaluation of the extent of learning and the revision of curriculum development of support materials and coordination of the curriculum were described as a continuous process.

Mr. Rainey told trustees a brief has been submitted to the ministry of education seeking a grant of approximately $4,000 for the project.

He described curriculum development as "a really exciting piece of work and rather meaningful".

Mr. Barnett explained the program is a more basic approach than was used formerly. Through the new system achievements are stated and the activities of county schools are drawn into sharper focus.

Trustees agreed to a request from the program's steering committee to change plans for a professional development day in September. Instead of a county-wide professional development day, a total of six days will be divided among all Prince Edward schools.

What is signal to noise ratio?

The ratio, expressed in dB, between a 400 CPS fully modulated signal and the noise component. 60 dB means that the signal is 1000 times stronger than the noise. The higher the value, the better. 50 dB is about minimum requirement for Hi-Fi. . .

India Could Sink Into Chaos if Mrs. Gandhi, in Trouble with the Law, Resigns

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The Arabs call it "bakshesh." In Mexico, it is mordida or "the bite" and to the Jamaicans it's dash.

Whatever the language and whatever the country, there is always a colloquial expression for graft and corruption.

The Third World is rampant with them. Millions of dollars, perhaps tens of millions, have been dished out in various ways in which governments, government officials and individuals seeking favors either accept bribes or pay off.

As far as I know, no proper study has been made of the funds siphoned off through corruption from aid. It would be possible to gather data from so many new nations and their elites.

And now the most spectacular association of any senior official in the Third World with corruption, is the guilty charge against India's Prime Minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, of corrupt election practices during the 1971 national election that rocked the country.

At that time, she defeated Rak Narain, leader of the opposing Indian Socialist Party by about 100,000 votes.

The charge bars her from public office, including the prime ministership for the next six years and was upheld in the Allahabad High Court in the State of Uttar Pradesh where she has run for office since first elected in 1966.

This means she should resign as prime minister of India and face the charges against her. As you might imagine, Socialist Opposition leader Narain is demanding she do this immediately.

And as you might also imagine, she has promised her time being in any case, to do so.

Whatever now happens to the formidable Prime Minister Gandhi, her future does not look bright if she does not look bright if she does not have expected legal procedures in a country which, unlike many officials have tried to suborne it.

Perhaps because India is such a huge nation, a sub-continent in effect and extremely difficult to govern without making payoffs, it is awash with corrupt practices.

In fact, almost the whole of South Asia is not much more immune rule, is the same. The nasty machinate of law had it was in South Vietnam before the fall of Saigon; lingers in this country which harbors two of former President Thieu's senior generals who have world-wide reputations for corrupt practices.

The Philippines like India, is also a country with government which President Marcos, himself not entirely free of taking payoffs, is trying to eradicate.

The same is true of the nations of Latin America, Africa and the Middle East. Even where officials high and low are on the take.

But India is critical not only because of the importance of whether democracy survives or work in a vast and in many places backward Asian country but because of the role of Mrs. Gandhi as a leader.

Remove her now, in spite of her arrogant pretensions which helped bring about the shocking 1971 war with Pakistan and put India into the nuclear weapons club, and India could sink into civil war and chaos.

Her country remains a seething cauldron of conflicting races, creeds and languages, who are constantly at war with each other.

Hundreds have been killed in public riots over language rights, even since she took office. Mrs. Gandhi, a devout Hindu, is nevertheless deeply committed to India as a secular state.

If she goes and secularism fails, India remains a huge nation in deep crisis.

Mrs. Gandhi's dilemma is also that of her nation.

Threat of Violence

Violence, its origins in permissiveness, unemployment, racism and other perplexities, is becoming more visible in Canada.

From the gun play at a school in Brampton to the death of a woman hostage at a prison in British Columbia, and countless other individual and group assaults on the ideals of law and order, we come now to a trouble-making cult in New York, reportedly an increasing menace in Toronto too, called the Rastafarians.

The Rastafarians have been described in a Globe and Mail study as being a Jamaican sect who believe they are Ethiopians whose ancestors were sold into slavery when Jamaica was colonized. They wear their hair in long ringlets or plaits called dreadlocks and from all accounts are bad news.

The headline of The Globe's copyright front-page story describes them as a "bizarre cult" suspected of violent crimes in Metro. Headlines on other stories describe them as "the most violent crime group" in New York, "basically anarchists" and "walking time bombs."

According to the Toronto newspaper, few of them can read or write or have any skilled training. Thus, few are employed. A United States federal law enforcement agency report says they have "no regard for property, life, and least of all, the law."

The story also outlines the cult's Mafia-style mode of operation, involving threats against relatives in Jamaica in the case, for example, of a woman in New York who refused at first to raise the rent she charged in connection with a policeman's death.

The presence of these people is a matter of grave concern not only for Toronto but for this whole province, for there are reports that some of them have moved into the Collingwood and Owen Sound areas. And the director of the Intelligence of Canada Immigration is quoted as saying police departments are being alerted in an effort to obtain more information.

We have come a long way in this province, but with developments such as these, involving the infiltration of alien cults, it may not be for long the "place to stand and grow" of recent legend.

That 'Quality of Life'

What is "quality of life?" Is it just another term that belongs to the lingo of our times? Something as memorable and yet as transparent too, without substance, as Prime Minister's election gimmick of an earlier time the "Just Society."

An answer may be perceived in a thoughtful letter in a company bulletin of a Montreal publication entitled, cryptically, PHP meaning Peace, Happiness, Prosperity, and providing what it calls a "Forum for a Better World."

Indeed, the magazine packs a great deal of stimulating material by that great minds.

In the Reader Reaction section of a recent issue, Kesern Karunatilake, a Sri Lankan who has been working for an international organization in Europe for almost a decade, had this to say, in part:"

"I hope that the affluent societies, which have lately been witnessing their traditional values crumble with their material development, will now pause to do some re-thinking in order, to protect such declining traditional moral values as honesty, politeness, respect for the elderly, dedication to work and sacrifice from the onslaught of such deadly new threats as immoralities, indifference, violence, terrorism and disorder. . ."

It's very much in line with what Ontario Premier Davis has been saying of late, and with his establishment of a royal commission into the effects of violence in TV and movie productions.

It is good to see someone in authority in Canada at last taking a stand against the growing barbarity and decadence of our society. The letter in PHP and what Mr. Davis perceives is wrong today have much in common.

If Canada is going to bar accredited UN representatives and observers on moral grounds, why stop with the PLO? For the last 10 years the Soviet Union's cruel treatment of its dissident intellectuals has scandalized the world; and the military junta of Chile is still practising mass torture of its political prisoners. Why not bar the Russians and Chileans?

A Case for Mandatory Seat Belts But Ontario Must Heed Own Advice

The Globe and Mail

The Ontario Ministry of Transport and Communications has turned out a pretty scary booklet entitled The Human Collision, with statistics and photographs to convince you of the folly of driving without the protection of a seat belt. The trouble is that the Government doesn't really believe its own publication.

How, otherwise, could it continue to resist the real issue of inscribing seatbelt use in Law? It is now clear, for an evident in every hundred thousand deaths in crashes and that during 1973 nearly 100,000 people were injured and 2,000 killed in traffic accidents in the province. It acknowledges that the use of seat belts dramatically reduces the risk of injury and death and yet Transport Minister John Rhodes says there is a lack of evidence that any hundred thousand

Bell Submits Bill

MARMORA — Bell Canada has submitted a bill of $1,500 and Ontario Hydro a bill for $4,900 for changing lines along the development road north of Gordons.

Marmora and Lake Mabel Gawley reported the two accounts had received the municipal act.

Should ratepayers have any questions regarding the statements, they may be presented to council at the great repair meeting on July 7 at 7 p.m. in council chambers.

Village Report Ready

DELORO — The 1974 financial report for Deloro Village has been received from the auditors and was reviewed by council at their last meeting.

Necessary printing will now be done, in accordance with the 1st of May to Thanksgiving weekend things are busy.

Mr. Nelson says he feels that auctions are one of the best way to generate sales.

"The most preferable thing about an auction is that everything is sold."

"A few years ago, the difference between something nice and junk was maybe $25 to $50 but now the difference is more like $40 to $200. People really want the nice things," said Mr. Nelson.

On Saturday, June 28, Mr. Nelson will be conducting the annual Bancroft Fish Game Club Auction.

"That should be a lot of fun," says Mr. Nelson, "Last year we didn't finish until after nine at night."

Most of the sales conducted locally by Mr. Nelson are for household and not for farm sales, so they involve house hold equipment and furniture.

"I try to be careful with that word antique," said Mr. Nelson." People really use it at lot — a whole ago, I had a fellow offer me an antique television."

Service Extended

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake Townships Council has agreed to a request from the Shawanee Cottage Owners Association, presented by Quentin MacLaughlin, for an extension of sanitary collection services from May 23 until after Thanksgiving. Council said it could see no reason to deny the request since the property owners are paying directly for the service.

Dancers Pick Officers

TWEED — The Merry Mixers of Madoc and Tweed, a modern square dance group, elected recently their 1975-76 slate of officers. They are Milton and Lois Elliott of Tweed, joint presidents; Floyd and Margaret McLockie, joint vice-presidents; Ethel Bateman, secretary; Helen Roemer, treasurer; and Harry Ashton, caller.

Eastern Star Shines

TWEED — The Tweed chapter, No. 148, of the Order of the Eastern Star, (OES) celebrated recently its 68th anniversary. Life membership certificates were presented to Hakel Albert, Mabel Emerson and Grace Purtill. Charter members engaged in a joint cutting of a birthday cake in honor of the occasion.

Dog Needs Control

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake Townships Council has directed a letter be sent to Otto Lingstat requesting a dog be tied up so the men on the sanitary collection can carry out their job without fear of being bitten. Mr. Lingstat will also be advised to inform persons using the collection box at Bayview Park that garbage must be deposited there in bags.

Warm Weather Brings Round of Auctions

BANCROFT — It's that time of year again, when bargain hunters and antique collectors flock to a time honored tradition — the auction sale.

Local auctioneer Barry Nelson has been in the business for a number of years, but he says he still finds it an exciting way to spend a Saturday afternoon.

"I'm booked right up now until the beginning of August," said Mr. Nelson." There are seven sales then as well as several in September and a number of others that I know will be coming up."

Although Mr. Nelson is licensed to auction throughout the Hastings area, most of his sales are around Bancroft.

Generally speaking, auction sales are rare in the winter unless it involves settling an estate but, says Mr. Nelson,

Deloro Ratepayers Face Tax Increase

DELORO — Deloro Village ratepayers are faced with an increase in their property taxes this year, mainly due to the heavy Hastings County demand.

The village council has cut expenditures to the minimum, thereby lowering the municipal levy but the county demand puts a heavy load on taxes.

Levies for public residential and farm in 1974 were 111.89 mills and for 1975 will be 125.06 mills. For separate residential and farm, the 1974 levies were 107.90 mills and for 1975 will be 127.17 mills.

For public business and commercial, the levies were 197.15 mills in 1974 and increased to 158.92 mills this year.

Residents can expect to receive the tax bills the last week of June.

Divorce Canadian Style: Women Are Leaving Home

TORONTO (CP) — It used to be husbands slamming the doors and leaving their wives to contend with kids and home. Now statistics show more wives running away from husbands, children and home.

A record 30 per cent of single-parent families in Canada now are headed by the father.

Barbara Christensen of Oakville, Ont., was married for her 19-year marriage to leave behind six children from aged 10 to 18 years old.

She had grown more active in community affairs, was running a small art gallery, putting on political meetings for 900 persons, and her husband resented every minute of it, she said. So she split.

"Didn't she feel guilty about leaving her kids, even if she only moved two blocks away? "No. I've learned that a mother isn't indispensable. In a big family the children help each other. Besides the kids told me they prefer having one home instead of two."

But she said she has experienced extreme loneliness. "When the husband moves out, the wife still has her routine, her home and her kids to guide her day. It's the same her except that Daddy isn't there.

"But when the wife leaves, all the ties are suddenly thrown out the window. It's very disorienting."

Divorce has never been so popular in Canada. There were 36,708 divorces in 1973, a rate which has tripled since the divorce laws were eased in 1968.

Before 1968, adultery was practically the only grounds for divorce. But the new legislation provided 15 additional grounds, including physical and mental cruelty, non-consummation, separation for not less than three years and desertion for not less than five years.

The cost of a divorce—a minimum of 500 in legal fees for an uncontested action—isn't a deterrent any more. Of Ontario's 13,781 divorces in 1972, Legal Aid paid for about 9,000.

Going through a divorce creates feelings of rejection, failure, anger, depression and, ideally, at the end of it all, a positive self-concept and the knowledge of having emerged a better person.

Divorce adjustment is what Peter Rivlin, whose wife left him, calls creative divorce, the game of a 45-hour course he teaches to several students at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

Other support groups have sprung up to help the victims of a bad marriage.

The Women in Transition half-way house is for runaway women with children.

A separated and divorced Roman Catholic group meets once a month at the Catholic Information Centre to discuss subjects members had felt too guilty to mention previously.

The Members deal with problems of second and third marriages. The Church in Latitude is also planning a pilot course called education in remarriage.

Simone de Beauvoir Backs Israel

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — French novelist Simone de Beauvoir, who sprang into prominence 25 years ago as a feminist pioneer, says she feels no guilt for the Beirut convention in left-wing circles this time by backing Israel.

The eight, 67-year-old writer and existentialist thinker, whose novel, The Second Sex, first projected her into the limelight, is angry about her government's attitude towards the Jewish state and the pro-Palestinian stand adopted by French left-wing groups.

She broke a self-imposed rule not to accept literary awards, receiving the Jerusalem Prize. She said it was to register her protest at Israel's exclusion from the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

The action, criticized in literary and artistic circles in many parts of the world, was taken because of Israel's alleged desecration of religious sites through its archeological excavations in Jerusalem.

The French writer described the UNESCO action to delegates at the International Book Fair here as "revolting and scandalous."

She added: "One of my reasons for coming here is to demonstrate the fact that some leftist have a positive attitude towards Israel and support its right to exist like any other nation."

Her opinion of the United States remained harsh. What had happened in Vietnam and Cambodia was "disgusting," she said, and it was all because of the Americans.

Her sympathy for the Jewish cause was sparked by the Nazi occupation of France during the Second World War when many of her friends were herded off to extermination camps.

"I was a witness to the holocaust and its horrors and felt in my flesh I am a Jewish homeland," she told a gathering of Israeli intellectuals. "I felt this is not merely a Jewish problem but as something very personal."

Like many existential thinkers, including her lifetime companion Jean-Paul Sartre, she believes the individual must impose his own sense of order and values on a chaotic and godless universe.

The writer, she believes, must be constantly involved in the effort to initiate social and political change.

"I can't see how any writer can remain unmoved or uninvolved in the things he sees around him," she said in an Israeli interview. "It must dedicate himself to making essential improvements."

Miss de Beauvoir's attitude towards the women's liberation movement appears to some here a little outdated and oversimplified.

She remains unrelenting in her demands for freedom and equality and blames women for the lack of progress.

"Many are not willing to be independent. They are used to life without responsibilities, and marriage seems a good way of perpetuating this."

"One of the first urgent tasks is certainly the revival of household work . . . and the others are those of childhood which turn a woman into a slave," the French writer told a Jerusalem Post interviewer. "I consider that men should take part in household duties the same way as a woman does."

For a writer whose call for a total upheaval in the social structure stirred feminist consciousness 25 years ago, some Israeli women said this return to kitchen dialectics is somewhat disappointing.

Special Classroom for Kids At University of Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Derik is nine years old and has a problem — convincing people that he goes to school at University of Alberta.

He does. So do nine other children—seven boys and two girls—from the Edmonton public and separate school systems. Their school is the learning assistance classroom at the university's education centre.

Derik and his classmates are children between the ages of 8 and 11 who were getting nowhere in a regular school setting although they were of normal or even above-normal intelligence and had no severe emotional difficulties or physical handicaps.

Children with learning disabilities, one might say—but their teacher would rather one didn't.

Shirley Tanasichuk, on loan from the Edmonton public school board to teach the class which started last fall, prefers to refer to the children as "students who were working significantly below their grade levels—behind at least two years."

What caused them to fall behind in academic achievement?

"We could pinpoint the problems we would know better how to treat them but unfortunately we can't always pinpoint the reason," Mrs. Tanasichuk said in an interview.

A basic problem the children seem to have in common is lack of self-confidence.

Combined with this, a number have perceptual problems. They don't always hear or see things the way other people do. Sometimes they have difficulty distinguishing sounds and often read "saw" as "was" and "no" as "on."

By giving th children more individual attention, making use of the technology available at the university and consciously working to build up their self-image, progress has been made.

"The greatest gains that have been made are in the kids' acceptance of themselves," Mrs. Tanasichuk said. "They are much more outgoing now."

The classroom was conceived by Donald Cameron and Harvey Zingle, professors of educational psychology at the university.

The first students entered the classroom Aug. 27, 1974, and soon the limit of 10 students—seven from public schools and three from Roman Catholic—was reached.

The location has a number of benefits. For one thing, it allows access to the university's technological resources. One of the children's favorite activities is using the university's educational research services computers for a supplemental math program.

For Mrs. Tanasichuk, the university location means an expert is always close at hand. "If I want to consult somebody about a reading problem, or maybe an educational psychologist there's somebody down the hall."

Selected students in the faculty of education work with the children under the guidance and direction of qualified specialists.

One wall of the special classroom is used to periodic state individual instruction or a small group activity is conducted with one-way mirrors for observation and videotaping the children without distracting them.

Ann's Eyes Still Red, Nose Running

Dear Ann-Landers: Your sudden departure into "household hints" seemed somewhat inappropriate. Maybe you did it because you saw an opportunity to toss in a little behavioral science.

A reader asked how to slice onions without crying. You said to keep her mouth shut. Then you added, "That's good advice, even if you aren't slicing onions."

Well, I took your advice and cried anyway. I then called my mother-in-law and told her that Ann Landers's household hint on onion-slicing didn't work. She suggested a real fail-safe trick she learned from her grandmother. Please pass it on. Ann.

Dear Sniffed: Ordinarily I am not in the kitchen slicing onions, but after that lousy advice I gave about ironing hotcheels and towels, I decided to do some personal research. I took your mother-in-law's advice and cut a large Bermuda onion per her instructions.

Business Women Celebrate Silver Anniversary

Joy Nichols, charter president, Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club cuts the 25th anniversary cake assisted by guest speaker, Catherine Bowell, extreme left, the 1975 president, Colombe Boh and provincial president Margaret Jackson Tweedie. The anniversary celebration took place Monday evening at the Sun Valley Motor Inn with only four of the 17 past presidents unable to attend.

The Business and Professional Women's Club celebrated their 25th anniversary Monday evening at the Sun Valley. More than 85 members and guests attended the dinner, and were entertained by singer Julius Gallo and Evelyn Beanish, at the piano.

Guest speaker for the evening was Catherine Bowell, the Women's Employment Coordinator for Ontario, whose theme was "Why" rather than "Why Not."

Ms. Bewell cited the purpose of International Women's Year as to focus world attention on the unsatisfactory status of women in the world.

Ms. Bowell gave statistics on the disagreement between women's salaries and men's where equal work was being done, emphasizing the glaring injustice of the current equal pay laws.

"Equal-rights" she said, "is still considered a 'non-problem' — meaning that it is thought women can do and be what they want — that discrimination exists only in their own minds. This is known as the 'Queen Bee' syndrome" she said, "whereby a successful woman thinks, 'I made it lady, so can you'."

Joy Nichols, the first president of B and P in Belleville and now an honorary member, thanked the guest speaker.

A special presentation was made to Dorothy Brown, another past president who was recently promoted to her job with the Department of Manpower in Oshawa.

After acknowledgements were made to all past presidents, member and guests enjoyed a social hour.

Today's Child

JIM

Pleasant, polite and obliging — that's 12-year-old Jim. He's a good-looking boy with brown eyes, dark hair, fair skin and freckles that indicate he spends a lot of time in the sun. He needs glasses for astigmatism and wears them in school but conveniently forgets them most other times.

Healthy and slightly built, Jim would always rather be outdoors than in. He likes most games and though not particularly good at them because he lacks co-ordination, he plays hockey, baseball and football. He enjoys skating and hiking.

Jim's best times have been on a farm where he lived for a short time. Besides the outdoor life and the space to roam, he developed a great interest in the animals and all the farm activities. He is not a demanding boy but would be happy if there could be a farm in his future.

Jim has grow through a period where he lacked confidence in himself and his abilities and was reluctant to tackle anything for fear of failure. His self-assurance has grown with the help of understanding foster parents and teachers and he now undertakes many projects with enthusiasm. He is in special education in grade seven, receiving excellent marks and really enjoying it.

Jim gets on well with other children and he enjoys adult company. He needs a mother and father who will appreciate his friendly personality and will encourage him to do his best at whatever he does without demanding more than he can achieve. Other children will be an asset in Jim's adopting family.

To inquire about adopting Jim, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

Teacher Makes Media Kits

EDMONTON (CP) — Seven years ago Phyllis Arnold invested $50 and started Canadian Social Studies Services in her basement.

Now, the educational publishing firm has moved into its own offices and, while primarily producing Canadian materials, is finding a market for its multi-media kits in the United States.

Miss Arnold, a social studies teacher at Killarney Junior high school and curricular associate with the Edmonton public school board, is concerned that Canadian studies are not receiving enough emphasis in today's schools. But she says education-ists should not go overboard with Canadian studies or history.

"The biggest mistake we could ever make is to concentrate only on Canadian studies."

Miss Arnold also operates a printing business and creates about a third of the materials published by her firm, all outside school hours.

She uses some of her own materials in her classroom and "I usually just sit back and chuckle over the comments I hear."

Her school-board work and her position as a publisher cause a conflict of interest.

"My job as a curricular associate is to help all social studies teachers in the northwest area with new ideas and materials," she said.

"As an educational publisher, I am producing new materials but as a rule I don't tell people about my materials."

She spends her summers on the road researching new kits and is constantly looking for teachers to produce them.

"My dream is to get into the tourist market with interesting games and books on Western Canadian history."

DECORATIVE ART IN MODERN INTERIORS

Edited By Ella Moody

In the first chapter, "Decoration" is defined by architect Sir Rogers of London, England as an "additive feature", introduced if the occupier of a building so wishes, and which the architectural form of the building should be capable of absorbing. So in domestic architecture the architect should "promote an enclosure within which people can create their own style and pattern of life."

From England we are taken on a photographic tour of a holiday home on Lake Lucerne, Switzerland; a family home near Strasbourg, Germany; a "house in the sky" in Japan; to Lake Como, New York, a town house in London, another German home — a beach house on Fire Island, New York; and a townhouse development in Massachusetts.

A summer home in Czechoslovakia begins the second section which is lavishly illustrated with colour and black and white photographs of every type of decorative accessory and artifact in the modern idiom from wall hangings, textiles, furniture, lamps and lighting fixtures to pottery, china, ceramics, sculpture, glass, and tableware. Pages of clean, beautiful pure design.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

Japanese Car Firms Are Busy

TOKYO (AP)—Contrary to the situation in many other auto-producing countries, most of Japan's car assembly lines are running at nearly top speed, there is a surge of domestic buying and over-all production estimates are being revised upward despite sluggish exports.

It now looks as if the Japanese will make just more than four million passenger cars this year. This is up from 3.9 million last year, but fewer than the record 4.4 million turned out in 1973, before the economic decline following the oil crisis and skyrocketing inflation.

Japanese auto-makers produce about 20 per cent of all the world's cars.

Press Freeloads

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the press are among the greatest freeloaders, Bud Germa, (NDP—Sudbury) said Monday.

Speaking before a legislature committee considering the estimates of the offices of the legislative assembly, Mr. Germa suggested members of the press, including the Press Gallery at Queen's Park, pay their own way.

Offices and services are provided free at the Legislature.

Acid Spilled

PORT MAITLAND, Ont. (CP) — A spokesman for the Ontario environment ministry said Monday between 2,000 and 2,500 tons of 93-per-cent pure sulphuric acid spilled at the International Mineral and Chemical Corp. of Canada Ltd. plant in this community about 15 miles west of Welland.

The spokesman said most of the acid was contained on company property by dikes, but an undetermined amount escaped into nearby marshland and the Grand River.

Stabbed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Flores, producer of television's Bonanza and Mission: Impossible, suffered wounds in the back and chest Monday when his former wife allegedly stabbed him.

Police said the incident occurred as Flores, 39, and his ex-wife, Shirley, 42, left a courtroom where she had been convicted a contempt-of-court citation against him.

Could Enforce Code

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will propose a law, if necessary, requiring use of the postal code on all mail, Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Monday.

"We prefer to convince people to use the code rather than make it mandatory by law, but if this is necessary we won't hesitate to do so," Mr. Mackasey said in the Commons.

He was responding to comments by former prime minister John Diefenbaker that the post office condones the "illegal" practice of stamping letters with the words Boycott the Postal Code.

Murder Charged

TORONT (CP) — Robert John Halliday, 24, of Toronto was charged Monday with murder punishable by life imprisonment in connection with the death of four persons who died June 6 in a $130,000 fire at Baptist Church House on St. George Street in the downtown area.

Police said an investigation into the possibility of arson resulted in the arrest.

MPPs Subsidized

TORONTO (CP)—The MPP's dining room is expected to be subsidized $100,000 this year, R. J. Fleming, administration director of the legislative offices, said Monday.

A meal at the restaurant costs about $2.25, and liquor is sold at half the price charged in public bars or restaurants.

Gardening Column

Compos Pile Not Messy

Since my recent column, I have been figuratively up to my neck in manure. At least complaints about my seemingly scathing references to manure. But in reviewing my remarks, I think my points were perfectly clear. All I wanted the home gardener to be aware of:

(1) Manure is not a miracle plant food and in fact is quite a poor fertilizer.

(2) It can and does carry fungus and bacterial and virus organisms harmful to many flowering plants

(3) It is usually loaded with weed seeds.

(4) It does act as a good compacting agent

(5) But the same compacting effect can be achieved by other and safer means. Such as' manufacturing your own compost from any of the organic material that you may find in and around the garden or home.

Last week we referred to two types of compost factories — the pile and the bin. The only real difference in the two is appearance with the bin being contained rather than loose or sprawling. But whether you choose the pile or the bin, the manufacturing process is much the same.

For the rapid, odorless production of compost, two ingredients, besides the materials, are necessary — water and air. Water supplied by you and air supplied by nature. And you may wish to add two things more — a bacterial agent and a fertilizer, which we'll talk about later.

Water — lots of it — is necessary to the process of decomposition. So is air, to ensure the breakdown is achieved by the proper bacteria — the aerobics. Otherwise, the decomposition is achieved by their smelly cousins — the anaerobics.

So let's keep things light, airy and wet and all will be well. And let's refer throughout to the bin, applying the same principles to the pile or stack.

I prefer to keep my bin no more than four feet wide, four feet high and eight feet long. And I have three of them — one finished, one working and one being fed. But I have lots of room. You can have yours any size you wish and in addition, start with one and add the other two as you go along. The walls can be boards, set two inches apart, staked with 2 x 4s or four-foot lengths or cinder or concrete block set on their sides. Or even chicken wire, framed top and posed with 2 x 4s and with 2 x 4 uprights every two feet.

You can start by digging a drainage pit about six inches deep and build your frame all around. Fill this pit with straw, cornstalks or even rolled up sheets of this newspaper excluding this column (of course) to act as an absorptive agent. Then start adding alternate layers of organic material.

A good sequence I find is:

(1) grass clippings or weeds or both

(2) vegetable cuttings from the local grocery store

(3) a heavy application of a high nitrogen fertilizer

(4) a two-to four-inch layer of soil or sod

Then water thoroughly and start repeating the layers.

Materials such as wood ashes, kitchen waste, etc., can be added at any time.

Of course, in the fall raking skyrockets the availability of materials with leaves and dead plant material. And, by then your bin will be empty and you'll be ready for a new production run.

Ingredients, to speed the production process, you can purchase a dried bacterial composting agent at your nursery, or failing that, utilize the same type of agent that is used for septic tanks.

Seminar Planned

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre Board of Directors has plans underway for a consumer protection seminar scheduled for early fall. It will be "total community involvement," says board director Leonie Walford of Trenton. Invited are representatives from area school boards, Sir James Whitney School for the Deaf, Loyalist College, senior citizen groups, government agencies, provincial ministry of consumer and corporate affairs and consumer commentators from the Toronto Star and Global Television Network.

Maritime Municipalities Face Inflation Problem

HALIFAX (CP) — Poorer provinces will soon offer populations are bored in when inflation and growing demands for basic public services such as garbage collection, public safety and education threaten local governments with bankruptcy.

In most cases, there is no source of revenue either from provincial taxpayers, so turning to the federal government for aid.

The situation has spawned two attempts in a decade in the Maritime provinces to streamline delivery of services at the grassroots level and get the greatest possible benefit from the available tax dollar.

"With the minimum dollars available to us, we're going to have to maximize the effect," said Fraser Mooney, Nova Scotia's municipal affairs minister.

The reports of the Nova Scotia royal commission on education, public services and provincial-municipal relations last June and the New Brunswick royal commission on municipal taxation and finance, 10 years earlier, proposed means to effect the streamlining of services that were commonly adopted in each case as "sweeping" and "revolutionary."

Most of the recommendations of the New Brunswick commission, headed by Bathurst lawyer Edward Byrne, became law in the Equal Opportunities Program of the Liberal government of Premier Louis Robichaud later in the 1960s.

But not without a public outcry that democracy was being threatened through proposed creation of a more centralized, also form of government in the name of greater efficiency and a fairer distribution of services.

In Nova Scotia, since economics professor John Graham of Dalhousie University turned in the report of the commission he headed, there have been warnings about "creeping centralism" and a dangerous disregard for long-established community loyalties and traditions.

Officially, Premier Gerald Regan says his Liberal government has not settled its policy on the Graham report and, in the meantime, there will be no official predictions on the course that policy might take.

But it seems obvious that key parts of the Graham report are doomed already, including a proposal that Nova Scotia's 65 incorporated municipalities be reduced to 11, as well as a timetable for full implementation of 1,400 recommendations by an "appointed day" in April, 1976.

A cabinet committee has been studying the 7,000-page, four-volume product of three years of research. The next legislature committee that heard more than 200 public submissions from the province this winter and spring has yet to report.

While Premier Regan admits there is a potential political problem in selling the need for a change in traditional structures, he evidently is also prepared to shelve about some fundamental positions taken by the Graham commissioners.

"In a democratic system, a government always has to give weight to public opinion. It's a very important question that we may have to wrestle with," he said.

But the size of that problem, like the nature of any reform, needed only "really a question of degree."

"If we can satisfy ourselves that change is necessary, then I think the public will accept it.

"But what you're hearing now is not a debate over popularity versus efficiency. It's a debate on what is efficient. Bigness is not necessarily efficient."

With a spring legislature session due to open June 19, moves are expected touching on a Graham commission recommendation for centralization and standardization of throughout the province.

The Regan government already has begun to implement an election promise made in the spring of 1974, several months before the Graham report came out, to assume completely within three years the total cost of elementary and secondary education in the province. The Graham commissioners recommended that education be financed totally out of provincial revenues.

Beyond these steps, the June legislature session, expected to last only a few weeks, may see only a general debate on the weighty report and possibly release of government papers containing thoughts about it that might be incorporated in future legislation. Members could think about this in advance of the fall sitting.

There are two means of streamlining public services: provincial takeovers or revamping the local administration. The Byrne commission and the Graham report recommended a mixture of both methods.

Certain "general services" are spelled out which, it is contended, should be planned, provided and paid for on a uniform basis across the province by a central authority.

Eleven years ago, the Byrne report listed these as education, health, social services and justice. The Graham commissioners accepted these four and added housing.

Both commissions said local services such as garbage collection and police and fire protection should be operated by local governments on the basis that those who use them should pay for them.

It is in its proposals for new local governments that the Graham report differs from that of the Byrne commission, and this seems to be the area where it faces the biggest hurdle.

The Byrne report recommended, and got, abolition of county councils, but the other moves strengthened the hands of other existing municipal governments.

Weeds A Problem

MARMORA — A suggestion from the county weed inspector that Marmora and Lake Township hold an election on the local paper ordering all noxious weeds in the townships be cut was not acted upon because council said it felt it was unenforceable.

"We don't cut the weeds along the roads, so how can we force other people to do it on their property," Deputy-reeve John Wilkes asked.

Beef Supply Uncertain

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Restaurant Association (CRA) said Monday that since the federal government placed quotas on beef imported from the United States the resulting inconsistency of beef prices has created havoc in the industry.

In a brief submitted to the federal commission inquiry into the marketing of beef, which is meeting here this week, the CRA said restaurant owners once were able to switch to U.S. but since the Canadian government set the quotas it "more or less closed that source of supply making it more difficult to obtain the product at a stable price."

Fred Bradley, president of a company which sells and distributes meat to hotels, restaurants and other institutions, concurred with the CRA's complain about the quota system on imported beef.

Mackasey Embarrassed

OTTAWA (CP) — A bundle of mail that arrived by special delivery at Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield's official residence here Saturday has caused some embarrassment for Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey.

The bundle contained letters addressed to members of the Stanfield family. Mysteriously the mail was sent to Halifax, where Mr. Stanfield used to live, instead of to his Ottawa residence.

"You should tell your officials that my retirement in Halifax has been greatly exaggerated," Mr. Stanfield told Mr. Mackasey.

"I'm embarrassed," Mr. Mackasey said. There were bound to be some defects in a system that had 53,000 employees and handled five billion pieces of mail a year.

Mr. Stanfield said the letters, posted May 27 and 28, included an invitation to the unveiling of a painting of former prime minister Lester B. Pearson at external affairs headquarters here. The ceremony took place last week.

No Wash Water Wanted

TORONTO (CP) — Environment Minister William Newman said Monday he will tighten up boating regulations if existing laws don't prohibit dumping wash water in Ontario lakes.

He was replying in the legislature to Gordon Smith (Prince Edward) who questioned protection of lakes from detergents and phosphates in light of a proposed 500-boat marina near Orillia.

The minister said he did not know if the Environmental Protection Act which prohibits dumping of human waste would also apply to wash water on boats.

But he promised to change regulations if existing laws aren't enough.

International Hardware Workers Still Off Jobs, No End in Sight

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A strike by 250 International Hardware employees continues this week as members of the International Union of Molders and Allied Workers press their demands for higher wages and unlimited cost-of-living benefits.

Workers brought production to a standstill at the Coleman St. plant last Thursday. Since that time there have been no meetings between union and management, company and union sources said Monday.

The union is demanding a 75-per-cent increase in salaries and unlimited cost-of-living allowance over a two-year contract.

The company's last offer came as a total package giving workers a 36.3 per cent increase including wages and fringe benefits and an unlimited cost-of-living clause in the second year of the contract.

The unions says average wages at the plant are $3.50 an hour. The company says the average wage is $3.71 an hour.

Plant Superintendent Donald Sinclair said Monday: "There is nothing new in the company's stand.

He said the company has laid off five office workers — members of the International Union of Molders and Allied Workers and that "two or three more will be laid off shortly."

"We're just wrapping up some ends while the strike is in progress," said Mr. Sinclair.

Car Rolls, Driver Hurt

A 73-year-old Scarborough man is in satisfactory condition at Belleville General Hospital today following a single-car accident Monday night that flipped his car over five times on Highway 401.

Belleville OPP said the car, driven by Harry Boylan, of Scarborough, was reported to be travelling west on the highway eastbound lanes. About five miles west of Belleville the car was forced off the road by a tractor trailer and a car travelling side-by-side.

The Boylan vehicle hit the soft shoulder of the highway and turned over five times as it crossed the median. Police said the car was a write off. Provincial constable Dan Garlick is investigating.

Trenton to Seek Clarification Of Northumberland Task Force

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton council will meet in late June with a high-placed Queen's Park official in an effort to clear up misunderstandings over Trenton's role and place in the Northumberland County Task Force.

The task force, and Trenton's exclusion from it, has been the subject of repeated comment and misinterpretation by the local newspaper, according to several councillors, who now want the matter cleared up for good.

Task force members now are drafting plans that will chart the development of Northumberland in population, urban and industrial growth over the next 25 years. Trenton, a separated town, has not been included in the task force study.

Controversy over Trenton's place in the study has stemmed from claims by several municipalities in the county claiming the town has not answered letters inviting it to participate.

Council will meet with Richard Beckett, parliamentary assistant to treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs minister Larry Pennyfather, Monday June 24 in Trenton.

Clerk Ron Carson said Public Relations Director Bob Pattrick has recommended council attend to the meeting because it is important Trenton know what possible impact the study might have on the town.

He said confusion between the task force and a commission studying the political reorganization of the county exists and the meeting will provide an opportunity for it to end.

Thurlow Wants Grants To Cover Project Costs

Members of Thurlow Township council and representatives of the Point Anne Water-purification project will be going to Toronto, to seek provincial aid for the plan.

Reeve Horace Casey and township council is trying to arrange a meeting with the minister of environment and local MPP Charles Rollins to help pay for the project, the cost of which has escalated from the original $28,000 to $80,000.

Peter Anderson, an engineer for the consulting firm of Greer, Galloway and Associates told council, Monday, inflation, new government requirements and high soil and survey fees have pushed the cost of the project up.

The project received approval from the Ontario Municipal Board Monday morning.

Driver Unhurt

TWEED — A Toronto woman, Valerie Hagenmy, 35, escaped injury Sunday afternoon when the right front wheel of her car dropped into a trough off the edge of the pavement of Highway 37 just north of Tweed, causing her to lose control of the car.

The vehicle took out two guide posts valued at $40 and sustained $500 damage to its right front and left rear when it spun around to face north. Investigating officer is Constable Don Greelman, Madoc OPP.

Zoning Bylaw Issue Gets Public Meeting

TRENTON — Trenton council decided Monday to call a public meeting to debate changes in the zoning bylaw and official plan in late September.

The action came despite objections from Mayor Bob Patrick that the meeting would be "redundant" and of no purpose until changes were made in the individual properties in the official plan, the basis of the zoning bylaw.

Impetus for the meeting came from councillor Bob Todd, who wanted council to decide on some action after the defeat of the zoning bylaw two weeks ago.

Early in June, council threw out the bylaw, the mirror image of the official plan, in a 4-2 vote. At the time, Mayor Patrick called the defeat a "major setback" and said he could not predict when it would again come before council.

Backed by councillor Ron Price, Mr. Todd suggested the September meeting to allow Trenton builders and developers, opponents of the bylaw, an opportunity to suggest changes.

Mr. Price said he was in favor of the meeting "to get it thrashed out again".

He said people now are fearful with the bylaw and can better go through some of the items that are of concern.

Major objections have been made over what have been termed "unrealistic" density restrictions placed on housing.

At present, the Quinte Planning Board is three months into an estimated one to 1½-year job of revamping official plan densities.

Mayor Patrick suggested it would be better to wait until the board's work was complete: "There's no point to the meeting until we . . . have some new thoughts about density."

Thieves Grab Petty Cash

BLOOMFIELD — Damage totalling an estimated $400 has been reported following a break-in at the Bloomfield offices of the Prince Edward County Board of Education.

The break-in is believed to have occurred late Sunday night or early Monday, netted the thief or thieves $50 in petty cash. Three filing cabinets and two wooden doors were damage by the intruder or intruders.

Kente Gets New Principal

BLOOMFIELD — A lecturer with the University of Ottawa, David Baldwin, 35, has been appointed as principal of Kente Pond in Ameliasburgh Township.

Announcement of his appointment was made Monday night by the Prince Edward County Board of Education during a regular monthly meeting.

His teaching experience dates from 1960 and includes appointments as a public school teacher and principal and teaching responsibilities with Ottawa Teachers' College.

Mr. Baldwin will replace Kente principal Eugene Bright who was transferred by the board of education this spring to a teaching position at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Mr. Bright's transfer was strongly opposed by a concerned parents group from Ameliasburgh Township and several presentations urging his re-instatement were made to trustees.

Recently, Mr. Bright announced his withdrawal from any protest of the transfer in keeping with the best interests of the school.

No Solution Yet

Union employees and company officials have settled into a waiting game as strike action continues at Belleville's International Hardware plant on Coleman St. The strike has set up a field office and spokesmen say "spirit on the picket line is good."

Reilly Says Labor Only Group to Act in Good Faith

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

The kind of society Canada generates is responsible for the increase in poor working habits of Canadian workers' a local labor leader and member of the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) said in response to questioning during an address to the Quinte Kiwanis Club, Monday.

Ian Reilly, Canadian director of the Boot and Shoeworkers Union, head of the union labels trades department for the CLC and vice-president of the Quinte Labor Council told Kiwanians government leadership is necessary to reverse the trend.

"You can't argue with statistics," he told the audience, Canadian workers produce less for the money than they used to," when asked about a fair day's pay for a fair day's work.

Currently Canada is becoming a high-wage country while the United States is becoming a low-wage one, he told the group, with the result an increase in U.S. imports.

He called for a limited free trade with the U.S. in the shoe industry to help save the industry.

Mr. Reilly also said Canada should nationalize the Athabasca Tar Sands to prevent their exploitation.

"In most cases I am not for nationalization," he said but I have heard that the U.S. is storing and saving oil and will have a supply that will last five years after ours is gone."

Mr. Reilly told the group that labor was the only segment of the economy to act in good faith when the government set out its proposed economic guidelines.

"We were the only area to answer and set forth proposals of our own," he said.

"People on the low and should get a larger chunk of the pie if there is any to distribute," he said. "a person making $30,000 can afford to spend a lot more than one making $5,000."

"Most of the discontent arises from the visible erosion of day-to-day income, Mr. Reilly told the audience.

Organized labor should not be used as the whipping boy for the rest of the economy, he told the men.

"You can't satisfy all people, but it is my job to ask for what the membership wants, even if I don't think it's fair," he said.

When asked whether unions should educate the workers to do a fair day's work for a fair day's pay, he replied that management should be similarly educated.

"I have eight sets of negotiations this fall and I wouldn't be surprised if half went to strike," he said, echoeing that labor does not always failed to its leaders.

Twin Tennis Court Costs Debated

BLOOMFIELD — Draft plans for two tennis courts proposed for construction at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute Monday night were presented to trustees by student John Singleton.

Mr. Singleton noted a preliminary estimate prepared for the twin courts submitted by the board's maintenance supervisor totals approximately $20,000.

This figure includes $3,849 for chain link fencing to enclose the courts.

The PECI spokesman said each court would measure 60 feet by 120 feet and would have a three — to four-inch asphalt surface.

He added that a Kingston paving firm has submitted an estimate of $8,750 for paving of the courts.

Mr. Singleton said the students' council of PECI has $5,000 to contribute toward the cost of the project and possibly more money can be donated next year.

The board of education has budgeted $4,000 toward the cost of the courts but this sum coupled with the students' contribution of $5,000 still is not sufficient to complete the project.

Skirl of the Pipes Means Highland Tattoo

Through the efforts of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville, it will be Scots Wha' Hae this weekend and the skirl of the pipes will be heard throughout the city.

The Kinsmen Highland Tattoo starts Saturday night with a parade of eight pipe bands beginning at the A and P parking lot on Pinnacle St., down Front St. and to the Armory where the Pipes and Brass of CFB Trenton will perform The Retreat on Bridge St. between Pinnacle and Church. The parade begins at 7 p.m. and will include a pipe band from Indianapolis, Indiana.

The fully-licenced Highland Fling will begin at 9 p.m. in Ben Bleecker Auditorium with dance music provided by Smile. Dress is semi-formal. During the evening the Belleville Kinsmen Pipe Band and the Mississauga Scottish Country Dancers will perform. Tickets, at $7 a couple, are available at Spire's Restaurant, Front St., Barber Salon, Shoppie Store and from Kinsmen members. Some will be held for sale at the door.

The Highland Tattoo begins at 1.30 p.m. Sunday at the fairgrounds with the gathering of the clans, including an additional pipe band from Brockville.

At 2.30 the First Annual Kinsmen Invitational Mile Race will be held, involving top competitors from each of the 15 Quinte-area secondary schools.

There will be a miniature air display beginning at 3.30 involving CFB Trenton Hercules and Twin Otter aircraft and kilted parachutists. Kinsman Terry Macklan says this should settle the question of what a Scotsman wears under his kilt.

The tattoo ends with the Drum Majors' competition.

Councillor Queries Population Figures

TRENTON — Councillor Bob Wannamaker told council Monday he does not believe town population figures supplied by the regional assessment office.

The town, said the councillor, needs a better count of its population since per capita grants from the provincial government are based on number in the town.

"Our town is growing," said Mr. Wannamaker, "It's not sitting still."

He claimed assessment office figures did not reflect true growth in Trenton. He estimated the population should be listed between 15,500 and 16,000.

Instead, only 14,400 (in 1974) are counted.

Mr. Wannamaker said it is unrealistic to assume such growth between 1965 and 1974 was limited to only an approximate 300 people, as assessment office figures indicate.

Living unit growth in the same eight years was 1,000.

"With all this growth, why isn't the population changed any," he questioned. He worried that the lack of exact population growth figures would mean the loss of per capita grants of one or two mills.

Town clerk Aubrie Sharp said Monday Trenton has no way to verify figures from the assessment office barring the town hiring a firm to take a separate count.

And then, the provincial government would not likely accept the town's figures, said Mr. Sharp. "I have no idea how we can check it."

Deputy Peter De Groot supported Mr. Wannamaker in saying he has been concerned for sometime that "something is definitely wrong."

A five-per-cent difference in way in the given 1975 figure claimed by the assessment office is poor, according to one councillor. Pete Atit said the office's staff is large enough to make the "differential" smaller.

No action was taken by council on Mr. Wannamaker's call for a friendly wrist-slapping. It was decided to wait for the new town enumeration, expected this fall.

Flags at Half Mast

In tribute to the late Merrill Denison, internationally known Canadian author, playwright and conservationist, the flags at Bon Echo Provincial Park on Mazinaw Lake will be flown at half staff this Saturday and Sunday.

The Tweed District office of the provincial ministry of natural resources had worked closely with Mr. Denison over the years in the development of the provincial park. Core land for the park was donated to the province for a park by Mr. Denison in 1958.

Mr. Denison died June 12 while on a visit to San Diego, Calif. He would have been 84 on June 23.

There will be an intermission with refreshments during the screening.

Secretary to Head Educator Exciting Career

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the 11th in a series featuring, cussly educators. The personality sketches include teachers, administrators and trustees.

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

If you want to know who's who in education and more importantly what's in that then there's a lady at the top office of the Hastings County Board of Education who can help you.

Evelyn McIlquham can be found at the top office because she's the secretary for the district of education Eric Runacres. Although she's never worked as a teacher, Mrs. McIlquham has a rare insight into education and power elements behind it.

Born in Ottawa, Mrs. McIlquham began her secretary career with what now is called National Defence. She worked in the munitions and supply branch during the Second World War. She later married and lived in Toronto before settling in Belleville in 1949.

Her first years in Belleville were spent raising her three children and then she joined the Bay of Quinte District High School Board in 1959. Mrs. McIlquham, 54, stayed there until the new county board system was established in 1969 at which time she became Mr. Runacres's personal secretary.

As an executive secretary Mrs. McIlquham says she believes a secretary must believe in the basic operating rules of her employer, "otherwise a good relationship can not be established." She also says a secretary must have a sense of loyalty to the executive she works for.

Regarded as a skillful leader with a constructive positive attitude, Mrs. McIlquham said Mr. Runacres does possess these qualities and is extremely "easy to work for." She said he has one bad habit of throwing things away and on more than one occasion, she is called upon to retrieve papers from hidden spots.

Mrs. McIlquham describes her position in the top office as "dynamic and exciting" with original things and people constantly on the go. Because of Mr. Runacre's open door policy, Mrs. McIlquham seldom finds herself in the position of protecting him like many executive secretaries must do. "He even takes his own calls most of the time," she added.

She says she feels she has a good source of knowledge about people and programs in education because of her position. Mrs. McIlquham is also the board's recording secretary and is instrumental in some preparation work for the meetings.

From her 16-years experience with education in this county Mrs. McIlquham maintains "we are lucky to be in education in Hastings."

No Need to Protect

Evelyn McIlquham, the director of education's secretary, says there's no need to protect her boss because of his "open door policy" to all. Here, the director, Eric Runacres and Mrs. McIlquham review some educational documents at the Education Centre on Ann St.

Eight Straight First Team Berths for Orr

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Orr has been in the National Hockey League for nine years and the brilliant Boston Bruins defenceman has been voted an all-star in each season.

Orr, a second-team choice in his rookie year, was named Monday to the NHL's first team for a record eighth consecutive year, breaking a mark he shared with Doug Harvey of Montreal Canadiens. Harvey was a first-team choice for seven years in a row from 1951-52 through 1957-58.

Joining Orr on the first team were goaltender Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers, defenceman Denis Potvin of New York Islanders, centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia, right winger Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens and left winger Richard Martin of Buffalo Sabres.

Named to the second team were goaltender Rogatien Vachon of Los Angeles Kings, defenceman Guy Lapointe of Montreal and Borje Salming of Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston centre Phil Esposito, right winger Rene Robert of Buffalo and left winger Steve Vickers of New York Rangers.

The voting, conducted among members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association in the 18 league cities, is for regular-season play only and was based on a point system of five for a first-place vote, three for a second and one for a third.

Orr, Parent and Martin were the only repeaters on the first team from last season. Parent's selection marked the first time since 1963-64 and 1965-66 that a goalie has been named to the first team in consecutive seasons. Glenn Hall of Chicago Black Hawks was the first goaltender in these seasons.

Only Orr and Lafleur, who was making his first appearance on the all-star list, managed to receive maximum point totals of 270 for 54 first-place votes.

Potvin, Salming, Vachon, Robert and Vickers were also making their first appearance on the all-star squad. Potvin became only the seventh player to be selected as an all-star after winning the Calder Trophy as the league's best rookie a year earlier.

While post-1967 teams gained prominence on the two teams, there were some notable absences. Chicago Black Hawks did not have an all-star representative for the first time in 16 years while Detroit Red Wings missed having a player on a team for the third time in 31 years.

Each player on the first team receives $2,000 from the NHL and second team members each gets $1,000.

Board of Governors Meet in Montreal

Penguins' Franchise Major Problem for NHL

MONTREAL (CP) — When the National Hockey League board of governors get together today, one of the major topics of discussion is expected to be the sad shape of the Pittsburgh Penguins franchise.

Last Friday, the Penguins went into receivership and it was reported Monday that Equibank, the largest single creditor of the financially-troubled club, filed writs of execution to attach the bank accounts of the club's owners.

The Penguins owe creditors about $6.5 million, including $4 million to the bank.

The NHL governors will also consider the plight of California Seals, as well as a bid by Greg Neeld to play in the league despite the fact he has only one good eye.

Scheduled for late today is the league's annual intra-league draft.

The NHL is proceeding on the assumption that a group headed by Mel Swig, a San Francisco businessman, will operate the California team next season.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said last Monday that Swig has been able to make financial arrangements to purchase the league-operated club, adding the transaction could be completed in a "matter of days."

Until the Pittsburgh and California problems are settled, it will be difficult for the league to draw up a schedule for the 1975-76 season.

The Neeld case presents another tricky problem for the NHL. Neeld, a defenceman, was drafted in the fourth round of the amateur draft by Buffalo Sabres. He played last season with Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League using a face mask to protect his right eye.

Neeld lost his left eye while playing for Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series in 1973.

An NHL rule bans players with less than 25 per cent vision in any eye from competing in the league. Campbell is already on record as saying he is strongly opposed to any change in the sight rule.

Neeld demonstrated his mask Monday at a session of the NHL's joint rules committee. Nine members of the committee voted to accept the mask while eight voted against it, including the three Canadian teams—Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver.

"I hope the governors will have a broader and more worldly view," said Roy McMurtry, a Toronto lawyer representing Neeld.

Neeld and his father Norman designed the mask which has undergone several tests. Neeld had two reports from doctors saying that chances of injury to his right eye were remote.

There is little available in the intra-league draft. Each of the 18 clubs was allowed to protect 18 skaters and goaltenders and first-year professionals are exempt from claim.

Among players available are veteran forward Glen Sather of Montreal Canadiens, defencemen Gary Doak of Boston Bruins and Gary Bergman of Detroit Red Wings along with Darryl Edestrand of New York Rangers.

Marcel Dionne of Detroit, Ed die Westfall of New York Islanders, Rod Gilbert of the Rangers and John Bucyk of Boston were also left off the protected lists, but they are about 10 others cannot be drafted because they are free agents.

Approve Neeld's Mask

MONTREAL (CP) — The rules committee of the National Hockey League approved Monday a mask developed by hockey player Greg Neeld that would allow him to play in the league despite the fact he earlier lost his left eye during junior competition.

However, the NHL board of governors must still approve the decision at a meeting Tuesday. Neeld was picked by Buffalo Sabres in the fourth round of the amateur draft held June 3.

But league bylaws currently ban players from NHL competition who have less than 25 per cent vision in a damaged eye.

Toronto lawyer Roy had threatened the NHL with a lawsuit if his client was prevented from playing in the league if drafted.

Neeld played with Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League last season using the mask. He lost his eye in 1973 while a member of Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Dillon to Skip To the Rangers

TORONTO (CP) — Centre Wayne Dillon doesn't plan to finish his three-year contract with Toronto Toros and will start his seven-year contract with New York Rangers this fall, says Gus Badali, Dillon's agent.

Dillon has a year remaining on his contract with the World Hockey Association Toros who paid him a reported $70,000 a year. The deal with the National Hockey League Rangers is reported to be worth $200,000 a year.

Toros owner John Bassett has said his club couldn't afford to get into a bidding war for players such as Dillon and would stick close to a $1.5 million player salary budget for next season. He has also said that Dillon would be allowed to skip the last year of his contract.

Booming Bats Music to Kison

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If there's anything a pitcher likes more than a humming fastball or a sharp-breaking curve ball, it's a soaring home run ball.

Brent Elson of Pittsburgh Pirates had plenty of them Monday night.

He was in the dugout, gleefully watching the homers bounce off the bats of team-mates Willie Stargell, Bennie Bennett and Al Oliver as a 13-hit assault that led the Pirates to a 10-3 win over St. Louis Cardinals.

In Monday's other National League baseball action, Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia Phillies 9-7, San Diego Padres defeated San Francisco Giants 7-1, Cincinnati Reds beat Atlanta Braves 9-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Houston Astros 4-2.

"All our hitters seem to be coming to life at once," said Elson. "It's great for a pitcher."

It was the Pirates' fifth consecutive victory and gave them a two-game edge over the New York Mets in the East Division.

Stennett led the Pittsburgh stampede against loser Ron Bryant and four relievers—one of them Bob Gibson—with four runs batted in on his homer and two singles.

Andy Thornton, Manny Trillo, Jerry Morales and Tim Hosley also chipped home runs that helped bring Chicago back from a 5-1 deficit after 5½ innings against the Phillies.

Bill Madlock, the league's batting champ with a .367 average, didn't hit any homers for the Cubs—but he did everything else.

He doubled in the fourth and scored Chicago's first run. With one out in the seventh, he beat out a bunt that gave Morales a chance to tie the game with a homer—which he did. And he capped a four-run rally in the eighth with a two-run single that provided the final margin of victory.

San Diego managed only two singles through the first five innings against the Giants before collecting six runs on six hits in the sixth inning.

The loss was San Francisco's sixth in a row.

Joe Morgan paced Cincinnati's attack against the Braves by driving in four runs with a single, double and home run to help Don Gullett post his fifth consecutive victory.

Gullett raised his record to 5-3. He's off to his best start since breaking into the majors five years ago at the age of 19. The triumph kept the Reds 3½ games ahead of second-place Los Angeles in the West.

Willie Crawford hit a solo homer in the second inning, then Steve Garvey hit a two-run shot in the seventh to give the Dodgers their victory over Houston and make Don Sutton the league's first 11-game winner. Cesar Cedeno hit a two-run homer for the Astros.

On Visits to the Twins

Fingers a 'Charlie Brown'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No matter the weather in Bloomington, Minn., it always seems to be raining on Rollie Fingers at Metropolitan Stadium. When Oakland A's visit the Twins, the all-star reliever almost always pitches like Charlie Brown does in the Peanuts comic strip.

"I must be about 1-0 here at least in the last six years," said Fingers after losing, 2-1.

"I have more trouble in this place than any place else. I think things will begin to even up and start going my way, but something always happens."

True to form, something happened Monday night. Fingers worked the count to a ball and two strikes to Steve Braun in the ninth with Oakland leading 5-4. Braun fouled off the next pitch by a splinter on his bat.

The fourth pitch found its way to the bullpen in right-centre field and moments later Fingers found himself walking off the field a loser.

"When he let it go...I heard (A's catcher Gene) Tenace say, 'No!!' recalled Braun. His sixth home run of the season brought the Twins within 5-4 before Larry Hisle's tie-breaking single gave Minnesota the victory.

In other American League baseball action Monday, Baltimore Orioles beat Cleveland Indians 6-2, Boston Red Sox defeated Detroit Tigers 6-2 in 13 innings and New York Yankees beat Milwaukee Brewers 10-7. California Angels and Kansas City were rained out in the only other game scheduled.

Reggie Jackson and Tenace had 3 successive home runs in the eighth inning to put Oakland on top 5-4 after Fred Lasmeier's homer had tied it for the A's in the sixth inning.

Hisle and Dan Ford also homered for Minnesota.

Brooks Robinson and Leo Mazzone hit consecutive homers and Jim Palmer became the American League's first 11-winner with a 4-hit, 10-2 victory over Cleveland. Palmer, who has lost three, got relief help from Grant Jackson in the seventh inning.

Robinson homered in the fourth and May in the fifth, while George Hendrick hit one for the Indians.

Rick Burleson, who was picked off third in the ninth inning, redeemed himself with a sacrifice fly that broke a 3-2 tie and started the four-run rally that lifted Boston over Detroit.

The Red Sox had taken a 2-0 lead in the 10th inning on a home run by Jim Rice, but the Tigers came back to tie on Tom Veryzer's single.

New York blew an early five-run lead but rallied for five in the sixth inning on Ron Blomberg's double and Craig Nettles' homer to beat Milwaukee. Blomberg's two-run double and Nettles' three-run homer also nullified a grand slam homer by Gorman Thomas in the fourth inning that started the Brewers' comeback from a 5-0 second-inning deficit.

The Yankees, who have won 21 of their last 27 games, scored five second-inning runs.

Jenkins Winner; Others Happy, Too

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There was only one winner—chance for his first official pro victory with an eight on the fist hitter, found a figurative ray of sunshine amid the rain that hit the 6,669-yard Whitemarsh Valley Club course.

"I'm disappointed but I'm not depressed," said the 5-year-old Wynn. "I got what I came for. I came in hoping to make a cheque big enough to put me in the top 60 money winners for the year; I did that, so I can't complain."

Jenkins had a five-stroke lead when Monday's double round began. He retained it with a two-underpar 69 in the morning round, then held off Miller by one stroke with an afternoon 72. He finished with a 275 total, one under par.

Institute Aids Athletes

TORONTO (CP) — The Fitness Institute announced Monday it is giving Canadian Olympic athletes free admission to its two Toronto-area centres.

"This is not a promotion for the Fitness Institute," said institute president Bill Gairdner. "It's part of our contribution to help Canadian athletes" training programs.

The Institute, founded by the late Lloyd Percival, charges annual fees ranging from $200 to $600 for its programs which include use of sophisticated fitness testing and training equipment.

PETER McNAB

Jabbar A Laker

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, three times all-America at UCLA and three times the most valuable player in the National Basketball Association at Milwaukee, became a Los Angeles Laker Monday in a trade that sent four players to the Bucks.

Jabbar, 28, signed a five-year, multi - million dollar contract with the Lakers in the deal that sent centre Elmore Smith, reserve guard Brian Winters and two 1975 first round-draft choices, 6-foot-8 Dave Meyers and 6-5 Junior Bridgeman, to the Bucks.

Besides Abdul-Jabbar, Los Angeles also received his backups at centre with Milwaukee, 6-11 Walt Wesley.

Abdul-Jabbar is expected to make at least $500,000 a year with the Lakers although no one, including the 7-3 centre, would divulge details of the pact except its length.

The trade accommodated Jabbar's wishes to get out of Milwaukee.

Sabres' McNab Top Shooter

MONTREAL (CP) — Centre Peter McNab, Buffalo Sabres sixth choice in the 1972 amateur draft, was the most accurate shooter in the National Hockey League among players with 15 or more goals during the 1974-75 season.

McNab scored on 22 of his 90 shots on goal for a 24.4 per cent average. Second to McNab was Jim Pappin, traded recently to California Seals by Chicago Black Hawks. Pappin had 36 goals on 138 shots for 22.8 per cent.

Rookie Eric Vail of Atlanta Flames was third with 39 goals on 177 shots for a 22 per cent mark.

For the first time in five seasons, Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins did not lead the NHL in shots on goal. Esposito's teammate Bobby Orr led with 334 shots, scoring 46 goals for 13 per cent.

The strategy of removing the goaltender near the end of a game in an effort to tie the score worked more during 1974-75 than in any of the previous three seasons. A total of 15 empty-net goals were scored with a sixth attacker on the ice in 246 attempts. There were 75 empty-net goals scored.

The goaltender removal worked four times for Boston, three each for Montreal Canadiens and New York Islanders and once for Vancouver Canucks, Pittsburgh Penguins, Chicago, Buffalo and Toronto Maple Leafs.

TWO LED

Philadelphia Flyers and Vancouver each scored seven empty-net goals while Atlanta led with eight empty-net goals against.

Clubs that joined the league during the 1966-67 season did better this season against pre-1967 clubs than ever before. Excluding Washington and Kansas City, both of which made their debuts in 1974-75, the post-1967 teams shot 30.4 per cent of possible points against the old clubs. Buffalo led with 21 wins and four ties among the 31 games played against the so-called old-line clubs.

Montreal won 34 and tied 19 of 56 games against the newer clubs for 75 of a possible 112 points. Toronto and Detroit were both below .500 against the post-1967 teams.

Bobby Orr enjoyed the best plus-minus mark with a plus 90 while Mikkelson of Washington had the worst with a minus 80.

J. Goode Too Good

In the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League action on Monday, the third game of a doubleheader was postponed.

The second got underway and Belleville J. Goode Painters defeated Trenton's 6-2.

Perry Soule collected the win for the Painters, allowing a meagre four hits, walking four batters and striking out six of the opposition. Rick Goode took the loss for O'Brien's, with relief work being done by Mike Chesterson.

For the winners, Larry Walls collected a single and a double, while Perry Soule and Ken Kerth both picked up two singles.

For the losers, Ron Doornbos had a couple of hits and Don Begley touched Soule for a double.

Sonny Holoway set 11 batters down on third strikes, walked three and gave up only six hits, but it wasn't enough to secure a win for his club in J. J. Goode's Painter took their first loss in eight starts in the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League, Sunday. In the second half of the twin bill, Bayview Orchards dumped Carrying Place 9-4.

Harold Werkheiser was the winner. He too gave up six hits, all individual singles, while walking none and striking three. His Ameliasburg A's teammates, Gary Thompson and Mike Marsale, gave him all the offensive support he needed. Thompson connected for a pair of singles and Marsale cracked a triple and added a single.

Bayview Orchards pounded Carrying Place pitchers, Chris Miller and Robin Selman for 16 hits while Rick Rodriguez and Don Bonter only gave up five. Steve Dontaire' Wayne Craig and Gary Mason each three safeties apiece for the winners. All five hits given up by the losing hurlers were individual singles.

Kerik and Goyer Combination Tops

Ken Kerik limited Brooke Bond Foods to just two hits Monday night and teammate Neil Goyer crashed three home runs, off Tom St. Jules to give Constellation Carpets their 12th consecutive victory in Belleville Industrial Softball League action this season.

St. Jules gave up only seven hits in all and did not walk a batter. However, Goyer's three circuit drives and his single were all the Carpetmen needed to propel them to victory.

Kerik, undefeated in 12 starts, struck out five and walked three enroute to the win.

In other action Monday night, the Post Office counted 10 runs in the fifth inning to pick up a 15-5 win over the Leaders and Canadian Tire broke out of their slump as they battled to a 1-1 draw with CNRA.

Norm Lockhard earned the win for the Pastime, tossing seven and walking three. He gave up five hits.

Ed Dawson toiled for the losers as he was pounded for 18 hits. Tom Woods had a field day at the plate, counting a double and three singles, Eric Tugnette had a double and two singles, as did Bob Wludyka, and Lockhart singled twice. Bill Leach added a triple and a single to the Post Office onslaught.

centre fielder, Jim Horwood dangled a little too far off third base in Monday night's Quinte Fastball League action and Bardon Supplies shortstop, Harold Foster, took a throw and tagged him out. The Deveblis Motors' runner had a triple, a double and a single, but it wasn't enough as Bardon's won the contest, at Alemite Park. 4-3. The win puts the Supplymen in sole possession of second place one-half game out of first.

DeMille Nails Down Devolin

Bardon Supplies' Ken DeMille allowed 13 Devolin Motor batters to reach the base paths, but only three of them crossed home plate as the Supplymen scored four times to earn the win, Monday.

In the other Quinte Fastball League game, Auger Men's Wear took advantage of seven Rorabeck Real Estate errors to take a 4-2 victory.

DeMille was touched for nine hits, including a triple, double and single by Jim Horwood. He fanned nine and walked three in picking up the win.

Don Holoway was the loser striking out three and walking three while giving up the hits.

Rick Rosebush added a single and a double to the losers' attack, Ralph Plane had a triple and John Brunside a double.

Denis Neron collected a pair of RBI's and punched out two singles to top the winners hitters. DeMille also singled twice.

In the top of the fifth, a Realtors rally fell short of tying the game as Ted Cornell pulled down a fly ball in right field and threw out the third Rorabeck run at the plate. Augor put the game on ice with a fourth tally in the sixth.

Jamie Hunter took the win with relief help from Bob Swan. The pair set 18 batters down on third strikes while walking one and giving up seven hits. Wayne Casselman was the loser, throwing an eight hitter.

Vern Whalen led Auger with three singles and Dave Lott added a pair.

Larry Sharpe responded for the losers with two one-bag gers. The remainder of the game's hits were all individual singles.

A Tight Fit

Quinte Hellenic battled back from a 1-0 first half deficit on Sunday to earn a 2-1 victory over Toronto Ferma in Premier Soccer League action at Zwick's Island. In another Premier game on Sunday, Belleville Olympics fought to a 3-3 draw with Peterborough.

The Hellenic fell behind when Toronto's Jose Antonio scored in the first half. The Quinte club bounced back however, in the second half, with all-round offensive attack to take the win. Keith Lawday and Sandy Duchart were the marksmen for the locals.

In Peterborough, the Olympics jumped into a 2-1 lead in the first period on goals by Bob Watson and Zdravko Fundic. The Vi-Mars tied the score midway through the second and Belleville reeled with a marker from Ernie Brown to regain the lead. With seven minutes to go, the home squad was awarded a penalty shot and evened things back up at 3-3.

How to save money at our expense.

Money makes money. It's a simple fail-safe idea.

Put it into one of the many Commerce savings accounts, and you'll always collect the benefit of interest.

The question is, are you collecting the maximum interest?

The person who can answer that, is one of our over 1600 Commerce managers. Because it depends on your particular requirements.

Take a for instance. A Chequilig Savings Account only earns you 3⅜% calculated on the minimum half-yearly balance. So the idea is to keep your balance low there, and take some of your surplus funds and put them somewhere else.

Maybe into a Savings Account where they'll collect 6½% calculated on the minimum monthly balance. Or into a Term Deposit. Or Growth Savings Certificates. Maybe even a Commerce SMART registered savings plan so you can also benefit from the income tax deduction.

We think now is the time to make the most of the money you have. At our expense.

You don't need to visit your local Commerce manager. We don't think there's anybody in the world with so much money he doesn't know what to do with it.

But if there is, send him to the Commerce.

IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

Minor Softball Roundup

Conductors Punch Out Win

When the Belleville Conductors of the Belleville Minor Softball League's Twiplole division start scoring runs, it's hard to stop them. They proved the point against the Belleville Kinsmen, defeating them 26-11 on the pitching talents of Mike Pinnegar and Gord Mahaney.

Actually though, it was a hitter's game, as Glen Papper hit a homer and two singles and the pitchers also helped themselves. Pinnegar getting a double and two singles, and Mahaney collecting four singles, all for the Conductors. Pat Doran contributed a home run and a double to the Kinsmen cause.

The game between the Legion House Dart club and Trudeau Motors ended in an 11-3 victory for the Legion. Tommy Stewart and Bob Woodall shared the win, thanks to the hitting of David Spedding, who tripled and singled. For Trudeau's it was Derek Pyven belting a homer and John Wright cranking a couple of triples.

The Legion House Dart team played another game over the week, this time against the Belleville Conductors, and they were victorious again. Mark Chapman and Brian Bird pitched the Legion team to a 14-9 win over the trainmen, while David Speding hit his second homer of the week, pitcher Brian Bird collected two singles to help his own cause. Gord Malkawa had quite a night at the plate, with a homer, two doubles and a triple, but he couldn't lead the Conductors to a win.

Two teams looking for a win played each other, Trudeau Motors and the Kinsmen, with the Kinsmen taking a close game 11-10. Pitchers Rob Jones and Jimmy Wright absorbed the loss though they pitched well. The winners got good pitching from Bob Dafoe and Tommy Gilmour. Jimmy Wright kept up the high standard of hitting pitchers, with a home run and a double and a single.

In Tyke Division play Bob Sullivan Auctioneer squeezed by A and B Precast by a score of 3-2. Jeff Woodward went all the way for the winners, while Ron Urch and Carl Vance shared the duties for the losers. Shawn Doyle was important to the Auctioneer win, with a triple and a double. Jeff Woodward doubled for the losers.

Cablevue walloped the Belleville Kinsmen in their game, by a score of 19-5. The winning pitcher for Cablevue was Andy Babyr, while Steve Swoffer and Chris Radway couldn't hold the Cablevue attack. The big gun for Cablevue was Bradley Gray, with a triple and three singles.

The Kinsmen were victims again, this time at the hands of Mel Barriage, losing 14-12. Dave Molaski picked up the win for the victors, while Ross Harvey took the loss.

Bob's Sports defeated Ellis Printing 15-11 on the mound work of Steve Goulah and Les Bradley, the losers were Steve Hay and Peter Goulah. Peter Goulah not only pitched, but he also bothered and came through with a triple for the Printers, his brother, Steve had two singles to lead the victors.

Bob's Sports was on the wrong end of the score against H and M Variety, losing 4-1. Dan Manning and Kev Jones alternated between pitcher and catcher for the winners. Steve Taylor took the loss. John Ricketts cranked a homer for the winners.

In Bantam action the Kinsmen officials Stopetta 8-5 on the hurling of Mark Pearson and Dave Bennett, Jerry Kingmen was on the mound for the losers.

Stopetta and the Kinsmen played again, with Stopetta getting some measure of revenge, defeating the Kinsmen 8-4, Paul Dent was the winner, Dale McTaggart took the loss. Paul O'Brien collected 3 and led for the winners.

Mulroney Sunoco came up with a 19-3 win over Thurlow, on the pitching of Ian McCutcheon and the batting of Dennis Green, who came through with a triple, a double and two singles.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, June 18

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't make hasty judgments in your work or career. Be cool, get you in a pickle. Wait till all the facts are in.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Because of indifference you're unlikely to take full advantage of a situation that could be beneficial to your work or career.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't put too heavy an emphasis upon having a good time today. If you do, you'll later have to really hustle.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may find yourself in a situation where you'll wrongly feel you'll have to put on few airs to impress others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Shy away from sales types today who tend to greatly exaggerate. Their stories may be fascinating but chances are their products aren't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're still in a good financial cycle. At the same time you tend to be extravagant, making it difficult to show a profit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be your own man today. Don't let others decide what's best. Have the courage of your convictions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's ethical and noble to fairly share gains from joint efforts, but foolish to reward one who had no hand in them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be on situations today where you have to fully depend upon others to carry the ball. He's apt to fumble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It is still possible to achieve your goals, though it won't be as easy as you first anticipated. Keep at it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be very realistic in the way you evaluate situations today. If you spot something wrong, don't kid yourself that it doesn't exist.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) See to it that those you deal with today pick up their fair share of the tab, or your generous nature will take the rap.

Jim Tosses Bid to Partner

Based on this information Jim decided to bid at least six while inviting seven. His four and five notrump guaranteed all aces and asked for kings.

Jim intended to bid seven if Cy showed two kings but Cy scrowed just one. Jim's hand was still too good to settle for six but he could not afford to put pressure on Cy by bidding six hearts.

Cy thought a while. Said to himself: "The king of spades must be the right king. Now my queen of hearts should make seven the right contract."Then he bid the grand slam.

Today's North hold the ideal arms as yesterday's except that it has one more heart and one less diamond. It was held by Cy Dennen of Grand Rapids, Mich., playing in a recent tournament with Jim Jacoby.

In spite of his holding of only nine high-card points Cy wanted to show slam interest opposite Jim's spade opening. He did this by using a Jacoby gadget. His three-heart call followed by four spades guaranteed 10 cards in spades and hearts and a very sound pass.

Marchand's Transport Plans Please Industry Officials

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand Monday made public government plans to improve the national transportation system that will cost users and taxpayers up to $45 billion during the next 15 years.

The most estimate is contained in the new transportation policy tabled in the Commons by Mr. Marchand. Users of transport and shippers will have to pay higher charges to finance massive transport developments.

The policy, officially under development for more than a year, was immediately attacked by opposition members. Jack Horta (PC—Leeds-Grenville) called it a "statement of the obvious" and said the Progressive Conservatives were "disappointed in the outcome."

However, transport industry officials tentatively praised the policy, pledging to co-operate with the government as it is developed beyond the proposals stage.

A meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday to brief transport industry representatives on the federal proposals.

The policy statement, presented one year after Mr. Marchand said his department was "a mess", represents a major shift by the government away from the hands-off policy to transport development it has pursued since 1967. That was when the last major policy revision, resulting in the National Transportation Act, was introduced. It left rate setting and new transport developments largely up to the companies.

Now, the government intends to take back the initiative and will again use transport to shape economic and social development.

For example, part of the policy is a pledge to work with the provinces to develop better transport methods for such remote areas as the North, possibly by subsidized transport.

In his 45-minute speech to the Commons, Mr. Marchand emphasized the government so far has completed only the first phase of a comprehensive review of the national transportation system. Policy could be modified if it does not meet the needs of shippers, carriers, the public and users.

The industry reaction was tentatively favorable. A. C. Morrison, president of the Air Transport Association of Canada, said it was "an important first step in reshaping Canada's transportation system."

Mr. Morrison also welcomed the decision to take policy-making powers away from the regulatory Canadian Transport commission and give them back to the transport minister. This will help avoid some industry complaints about policy, he said.

CP Rail President P. S. Doughty said the proposals "will require some homework" but said the company will co-operate. The policy proposes a series of changes for rail rates, and says across-the-board rail rate increases will be opposed.

The cautious industry reaction partly reflected the questions left unanswered by Mr. Marchand's policy statement. In many ways, the policy is the same as the system operating since 1967.

Mr. Marchand says competition will set rates "where there is real competition." In other areas, government help through subsidies or other means will be provided.

But at a news conference, he refused to specify which regions have "real competition." That will be decided a case-by-case basis by the transport commission, which will issue guides to measure competition, he said.

At any rate, the earliest time at which rate adjustments could be changed to reflect a "users pay" principle for transport services likely would be some time next year, he indicated.

The policy statement does not bring trucking operations under the regulatory umbrella of the Transportation Act. Nor does it change the contentious Crowsnest Pass rail freight rates that have long angered the Prairie provinces.

Trudeau Tells Hees Exports Weak Point

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau blames a fall-off in foreign trade for the decline in the economy this year.

He told George Hees (PC—Northumberland-Hastings) in the Commons Monday that domestic demand had resumed its growth in the first three months of 1975.

Mr. Hees said the economic performance then was the worst in 40 years.

Gross national product, total of all goods and services produced, fell by 1.4 per cent in the first three months.

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) said predictions of real growth made by Finance Minister Turner when he tabled his budget since 1972 had overshot actual figures by a total of 4.6 percentage points. That miscalculation meant $7.1 billion lost to the economy in that time.

Mr. Turner said economic forecasting has proved a difficult act. Predictions had been upset by the quadrupling of the price of foreign oil supplies.

Deficit Climbs

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's international trade deficit rose by $100 million in the first three months of 1975, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

The first quarter deficit increased the total balance of payments deficit to $1.529 billion as of March 31.

Statistics Canada agency said exports were particularly weak, falling six per cent in value in the first quarter compared with the fourth quarter of 1974.

Davis Says Oil Hunt Could Be Stimulated

TORONTO (CP) — Canada can stimulate rapid exploration of energy resources and reduce dependency on offshore supplies without raising the price of oil and natural gas, Ontario Premier William Davis said Monday.

"We need a national energy policy that will stimulate rapid exploration of our energy resources and reduce our dependence on offshore supplies," Mr. Davis said in a speech to the Great Lakes Commission, a United States agency meeting in Toronto.

Then, departing from his text, he said the province believes it "can be done without an increase in the price of oil and natural gas."

Mr. Davis said that speaking for Canada, "we must collectively and individually exercise restraint in our quest for higher wages and higher profits in a time of escalating inflation."

Mr. Davis was applauded when he said: "The last thing Ontario can countenance is an additional levy being placed upon users of the St. Lawrence Seaway."

Mr. Davis said it should be clear Ontario will "continue to protest the very existence of tolls."

Mother Withdraws Bail

TORONTO (CP)) — Police Monday rearrested Lloyd Blake, 18, whose controversial $2,000 bail on a murder charge has raised an uproar here, after his mother withdrew the surety she put up May 28.

Blake is one of three men charged with murder punishable by life imprisonment in the shooting death of taxi driver Gordon Stoddart March 14. The others are Christopher Walker, 18, and Daniel Pearce, 20.

A Supreme Court of Ontario justice granted bail to Blake over the objections of the Crown and Metropolitan Toronto police. A ban on publication of evidence at the two-day hearing was issued.

Freeing Blake brought a protest in the legislature last week from Eddie Sargent (L—Grey-Bruce), and Attorney-General John Clement promised to try to learn the grounds for bail. But the Criminal Lawyers Association of Ontario defended the release.

Decision Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — A decision on whether Dang Van Quang, controversial former South Vietnamese general, can stay in Canada will be made shortly, Immigration Minister Robert Andras told the Commons Monday.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) had asked whether the government has received information from the United States indicating that Gen. Quang was involved in the narcotics trade in South Vietnam.

Mr. Andras replied that the immigration department is looking carefully at all evidence.

Harbor Trial Jury Sees Alleged Bid-rigging Score

HAMILTON (CP) — The Hamilton harbor trial jury got its first look at a "score sheet" Monday when a battered business card was introduced as evidence.

The jury has heard testimony from three dredging industry officials, saying dredging firms regularly practised bid-rigging and kept track of their under-the-tables obligations to each other on pieces of paper they called score sheets.

The business card produced Monday belonged to Robert Schneider, onetime vice-president of Canadian Dredge and Dock Ltd. On the back of the card, scrawled figures recorded more than $100,000 in illicit credits and debits.

Mr. Schneider is one of the Crown's witnesses in the case against former Hamilton harbor commissioner Kenneth Elliott and businessman Reginald Fisher. The two men are charged with 10 counts of conspiracy, fraud and uttering in connection with alleged kickbacks and payoffs on dredging and construction work in the harbor in 1970-71.

Mr. Schneider, Horace (Joe) Rindress, former president of the J. P. Porter Co. Ltd., and Louis Quinlan, a former vice-president of the marine division of McNamara Corp., all have testified to misdealings in connection with the dredging industry.

All three men testified under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act and the Ontario Evidence Act.

The latest witness, Mr. Schneider, was cross-examined Monday about a meeting with Mr. Rindress in 1971.

Mr. Schneider told the court earlier he met Mr. Rindress in Toronto to discuss a dredging project which was to be called by the Hamilton Harbor Commission.

Mr. Schneider's earlier testimony described how he placed a high bid in a 1971 tender call for a federal dredging job in the St. Lawrence River, in return for successful cetnantion of J. P. Porter and McNamara agreed to pay Canadian Dredge two per cent of the gross contract price, or about $400,000.

That sum was the Canadian Dredge score sheet when he met Mr. Rindress, he said.

Mr. Schneider told Malcolm Robb, Elliott's defence counsel, that during the meeting, Mr. Rindress told him he wanted the Hamilton contract for Porter.

The witness said Mr. Rindress also told him there were many cash expenses involved in the contract—$20,000 for each of three commissioners, and an extra $10,000 for George Story's campaign fund.

The witness said he told Mr. Rindress such payments were unnecessary.

However, he told the lawyer, "I perceived it was Mr. Rindress' intention to proceed and I had no influence over him."

Cost of Living Given Teachers

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

By a 68 per cent majority, Hastings County's 510 secondary school teachers have accepted a new one-year contract that will give them a raise of about 26 per cent that could go as high as 28 per cent with the teachers' first negotiated cost-of-living allowance (COLA).

Jerry Daca, chief negotiator for the high school teachers, said today the salary increase represents 22.1 per cent while the actual cost to the board, including fringe benefits, increments and COLA could reach between 26 and 28 per cent. Last year's increase was 12 per cent. The much-sought-after COLA will take effect February, 1976, and will increase the teachers' salaries by one per cent each time the consumer price index jumps one per cent. Secondary school teachers will also receive a $200 increment Jan. 1.

The elementary teachers, who accepted a 26 per cent increase last week, will receive a $400 increment Jan. 1 but failed to negotiate a COLA in their agreement.

Secondary school teachers in category two, which represents about 50 per cent of the county's teachers, will get an average $3,100 raise, the maximum rising from $15,500 last year to $18,600 next year.

Under the new agreement, a starting teacher with minimum qualifications will earn $10,200 in September. A teacher with 11 years experience but with the same minimum qualifications will earn $17,500. With top qualifications and the maximum number of years' experience a teacher would earn $22,600.

Secondary school principals will now earn a minimum of $29,500 in September, up from a minimum of $24,700 last year. The maximum salary range for principals will be raised to $31,900, from $27,200.

The minimum salary for secondary school vice-principals has been raised to $25,000 from $20,800 last year. The maximum salary will be $27,500, up from last year's figure of $23,400.

High school department heads will get $400 more this year while acting department heads will receive $250 more in the new agreement.

Like the elementary school teachers, the secondary school teachers will now have 75 per cent of their OHIP paid compared to about 66 per cent last year. The same increase will apply to group life insurance benefits.

The teachers ratified the contract Monday, when 97 per cent of the teachers participated in the vote.

Tower Crane Complete

More than 100 feet above the sidewalk, steel workers scamper along the boom of the tower crane that will be the "work horse" in construction of Century Place — a $5 million project at the intersection of Front and Bridge Sts. Final adjustments were made to the crane Tuesday. The crane is positioned in such a manner that its boom can swing to any location on the site to draw materials for workers.

Anglicans Reject Union Plan

QUEBEC (CP) — The 27th general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada turned down on Tuesday a plan for union with the United Church of Canada, opting to use the plan as a study document.

The rejection was viewed as a complete loss of years of work spent preparing a compromise plan designed to bring together the Anglican and United Churches of Canada.

Since 1943, the Anglican and United churches have discussed union under the proposed name of the Church of Christ in Canada.

Niagara Gunman Surrenders

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — A doctor helped Niagara regional police talk a gunman into surrendering late Tuesday night after a man held police at bay for 2½ hours in the downtown area.

No injuries were reported.

Police said a special squad was called after neighbors reported shots coming from a house in the area. The area was then sealed off and 10 homes on the street were evacuated and used as cover by police.

Dr. Sebastio Cavarzan talked to a man by telephone from a house across the street, then approached the house. Minutes later, he walked out with a man and took him to hospital.

Police said they did not know how many shots were fired, but said an officer who picked up rounds at the scene filled two pockets with unfired ammunition.

Robert McLean, 47, has been charged by police with dangerous use of a firearm.

No Women Wanted As Kiwanians Here

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

Both Kiwanis Club here have instructed delegates to the upcoming International convention to vote against a proposal to admit women as active members.

In separate meetings, on Monday night and Tuesday afternoon, the membership of the Belleville and Quinte clubs informed the delegates, by voice votes to reject the proposal.

The clubs also announced next week's program for both meetings would be federal government speakers on International Woman's Year, with the Quinte Kiwanis designating the Monday night session women's night.

The designation makes it possible for the members' wives to attend the lecture.

MPs Want PLO Delegates Banned

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals and Progressive Conservatives urged the government Tuesday to refuse to allow Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) delegates to attend United Nations conferences in Toronto and Vancouver.

The PLO, described during the Commons debate on external affairs as a terrorist body, is eligible to attend the conferences because it was granted observer status by the UN last fall.

Although Canada voted against this, the country's record at the UN also came under fire not only from Conservatives but also from a Liberal backbencher.

John Roberts (L—Toronto St. Paul's), urging that Canada not be blackmailed into allowing the PLO entry into the country, used the word nit-picking to describe Canada's record.

"It was Theodore Roosevelt who said that his foreign policy was to walk softly and carry a big stick," Mr. Roberts said.

"Canada in its dealings with the United Nations seems to have adopted a rather different policy, and that is to talk loudly and carry no stick at all," he said.

"We have developed the reputation of being the great abstainer in United Nations decisions."

"Conservative spokesman Claude Wagner (St. Hyacinthe) called Canada's record in New York wishy-washy. He also urged that the government refuse to allow PLO observers at a UN conference on crime in Toronto or a later conference on housing in Vancouver.

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker criticized the government for abstaining at a vote in Geneva last week at which the PLO was granted observer status in the International Labor Organization.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said the government believes Palestinians—the Arabs displaced when Israel was formed in 1948—should have a UN voice in Middle East affairs.

He said, however, the government still is trying to decide whether to allow PLO observers into Canada for the UN meetings.

"Canada is not opening its doors to terrorists," he said. "I believe the record of this government in dealing with terrorism justifies my confidence."

Request for More Inspectors Ignored

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec deputy minister of agriculture said Tuesday a 1973 request to increase the number of meat inspectors in the province in order to curb abuses had been turned down.

Camille Julien, one of four deputy ministers of agriculture, told the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime many other government services had requested additional staff but priorities had to be set in view of budgetary limits.

"Everybody was asking for money," Mr. Julien said.

The inquiry has been hearing testimony that thousands of pounds of meat from dead and sick animals made their way to retail outlets to be sold for human consumption.

Mr. Julien told the inquiry, headed by Judge Jean Dutil, that there were only four inspectors in the province responsible for overseeing meat rendering plants.

Rendering plants obtain meat from dead or diseased animals and process it for pet food and fertilizer products.

Mr. Julien also told the inquiry he did not know the full extent of the illicit trade in tainted meat until recent revelations at the inquiry.

His department had received reports in the past about the trade in bad meat, he said, but he never had "precise information" until now.

Mr. Julien said reports he received about the situation in 1968 and 1973 failed to present the type of precise information the inquiry made public.

Judge Denis Dionne, a member of the three-man inquiry board, said it took police, in cooperation with the agriculture department, only several weeks to uncover the illicit trade.

Earlier Tuesday, the director of provincial inspectors responsible for meat rendering plants told the inquiry the number of such firms in the province should be cut back, to ensure better inspection.

Claude Bergeron said the 58 full-time rendering plants in the province should be reduced to 15.

Aboriginal Rights Come Before Court

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Appeal proceedings against the granting of a caveat covering 400,000 square miles of land in the Northwest Territories began Tuesday.

The caveat, referred to the Northwest Territories Supreme Court for a validity ruling, was filed with the land titles registrar March 24, 1973, by 16 native land leaders.

In October, 1973, Mr. Justice William Morrow of the Northwest Territories Supreme Court, ruled—subject to the decision of a higher court—that the caveat not be registered, but that it be held and all further transactions recorded in case of court action. The federal government department appealed the decision.

Angus Macdonald, Crown counsel acting for the federal government, began his submission by claiming the Crown is rightful owner of all unclaimed land in the Northwest Territories.

Any concessions given to native people have been a matter of governmental policy, not legal rights, and any aboriginal rights were taken away by legislation.

The Crown contended even if Indian land rights exist, they are nothing more than a right to compensation.

Trenton Boeing Refuels Fighters In Training Trip Over North Pole

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A Canadian airforce from CFB Trenton showed the flag over the North Pole today during a refueling exercise involving a Boeing 707 and four fighter planes from CFB Cold Lake, Alberta.

Capt. Wayne Cross, base information officer, said Tuesday the flight over the pole was the first made by a Canadian aircraft.

The fly-over comes in the middle of a week-long training exercise begun Saturday. The 437 Squadron aircraft is due back in Trenton Friday.

Capt. Cross said the fly-over scheduled for 2 p.m. today, will be over the pole, "or as close as the navigator can get them."

The Trenton aircraft is commanded by Capt. Mac McNeel of Belleville. Fourteen other armed forces personnel as well as a number of newsmen, are aboard the flight.

The Boeing will refuel the fighter aircraft over the pole using a special feeder nozzle.

Six Million Dump Sewage In Great Lakes

TORONTO (CP) — More than six million residents of municipalities on the United States side of the Great Lakes are without adequate sewage treatment facilities, a Canadian official of the International Joint Commission (IJC) said Tuesday.

Kenneth A. Oakley of Windsor said, however, this is a great improvement from 1971 when an IJC study showed less than one million persons out of 15 million living on the U.S. shores of the lakes had adequate sewage treatment.

He told the semi-annual meeting of the commission that since then, another eight million persons have received improved facilities. Chicago was not included in the statistics.

Mr. Oakley said 3.25 million of a 4.6-million Ontario residents living on the lakes now receive adequate sewage treatment.

He said although water quality has improved in Ontario since 1971, there are still "hundreds of bad areas" near shores.

Rollins Outlines Benefits For Province's Elderly

Special programs for people over 65 years old are not restricted to Senior Citizens Week, says Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings.

Financial assistance, housing and health care and recreational service and programs function continually through the year, he said in a prepared statement.

The guaranteed annual income program assures all people over 65 in Ontario $2,880.00 for a single person and $5,750.00 for married couples. The Ontario tax credit plan, he explained, helped to offset property taxes and allowed pensioners a credit of $110.00.

Subsidized housing is provided throughout the province and a low-cost nursing home program allows a patient to pay as little as $5.90 a day in any of the province's 400 licensed nursing home, Mr. Rollins said.

Effective August 1, all senior citizens over 65 will receive free prescription drugs and OHIP is given to any who have lived in Ontario for more than a year, he said.

Reduced tuition for universities and colleges is being offered by many institutions, he said, while many senior citizens can take advantage of reduced travel rates on major rail, air and buslines.

Constable Rene Brownlee reported the accident occurred on the 4th concession of Sydney, with $150 damage to the 'bike'.

Traffic Worries Residents

Construction of senior citizens housing near Wellington Crescent has residents of that quiet West Hill street wondering about future traffic problems.

When the units for the elderly are opened, residents can foresee a real hazard and traffic increases, Mrs. John L. Empey has written city hall.

Among solutions she suggested was one-way traffic and parking on one side.

City council's traffic committee requested Chief Douglas Crosbie to examine the situation and make recommendations.

Senior Citizen Centre Haven for Elderly

TRENTON — Less than two years ago, there was not a senior citizens' building in Trenton. Now there is.

In words, the birth and construction of the Trenton Senior Citizens Centre appears simple, but in actual work involved, the task wasn't.

Centre trustee Arthur Bate and senior citizens' club president Harry McKee talked about the erection of the Bay St. building on the occasion of Senior Citizens' Week across Ontario this week.

Worth an estimated $100,000, the 50-by-70-foot building sits overlooking Centennial Park and the Bay of Quinte. The centre, where the 250-member club meets regularly each month, was built during the spring-summer months of 1973.

Nearly all the work was done by a group of 10-15 senior citizens who's names now are emscribed on a red plaque over a brick fireplace in the building.

Only the foundations and exterior brick was laid by outside contractors, said the two men. The ceilings, interior walls, lighting fixtures, were installed by club members.

Impetus for construction is owed to two things, said Mr. McKee. The first was a walk-a-thon in which about $7,000 was raised. Then, the Belleville Yardmen pitched in with a $12,000 donation.

"That's what the building went on," he said.

Now, funds to keep it operating come from such events as bake sales, teas, and sale of quilts during bazaars.

Membership in the club costs $2.00 a year with the only stipulation being that a member must be over 65 years.

The centre is far different from the facility used by the club previously. Club members met in the Orange Hall on Ontario St.

There, said Mr. McKee, one could touch the ceiling and without trying hard, put a finger through it.

Club members have card tournaments, and darts, snooker, and television facilities.

At any one time, said Mr. Bate, about 185 people can participate in any one event in the centre, as opposed to 100 in the Orange Hall. As a result, membership has climbed, with new members joining every month.

The trustee said the Trenton centre, affiliated with the United Senior Citizens of Ontario, in Toronto, is one of the best in the province for a town of Trenton's size.

The club, financially now "on its own entirely" since the end of a New Horizons grant from the federal government.

Free Labor

President Harry McKee pauses in his work and leans on a rake to talk about Trenton Senior Citizens Club activities at the club's centre on Bay St. The building was built mostly by volunteers and this week the president filled in a dangerous slope beside the building with several loads of dirt.

'Pipe Dream' Becomes Province-wide Show

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Described as "a pipe dream" by its skeptics in 1969, the annual Prince Edward Spring Horse Show has expanded to become eastern Ontario's premier indoor show.

Co-sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club and the Prince Edward Agricultural Society this pipe dream was started primarily through the efforts of Christopher Lockyer, a Picton florist.

Mr. Lockyer recalled Tuesday in 1969 he visited the County Centre with George Atkinson, a Hi-long horse enthusiast. Mr. Atkinson suggested he would like to see an indoor horse show held at the arena and urged Mr. Lockyer to consider the idea.

Initial response was poor with only four persons turning out to the first meeting called by Mr. Lockyer to discuss an indoor show.

He refused to forget what several termed "a pipe dream" and continued to promote plans. More and more horsemen became interested and attended meetings to investigate the project.

Mr. Lockyer approached the Picton Kiwanis Club and won their support of the show as a community project.

He noted that he was the only Kiwanian at that time who owned show ponies and his fellow club members were "somewhat hesitant" about backing the venture.

All apprehensions disappeared following the first show held in 1969. It was a one-night program that started at 4.30 p.m. and continued until well past midnight. Mr. Lockyer termed it "an overwhelming success."

Organizers immediately realized the show should be expanded and in 1971 a two-night program was planned.

At western games and hunter and jumper classes were added the show lengthened to a three-day event.

This weekend the Prince Edward Spring Horse Show will be presented for the 18th time with many of the original organizers and promoters still active.

Quebec Grits Favor Grass Roots Fund-raising Rather than Corporate Gifts

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Corporate donations to political parties have been one of the unsavory aspects of Canadian business life.

The more politicians stop expecting such gifts and corporations stop coming up with them, the better.

And the recent action of the general council of the Quebec wing of the federal Liberal Party is an excellent move in that direction.

The federal Liberals of Quebec, voted to stop refunds for funds or gifts from corporations, and on fund-raising dinners designed to wring contributions out of executives.

The council's resolution said that party financing should come instead from the grass roots. That would have it up to the party associations in the individual ridings to drum up the money they need to maintain the party machinery and run election campaigns.

Recent changes in legislation will encourage this trend in that direction: Individuals may deduct modest political contributions from their taxable income, serious election candidates are eligible for government subsidies, and political parties are entitled to free time on TV during campaigns.

The present Canadian practice of corporate donations may be lamented, but it is realistic.

After all, anyone who is talented enough to be a senior executive of a major corporation should also be talented enough to know that you don't try to buy the support of federal politicians.

But even though it may be innocent, the practice looks fishy to foreigners.

For example, General Motors Corp.—the world's largest business enterprise—has spent identical donations to Canada's two biggest political parties, said Chairman Thomas A. Murphy would only describe as "long in the figures."

"We want to be a Canadian company in Canada, and respect their laws and tradition," he told a questioner at the GM annual meeting in Detroit.

"We are only expressing the political system as it operates in that country."

In no other country did GM make political donations last year, he disclosed.

Certainly there's nothing unique about GM's donations—and the corporation deserves credit for its frankness in telling them.

Most business executives in Canada would dearly love to see an end to the system under which they are compelled to demonstrate their "good corporate citizenship" not only with a cheque in favor of the party but also through contributions of kind—for example, the loan of corporate aircraft to the campaigning party bigwig.

And businessmen of labor organizations would probably be happy to be able to make contributions to the party of Big Labor.

The federal government has finally passed amendments to the Elections Act, which it first proposed in 1966, to encourage small contributions and to require identification of the source of any political donation of more than $100.

And its Liberal organization in Quebec has set a good example for other political associations to follow.

Those other groups should waste no time in clearing the air by putting a stop to the solicitation of corporate and kind donations.

The old system has, for too long, diminished the stature of Parliament and even of Canada itself.

Ravages of Inflation

There is little confidence in paper money in this inflationary era. There is little to save and people are spending what they do have. Bonds too, subject to deteriorating value as inflation worsens, are also being converted into cash for spending while the going is good.

As columnist Vincent Egan noted recently, apropos the instability of the stock market, investors "appear to be giving up on stocks in particular, and on the concept of saving in general."

The inflation rate varies, from a low of something like 6 per cent in West Germany to 20 per cent or more in Britain, but life goes on, and as expensively — and expansively — as ever.

People travel the world from such cradle-to-the-grave welfare states as New Zealand knowing government benefits will cushion them lately on retirement.

Then, for a lesson on how to really live with inflation, consider The Argentine. A banker returning to Buenos Aires from a business trip to the United States, told a New York Times reporter he had to laugh when Americans talked about inflation. He said the Argentines were "years ahead in understanding and coping with inflationary spirals."

This in a country in which an item which cost 100 pesos in 1960 now is selling for more than 5,000 pesos. And it's business as usual in Buenos Aires, with theatres and restaurants crowded, and stores carrying on a brisk trade.

More than any other people too, according to The Times article, the Argentines have learned not to mistake their paper currency for wealth. They invest their money in durable goods. But there may be trouble on the horizon, as the working class respond to steep rises in living costs with big wage demands.

Britain is another country which by every economic standard should have folded long ago, but a reading of the specifics from any journal of business and information from that country is to find that Britain is still a substantial, if no longer a great, trading nation.

Insuring Against It

Prince Edward-Hastings MP George Hees has brought up an interesting point in the Commons relative to inflation.

It was in the form of a question to Industry, Trade and Commerce minister Alastair Gillespie and it evinced an equivocal answer from the minister as well as a good deal of the banter that invariably accompanies an exchange between Mr. Hees and the Government.

Mr. Hees wanted to know if it was the government's intention to follow the example of Britain, France, Italy, and Japan "in making it possible for our exporters to buy inflation insurance to be used on contracts where the customer is willing only to place a fixed price bid, and thereby make it possible for our exporters to go after a very deal of this business, which at the present time they are forced to pass up?"

When Mr. Gillespie replied that the matter was under "active consideration" and that he hoped to be able to make an announcement in due course, Mr. Hees jumped in again with a query as to why the government "has always to lag so far behind our competitors in introducing these progressive measures. . ."

This brought from the minister the observation that the measures concerned in his view "would not be in accordance with the spirit of the undertaking or the 'gentlemen's agreement' reached last September after the IMF (International Monetary Fund) series of meetings. If you are going to make an International-system work it seems to me you have to work internationally."

This was a typically parliamentary answer that might well explain why indeed Canada is missing the boat in a hard competitive world, and why the dialogue then dissolved into banter with Mr. Hees, and as he so often does, having the last word:

"Mr. Speaker, in view of the fact our exports have been falling and our imports have been rising rapidly, and I have reference to those people of other countries who have been doing trade to Canada, does the minister not feel that everybody is out of step but Alastair?"

The Great What's It

World Wheat Production Drops But Demand for it Also Down

Canada-Japan News Letter

World wheat production in 1974-75 was recently re-estimated to be 346,600,000 tons or 3,000,000 tons less than the original estimate of January this year. The change was made due to a short-fall in USSR and Argentina production. Despite this decrease in production, a falling-off in world demand during 1974-75, the supply situation improved, according to the Economic Branch of the Department of Agriculture, as reported in a recent issue of the Alberta Wheat Pool's "Budget."

Planting intentions of Canadian farmers indicate an increase in Canadian supplies in 1975-76. If they, in fact, plant the indicated area of 25.1 million acres, and if yield averages 25 bushels per acre, 1975 production should be 625 million bushels. With an estimated carry-over of 330 million bushels, Canada's wheat supplies should climb to about 955.5 million bushels.

With weakening world demand and lowering prices, Canadian farmers are caught between steadily increasing production costs and softening prices. In addition to rising prices of fertilizer, farm machinery and other production inputs, wheat farmers have had to swallow a hay-maker charge stemming from port holdups due to labor trouble in Pacific and other ports. According to the Canadian Wheat Board, these amounted to some $3.5 million from the start of the 1974-75 crop year to December 17, 1974.

In addition to cutting Western grain producers money, the stoppages have cost overseas markets. It was necessary to re-schedule 32 cargoes of wheat destined for Japan, indicating inability to catch up with the three-month supply missed during strikes last year.

In the meantime, Japan bought alternative supplies from U.S. and Australian sources. Approximately 18 million bushels of wheat and 3 million bushels of barley will be delivered at the end of this crop year.

Gordon Harold, chairman of the advisory committee of the Alberta Wheat Pool, saw nothing significant in terms of both of Canada's reputation and the price at which the delayed grain may eventually be sold. The Port of Vancouver was out of operation one-third of the time since August 1, 1974.

Ulster Counts its Dead As The Feuding Continues

By KEVIN DOYLE

ARMAGH, Northern Ireland (CP) — Jean Gallagher sits two feet away with her three children in a stuck-together housing estate in this shattered, ancient city, known only to her close friends and relatives.

But Jean Gallagher remembers with indescribable bitterness a hot August night in 1969 when her home suddenly became known to thousands after her husband, John, became the first person to die in Ulster's current sectarian war. After that there was no turning back.

She remembers walking with him that evening to a civil rights rally in the city centre, growing bored with the speeches and leaving for home early.

"But then there was some trouble, some of the lads throwing stones and that, and after a while I got worried about John and I went out to look for him.

"When I found him he said he'd be home soon and I tried to make my way back to the house. But the shooting started. I ran back but he was gone. I asked the people if they'd seen him. They just shrugged.

It was already too late. John Gallagher died in the ambulance on the way to hospital with a bullet through his heart. He was hit when Ulster security forces opened fire on some rioters.

Less than an hour after nine-year-old Patrick Rooney was shot through the head he sat in his bedroom in the Divis Flats area of Belfast, victim of a stray bullet fired by security forces at rioters in the Roman Catholic area outside.

Two others were killed the same night and in the space of three days hopes for establishing a just social system for both Catholics and Protestants in Ulster were demolished.

Only a year before there had appeared to be a genuine effort that substantial reforms of local government would be instituted to give the minority Catholics a fair share in government and welfare and to break the iron dominance of the majority Protestant Ulster Unionist Party.

The Catholic civil rights movement, led by the young Bernadette Devlin, had already gone some way to effecting significant electoral changes in the electoral system and in discriminatory practices, heavily slanted in favor of Protestants.

But the changes were too little and too late. The leadership of the civil rights movement gradually passed to the extremist Irish Republican Army. The Protestant strategies became more violent and the Protestants reacted in kind.

The turning point came with the first deaths July 21, 1969. Since then the number of British soldiers in Ulster has increased to more than 15,000 from 2,000. The Protestant-dominated Ulster Parliament was dissolved and the direct rule imposed from Westminster.

An Ulster executive council, set up in 1973 with the aim of sharing government equitably between Catholics and Protestants, collapsed within six months when extreme Protestants, organized at what they considered a "sellout," brought Ulster life to a halt with a general strike.

As a result, moderate Protestant leaders such as former Premier Brian Faulkner were discredited and gave ground to the radicals.

The latest attempt by the British government to bring a semblance of order to North Ireland looks the form of holding elections to a constitutional conference to devise a new system of government acceptable to Protestants and Catholics.

It, too, proved abortive when the final returns showed that the convention will be dominated overwhelmingly by extreme Protestants, implacably opposed to sharing any real power with Catholics.

It is almost certain to fail in its fundamental aim of the bitterness, which has grown steadily since 1969 and was severely exacerbated by the introduction of internment without trial for suspected terrorists in 1971, seems doomed to deepen.

The cost in human lives and suffering since the death of John Gallagher is already high. Nearly 900 civilians have died, military and police officials have been killed along with 240 British soldiers.

"There is no joy in Northern Ireland," said Gallagher's widow, "only death."

Given the general expectation that the constitutional convention will collapse, the British government now is considering several choices on the future of Ulster. None seems especially palatable here and a breakdown in the so-called IRA ceasefire, among other dangers, is a possibility.

At the moment, the only safe prediction seems to be that violence will continue at least in the near future. And there is a nagging feeling in many quarters here that the British may finally have to give up, withdraw their troops, grant some form of independence, tolerate a prolonged civil war and let events take their course.

New Member for Oxford County Rolls Out Maiden Speech in Old Tradition

By F. W. GROVER
for RICHARD JACKSON
on vacation

OTTAWA — Excerpts from Hansard.

Oxford is situated in the heart of southwestern Ontario. Interestingly enough the village of Tavistock where I live is probably farther from a significant body of water than any other municipality in Ontario. It is hard to admit, sir, that we do sit on the edge of the headwaters of the James River which, although it may dry up in the summer, develops into a significant river . . . as it crosses on through the riding towards London . . . Although cheese making was carried on in the very early days by pioneer settlers, the first cheese factory in Canada was established in 1863 near Norwich in Oxford . . .

And so on and on for several more paragraphs.

Canada is struggling with double-digit inflation and Canadians hope that Parliament might do something about it. The oil industry is trying to find new energy resources so we won't be back to the horse and buggy age within the decade. Grain farmers are wondering how long they can expect record high world prices and livestock farmers are wondering how long they can afford to feed their animals with feed grains commanding $3 a bushel. And half the people in the world are wondering where their next meal is coming from.

How then does a Member of Parliament — one of that exclusive group of 264 chosen to run the country — have the temerity to bore his fellow legislators and the Hansard reporters with idle chatter about his particular part of the country?

Tradition.

Despite the debunking of red tape by the "now" generation, tradition still plays a big part in the operations on Parliament Hill. Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau didn't kill it with his sandals and ascot and Minister Pierre Trudeau hasn't killed it with his stooping to gutter language from the lips of some Tory opponents.

Dr. Dean Wallday, the rocky Conservative MP for Oxford, pointed out that his respected predecessor, the late Wally Nesbitt, had been there so long that it was 21 years since the Commons had heard a maiden speech from the member for Oxford.

His speech was in the tradition of Parliamentary maiden speeches; and the logic of his main argument — after he had completed his paean of praise to Oxford County — was no further than that given in speeches by some of the veterans on the Hill. By the time a fellow has been reached its second last day, there is not much left to say and too many MPs are in the chamber to hear it anyway.

Unfortunately, fuzzy thinking shows through in too many speeches in the Commons. Reading Hansard can be a frustrating experience for anyone who hopes to find some clear national policy direction coming from his elected representatives.

Dr. Halliday's is a good example. He gives the rural community high marks for its stability and productivity and pleads with the Minister of Transportation minister of inconsistent policies. He accuses the government of taking the money off funds for medical research and then raps the government for wanting a cradle-to-the-grave health care.

Dr. Halliday then inserts that traditional complaint about the loss of transportation. Apparently the transportation companies are losing money on commuter running trains and buses several times a day to serve the needs of people who live the rest of the populace skim around Southern Ontario in their automobiles.

The new MP clearly touched all political bases in his first speech. He pleaded for stability and productivity and pleaded with the Minister of Transportation policies. He accuses the government of taking the money off funds for medical research and then raps the government for wanting a cradle-to-the-grave health care.

Dr. Halliday then inserts that traditional complaint about the loss of transportation. Apparently the transportation companies are losing money on commuter running trains and buses several times a day to serve the needs of people who live the rest of the populace skim around Southern Ontario

Empty Foxboro School Interests Separate Board

The Hastings-Prince Edward County Separate School Board is going to take a look at the old Foxboro Public School in hopes it could be renovated and used as a temporary building.

The public school, built in 1960 with a later addition, will be empty at the end of this month and the students attending here will join others in the area to form the new student population at Foxboro Senior Elementary School.

Band Approved

By this time next year the Hastings-Prince Edward County Separate School Board may be entertained by a 50-piece musical band from Nicholson Catholic College — one it gave birth to Tuesday night.

The board's music man, William Long, appeared before the trustees Tuesday to gain acceptance for a new musical program that will introduce a more comprehensive musical education to students as well as set up a band at Nicholson.

Mr. Long told trustees the program has already attracted 125 students, in Grade 7 to 12, to join the band. He said the instruments will cost about $6,000.

Mr. Long said all schools will be supplied with a pre-band training course, including study of instruments like a recorder. The program is scheduled to begin September.

The board approved the program and also hired as its musical director Arden Lewis for the purpose of teaching instrumental music to students.

Children of the Fifties Surrounded by Stability

By JUDY CREIGHTON
The Canadian Press

Growing up surrounded by middle-class values in the 1950s in Winnipeg may induce a yawn from say, one who was raised during the frantic, more liberalized days of the 1960s.

Melinda McCracken must have had an inkling of this when she wrote Memories are Made of This—reflecting on her own childhood and teen-age years.

She has produced a work that relies heavily on the 1957 yearbook of her alma mater Churchill high school for its content, but also gives a cleverly crafted insight into a nostalgic era, at least to a younger generation.

Miss McCracken describes her neighborhood in minute detail, as if the terrain, people, institutions and style of living are somewhat unique.

Yet anyone who grew up in Canada in the 1950s will be able to identify their own early years.

Children of the 1950s were, according to the author, surrounded by stability and community. The British Empire still was intact in this country. There was a yen for peace and a more settled existence among parents who had survived the ravages and instability of the Second World War.

Home and community was a ballast, not necessarily against any outside fear. It demonstrated itself in the solidarity of belief in family, church and institutions.

Milli McCracken writes: "It was hard for Riverview (her community) kids to be anything but wholesome. There was little around that wasn't good. Kids had no responsibilities. They were what parents were raising, and parents did most things for them. Kids were protected from practically everything.

Next to a young girl's security of family and school were the bonds she held with her friends, which individually for Miss McCracken continue today.

The girls and boys who made up the crowd also came from agreeable homes. All joined either the girl guides or boy scouts.

Their fun consisted of tobogganing through the long, harsh Winnipeg winters, listening to the Jack Benny show on radio and reading Looney Toons and Merrie Melodies comic books.

Moving into their teen-age years, American capital and culture started to pour into Canada and brought to the young what the author styles "appeared to be the source of all good things, things that were magical and ingenious and fun."

Although they continued to raise their families on solid foundations, attend church and serve their communities, parents were seeing a change. As the standard of living escalated they began to accumulate possessions. Children were also regarded as possessions.

"There was just too much of a good thing," she writes. The security of marriage, a warm house, health, of youth of good people to help you, of father's job and mother's love filled the air like cotton batting.

She adds there was the security of public morality forbidding mention of sex, violence or bad language.

Miss McCracken's photographic memory exposes events that shaped the lives of Canadians now approaching their middle years.

In fact one of the most touching segments in the book which reveals her solid background comes at the close when she lists each member of her class of '57 and tells what they have achieved 18 years later.

Memories are Made of This, Melinda McCracken; $8.95; 118 pages; James Lorimer and Co. (Canada)

E. G. Perrault's Spoil! is the latest of a line of Canadian novels about Canada's petroleum resources and the American need to share in them.

But Perrault quickly leaves the theme of multinational corporations and international dealings to focus on the life of one man.

Ian Danelock is one of those Canadian engineers who have won prestige by bringing in oil wells all over the earth. Now he is vice-president in charge of Arctic exploration for High Arctic Enterprises.

But, near the peak of his career, his wife leaves him because has spent more time with oil wells than with his family.

Danelock's real mistress is B-16, High Arctic's exploration well about 300 miles from the North Pole. When B-16 blows in and runs wild, it creates a turning-point in Danelock's life.

Spoil! E. G. Perrault; $7.95; 253 pages; Doubleday (Canada) Ltd.

MacBeth in Making

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

A survey of 38,000 Belleville and area households has shown pool and indoor tennis facilities are priorities for the proposed Quinte Sports Centre, a spokesman for the Fund said Tuesday.

Ernie Belanger said during a telephone interview: "There hasn't been an official count of the returned questionnaires (mailed out a month ago) but the response seems to have been very good. Only two responses said we don't need the centre."

For the last three years the benefit fund has been operating in Pulitzer to gather funds for the multi-million-dollar project in the located Canifton Rd. City council in an effort to aid the project sold approximately 30 acres of land by the organization at a token price of on dollar an acre.

"About six per cent of the questionnaires were returned to us . . . a return rate we consider excellent," said Mr. Belanger.

While a covering letter circulated with the questionnaire states the national figure skating association of Canada "has agreed to use the arena for its summer training program," Association secretary-manager Douglas Gunter said "we've made no commitment."

Mr. Gunter said several meetings have been held but: "We don't know what the costs will be yet. We've made no commitments but we'll consider it."

If the association does use the facility it would mean 100 of Canada's top competitive skaters and coaches will live in Belleville for two months of the summer. "It is a possibility," said Mr. Gunter.

Mr. Belanger said: "It is up to them whether they come or not. They don't have to use the facility. It's immaterial to us."

"We've had favorable correspondence and that's all I can say," he said.

Mr. Belanger said because of the demonstrated interest in tennis the Yardmen will reconsider the six outdoor, tennis courts and investigate inclusion of an indoor surface. "We may make the tennis program a little more elaborate."

Whatever plans the Yardmen have for the centre, the immediate fate of the $6-million ice surface and swimming pool is in the hands of city council. Without municipal blessings and ownership the project will not be eligible for provincial and federal government financial support.

At the end of May a closed meeting was held between representatives of the benefit fund and provincial and federal governments.

Following that meeting Mayor Robin Jeffrey refused to make any comment concerning her talks with the other groups and said "full disclosure of the meetings proceedings will come in June."

City Alderman Ben Corke speculated disclosure would come at the last council meeting of the month — June 23.

Point Anne Quarry Resumes Production

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Industry has returned to Point Anne.

A quarry that once fed the operation of the now-abandoned Canada Cement-Lafarge Co. is being reworked in a gravel-grinding operation that's expected to stay— and grow in productivity.

Currently the Point Anne Quarry Co. is shipping out an estimated 8,000 tons of crushed stone aggregate a week, estimates plant superintendent Pat Campeau.

But "this is peanuts compared to what it's going to be," predicts Mr. Campeau.

The company is the aggregate division of Standard Industries of Toronto, which in turn is a subsidiary of Canada Cement-Lafarge.

Standard produces paving supplies, including ready mixes.

Canada Cement finally phased out its Point Anne operation two years ago, abandoning the area for a new plant using up-to-date production processes near Bath.

The Point Anne plant site still is being demolished.

The quarry company began operations last month and now employs 27-including 23 hourly paid workers.

Its crushed-stone right now is being moved to Toronto by rail— at present the volume runs to two 60-car trains a week, said Mr. Campeau.

But much of future production should remain locally as the company's presence becomes known and demand grows, indicates the official.

Although it's impossible to predict future potential — for production, demand and jobs — at this stage, Point Anne Quarry Co. is not planned as a temporary operation, he emphasizes.

"We're going to be long-lasting and — really well developed in here."

The operation — "to get it going — at present is using crushing equipment at the old cement plant to ground down the quarried stone, says Mr. Campeau.

But new machinery will be moved in later to grind out what's expected to be a growing volume of production.

Meanwhile, razing of the old Canada Cement plant — demolition started in early 1974 — continues, under contract to an United States company, Standard Machines and Equipment.

Much of the bulky plant equipment already has been sold and shipped to a company in the Caribbean's Dominican Republic.

Some 18 men are still managing demolition equipment and work may be finished by the end of the year, a supervisor said Tuesday.

Canada Cement earlier demolished many of the 150 houses in the Point Anne community — a factory village that dated from the first decade of the century when cement was first produced in the area.

Bus Driver Fined

MADOC — A 55-year-old school bus operator pleaded in provincial court here on Wednesday to a charge of impaired driving.

William Joseph Murphy, of RR 3 Havelock was fined $200.

Murphy was charged Thursday, June 12, following complaints from parents of school students.

Constable Bob Boolar of the Madoc detachment of the OPP stopped the bus being operated erratically and stopped it on the old Norwood Rd. near Marmora. Another driver was then brought in to continue the route.

Corke Urges Sidewalks For Busy Bell Blvd.

Concern for pedestrian safety — a busy, developing northend Belleville thoroughfare was expressed Tuesday by acting mayor Ad. Ben Corke.

The street is Bell Blvd. Backing the Quinte Mall, which plans both commercial expansion and apartment development along the route.

Bell also links North Front St., highway's link to Sidney Street, gradually being converted over the years for four-lane traffic in an area of residential and industrial growth.

Ald. Corke at a city hall traffic committee meeting emphasized the need for sidewalks along Bell where the mall's developer — Cambridge Leaseholds — is also planning two apartment towers.

"I think the pedestrian is overlooked in that area," he said.

Ald. Arthur Keegan agreed that "although"

The acting mayor said he feels an expression of "great concern should be made to council about the absence of walkways — particularly on the south side of Bell where the apartments are proposed across from Cambridge's shopping centre.

He said in future there should be sidewalks along Bell from Lemoine St. to North Front.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie also noted that if there were children resident in the area "I'm sure they would have to walk to North Front to reach area schools.

The remarks came as the committee aired reactions of city engineer Joe Angelo on a consultant's traffic projections along Bell with the mall expansion.

Consultant Damas and Smith's proposals called for widening of Bell to four lanes parallel to the new development — as now exists with the present mall. Then the road would taper into two lanes.

But no projection for through traffic has been made, said Mr. Angelo.

He therefore recommended the committee consider extension of the four-lane route the entire length of Cambridge property — about 1,000 feet — down to Lemoine. The committee agreed.

Hurst Requires Surgery

Donald Turner of Prospect Hill, Trenton will face a lengthy period of enforced bodily harm in provincial court here June 23, city Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today.

The charge came as a result of a brawl which followed a minor league lacrosse game at Dick Ellis Rink June 2 in which a Belleville youth Robert Hurst had his nose broken in three places. It was incorrectly stated in the Tuesday edition of this paper that Mr. Hurst faced a charge of assault.

Mr. Hurst will undergo surgery on his nose today in Belleville General Hospital, his father said during an interview.

Chief Crosbie said Turner voluntarily appeared at the police station to be served with the warrant Tuesday.

Books His Business

Ready to buy and sell used paperbacks or magazines, Richard Kulbach is the newest store proprietor on Front Street. The 23-year-old owner of Adanac Used Books, below the Upper Bridge, opened his store Tuesday and made a few sales even before he had his 10,000 books and magazines on display.

Hospital Classes Teach Patients How to Breathe

Imagine, if you can, running as hard as possible for ten city blocks, stopping to catch your breath and not being able to, actually choking.

Difficult concelve?

How about beginning short of breath tying your shoelace.

Many people suffering from respiratory diseases such as emphysema and asthma are being shown new ways to cope with breathing difficulties at the Belleville General Hospital.

Under the guidance of hospital physiotherapists, people who are chronic sufferers of respiratory disease are being taught breathing control and relaxation, and body conditioning.

The four-week course, sponsored by the Hastings Prince Edward Lung Association is divided into two parts.

During the first half-hour the students listen to guest lecturers talk about breathing processes, muscle functions and explain respiratory.

Following the session they move across the hall to the BGH's physiotherapy department.

It is in physiotherapy where staff worker teach them the exercises that will allow them to follow relatively normal lifestyles.

One 65-year-old man said the reason he was not participating in the activities was he had just finished playing 18 holes of golf that afternoon.

"The best thing for me was I began to understand what what was happening and to try and control my muscles rather than be afraid," he said.

One woman said that she has just learned to accept the fear, it will probably never leave her, but the exercises have helped her relax and ride the crisis or stress situation causing the breathing difficulties.

The program continues for one more week and people interested in future projects should contact the Hastings Lung Association.

Cast iron and wood slat park benches from France were original garden furniture at Glanmore House, Hastings County Museum, when its builder, J. P. C. Phillips lived there more than a century ago. Two have been restored and now sit on the front lawn of the Bridge St. E historical centre. Restoration was underwritten by the former Women's Canadian Club of Belleville and the benches were presented to the museum at Tuesday's meeting of the Hastings County Historical Society. New Report Cards Easier to Understand

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Separate school report cards next year should be easier to understand with the introduction of a new system that will attempt to compare a student's effort and achievement.

The Hastings-Prince Edward County Separate School Board Tuesday night approved three new report cards for junior, primary and intermediate levels that will do away with marks and attempt to give a more clear picture of a student's progress to his or her parents.

The report cards were developed out of a special committee, consisting of teachers, principals and parents, exploring new ways of reporting on student progress.

Now the report cards rate progress on an excellent, good, satisfactory, tries hard and needs more effort basis and also attaching a percentage mark.

The new report cards eliminate percentage marks, maintains the same descriptive categories but also adds an effort and achievement column whereby the teacher can rate these two factors.

The committee has also reworded much of the existing report card language so that the average parent can begin to understand his or her student's progress.

The new cards were not passed without some major objection from trustee Michael Collins. He told the fellow trustees that by eliminating marks it will be difficult to award various prizes for academic achievement.

Belleville trustee Lillian O'Connor replied by saying a good teacher can always tell who the top students are in the class without too much difficulty. She said the eliminating of marks will help to reduce some tension that exists for those students who achieve low or high marks.

Mrs. O'Connor maintained that these students often suffer embarrassment and ridicule from other students.

Trustee Herbert Brown also said he objected to the new report cards on the grounds that marks would be eliminated.

Trustee Paul Wall said the board may get lots of feedback next fall when it is introduced.

Parking Draws Complaint

City police will investigate the possibility of prohibiting parking on Ann St.

The move follows a complaint Tuesday to city council's traffic committee from Reg. N. Pringle, 291 Ann St.

Mr. Pringle complained parking on the narrow street had grown to such proportions he feared problems in an emergency.

Parking already is limited to one side of Ann south of East Bridge St. he said, and suggested the rule be extended since it is "rarely needed in our area."

Car Rolls, Driver Hurt

MADOC — A 27-year-old Trenton man was admitted to Belleville General Hospital Tuesday night after the car he was driving went off the road, rolled over three times and caught fire, on Highway 62, 25 miles north of here.

Mr. Wilfred Wood is reported in satisfactory condition after receiving numerous cuts to his head and back.

Constable Bill Reid, of the Madoc Detachment of the OPP, said Mr. Wood, alone at the time, lost control of his car and skidded 100 feet in the ditch.

Damage to the car is estimated at $1,500.

Merchant Hopes Demand Heavy for Used Books

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

The newest business in town specializes in used merchandise.

Used books and magazines are the basic stock in trade of Richard Kulbach who opened the Adanac (Canada backwards) Books, Confectionery and Tobacco Store on Front St. just south of the Upper Bridge on Tuesday.

Used paperbacks and magazines will be the backbone of his business, if Richard's plans work out. On the opening day, amid a scene of organized chaos, he estimated he had a stock of 10,000 of his staples on hand.

How did he get them? "By word of mouth, exactly. If people know where they can get rid of an accumulation of books or magazines they don't want, word gets around."

His price for buying paperbacks is from a nickel to 40 cents, depending on original price and condition. He'll sell them for half the price printed on the cover. There are some specials, though. The Harlequin series of romances go for five for a dollar and "remainbered" books — withdrawn from retailers after their allotted time on their shelves, but with their front covers torn off — go for a flat quarter.

Richard Kulbach has spent "half his 23 years in Belleville and has worked at a number of jobs. He decided he wanted to be his own boss.

"I don't want to be a number in somebody's head office file." As a single man and sole proprietor of Adanac, the risk is all his, he figures.

Although books are basic, Richard offers the usual smoke shop standards — candy, tobacco and pop — as well as jacket and jean patches and Montreal Expo souvenirs, for which he is an official agent.

Richard makes no bones about having a "good selection of skin magazines" but "it won't go for the under-the-counter stuff — too many hassles," he says.

And, for those who don't have any interest in the above books or magazines, trades can be made — usually on the basis of your two for his one.

Rush-hour Route Prompts Petition

City council will be asked Monday night to temporarily abolish a rush-hour route near the city's main industrial area following a protest from businessmen in the zone.

Custodians To Pick Night Jobs

Separate school custodians separately don't dodge board policy but they do carry enough clout to change policy towards community use of schools.

The Hastings-Prince Edward County Separate School Board Tuesday night struck a compromise with its custodians by allowing them the option of staffing evening events themselves or hiring someone else.

Last month the custodians asked the board to disallow community use of schools during religious or winter breaks, or on the eve of day of a statutory holiday, with the exception of educational or religious use.

Belleville trustee Paul Fleming, who then supported the request, said a survey showed a majority of custodians did not want to work at those times.

"The custodian may provide either of the services (supervision or cleaning) at his discretion, but in a situation where extensive clean-up is required, he will have the option of obtaining additional assistance to this clean-up," explained Mr. Fleming, who has also claimed the separate school board here has one of the most liberal policies toward community use of schools in the province.

City hall's traffic committee Tuesday sent the recommendation to council — on the suggestion of acting mayor Ald. Ben Corke — after reading a petition circulated from commercial enterprises on the north side of East Bridge St., near The Four Corners.

The petition stems from a temporary parking ban ordered by the committee last month on the opposite side of the street. The ban came after safety hoardings were erected there to the curbside around the Century Place office-commercial project now under way.

Store keepers and office managers protested the loss of parking as detrimental to business.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said he sympathized with the businessmen. But police observations showed the rush-hour route — along the north-side of the street — was required until about 5.30 p.m. Any change could also be complicated by the fact materials now may turn left into one-way Front St. traffic, thus causing possible backups.

Walkway Gets New Fence

City council's traffic committee Tuesday moved to eliminate complaints that involved vandalism at a walkway in northeast Belleville.

The walkway runs from Reynolds Cresc. to North Park St.

A recommendation that the walkway be fenced and bollie posts built at each end to keep out motorcyclists was approved by council in 1974. The $2,000 needed was added to the 1975 budget, the committee was reminded in a memo from the office of city manager Wilbur Purcell.

Spectacular Strawberry Recipes Open the Season

We all welcome fresh strawberries on the market at they herald the fresh fruit season to come. They're sweet, juicy and downright delicious just as is. But these special desserts perfectly realize the promise inherant in the appearance of these bright berries.

First comes a real show-stopper — sweetened, sliced strawberries wrapped in a lacy thin pancake. Prepare the crepes ahead, then simply fill, roll and bake for serving with whipped cream or sour cream.

The strawberry flan looks like it came from an elegant French restaurant or patisserie, but you can easily make it in your own kitchen. Press the melt-in-your-mouth shortbread pastry right in the pan. Circle rips of red strawberry halves to cover the creamy cheese filling and finish with a glistening jelly glaze.

Grand Marnier enhances the flavour of beautiful berries nestled between layers of airy sponge cake in the Strawberry Tipsy Loaf. A golden custard sauce blankets the masterpiece while a few fresh berries add the crowning touch.

The remaining recipes are more mundane — but just as tasty.

Strawberry Crepes

1½ cups sifted all purpose flour
one tbsp granulated sugar
½ tsp salt
three eggs
1¾ cups milk
two tbsp melted butter or margarine
three cups sliced strawberries, sweetened to taste

Preheat a heavy 5-inch frypan and brush with melted butter. Blend flour, sugar and salt together. Beat eggs, stir in milk, then gradually add liquid to dry ingredients, beating until smooth. Blend in butter. Cover and chill at least one hour.

Pour about two tbsp of batter in preheated pan and tip to coat with a thin layer. When brown, turn to brown the other side. Generously spoon a row of strawberries in centre of crepe, roll up and arrange in ovenproof dish.

Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 8 to 10 minutes, or until heated through. Dust with icing sugar. Serve with whipped cream or sour cream, if desired. Makes 24 crepes.

Press in Pastry:
one cup cake and pastry flour
two tbsp sifted icing sugar
½ cup soft butter or margarine

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Blend flour and icing sugar together. Cream butter and gradually blend in flour mixture. Press dough evenly into a 9-inch flan ring or pie plate. Chill 15 minutes.

Bake in preheated 425 degree oven for 8 to 10 minutes, or until lightly browned. Cool.

Filling:
one package (4 ounces) cream cheese
¼ cup sifted icing sugar
½ tsp vanilla
one cup heavy cream
1½ pints fresh strawberries, hulled and halved
¼ cup red currant jelly
two tbsp lemon juice

Beat cream cheese, icing sugar and vanilla together until smooth. Whip cream until stiff. Carefully fold cream into cheese mixture. Spread evenly in prepared shell. Chill.

Arrange halves over top in all attractive pattern. Melt jelly and lemon juice together. Carefully spoon over strawberries to glaze. Chill. Makes one 9-inch flan.

Strawberry Tipsy Loaf

one quart fresh strawberries, sliced
¼ cup granulated sugar
two tbsp Grand Marnier or Cointreau four eggs
¼ cup hot milk
one tsp lemon juice
one cup granulated sugar
one cup cake and pastry flour
one tsp baking powder
¼ tsp salt

Reserve some strawberries for garnish and combine remainder with ¼ cup sugar and Grand Marnier. Let stand one hour.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Grease a 15 x 10 x 1-inch Jelly roll pan and line with wax paper. Beat eggs and milk until thick and lemony. Beat in lemon juice. Gradually add one cup sugar, beating until very thick. Combine flour, baking powder and salt. Sift dry ingredients over egg mixture in four additions, folding in gently after each. Turn into prepared pan.

Bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes. Turn out immediately. Remove wax paper and cool. Trim edges and cut crosswise in three equal portions. Place one piece on rectangular dish. Cover with half of strawberries. Repeat layers and top with remaining cake layer. If desired, just before serving, pour custard over cake to coat it. Garnish with reserved strawberries. Serve with remaining soft custard. Serves eight.

four eggs or 8 egg yolks
two tbsp Grand Marnier or Cointreau

Strawberry Rhubarb Sauce

one pint strawberries
two cups cut up rhubarb
one cup sugar

Place all ingredients in a heavy saucepan and stir. Turn on heat to lowest setting and allow to heat together slowly for about one hour.

one pound Swiss cheese, grated
1½ cups sugar
¼ cup flour
grated rind of one orange six eggs
1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
two tbsp. sugar

Strawberry crepes make spectacular use of the season's first berries.

She Escaped Office Job

OTTAWA (CP) — "I had a fear of being a prisoner of four walls for the rest of my life," said Helen Fox. That fear was enough to make her leave a well-paid job as a teletype operator and learn to drive a bus.

One of only five women among the 1,100 bus drivers in Ottawa, Miss Fox was a little afraid of the job. She wasn't sure she would be a good driver and didn't know the city well.

"Then I remembered a newspaper picture of the then Princess Elizabeth driving an army truck during the war and I thought if she could do it, then why couldn't I?"

During her probationary period she took a considerable drop in pay, she said, but it was worth it. The low job lets her meet a variety of people and gives her the satisfaction of knowing "you're doing something not everyone can do."

Best of all, the job got her out of the windowless teletype room she used to work in. Her "40-foot monster," as she calls her bus, gives her an ever-changing view.

Miss Fox says she is treated equally in every respect by the 1,085 male bus drivers.

Policewoman's Work Not Glamorous Job

TORONTO (CP) — When S. Sgt. Gladys Jolly goes to work at Toronto's No. 31 police station, she gives the order.

Sgt. Jolly is the first woman on the Metropolitan police force to command a 40-man patrol involved in the full range of police work.

Although she attained the rank of sergeant in her previous job as supervisor of youth bureau personnel, she said there is no comparison between the responsibilities of her former job and the one she has now.

Now, when a crisis occurs during her shift, she responds in person and takes charge on site. When the station inspector is not on duty, Sgt. Jolly takes charge of the entire district.

Since taking the job earlier this year, she has had to respond in person on occasion to a threat of a man using a gun.

And sometimes she must use physical force when making arrests.

Although her job makes her seem a real life version of television police heroines, Sgt. Jolly denies this is the case.

"It's so far from the truth," she said. "I've never seen one of these TV heroines yet saddled with a typewriter making out reports. That is about half the job for blitz men and women."

Sgt. Jolly's promotion is in part the result of a decision by the Metro Police Commission to assign policewomen the same duties as men.

About 20 of the force's 70 policewomen have been assigned to full patrol-car duties in two of Toronto's most active divisions. The policewomen are fully armed and uniformed and their duties are exactly the same as those of the men.

Arming the women initially proved difficult. At one time, they carried their handguns in handbags equipped with built-in holster. The loaded purses weighed 12 pounds.

Now they wear a Sam Browne belt in virtually the same way as the men.

Scepticism about women's ability to do the same work as men focuses on physical strength, said Sgt. Jolly. But in many ways this is a false issue.

She said it has been proven that a great deal of police work doesn't involve physical force. And even when it does, "there is usually more than one police officer present."

There is a tendency for male police officers to be over-protective of their female colleagues, but Sgt. Jolly said she doesn't resent this.

"I've been involved in dicey situations and suddenly there'll be a policeman there asking: "What's up, Sergeant?"

"Let's face it, the job couldn't be done without the men's co-operation," she said.

Riding For Therapy

BRESLAU, Ont. The program emphasizes that horseback riding is not only fun, it is good physical and mental therapy.

Day-Care In Hotel

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian National's Hotel Mandes said has become the first hotel in Canada to operate a children's day-care centre in a bid to recruit mothers with young children as employees. The centre, two converted bedrooms on the second floor of the hotel, can accommodate 12 children.

A Small Corner for Aged

Dear Heaven — When I am old just give me a small corner that I may call my own — close to my dear ones, but not close enough to become a burden to them.

Most of all, when I am old give me something worthwhile to do, and the strength with which to accomplish it.

This, Dear Heaven, is all I ask — when I am old.

F.L.C.

Dear F.L.C: This is not Heaven, but I hope they heard you up there. You are echoing the prayer of many, many old people of your older generation. One of the worst things that can happen is the sense of uselessness which prevails with many older people.

And yet we need them, their knowlege and their help, if we could only get organized enough to see it clearly and tap the fertile springs of memory.

Dear Doris: I read your column daily and I notice you have an assortment of skits, readings and poems available I would like to have. I have enclosed 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Would you please send me your list?

I'd like any other information you may have concerning elderly people. My dream is to start a group, this fall, to go about the different homes entertaining.

Dottie.

Dear Dottie: The list includes skits, long ones and short ones, and I think there may be some you'd like to do impromptu, when you get to know your audiences, using elderly residents for some of your characters — or even for some of the ridiculous props.

Then there are amusing readings, and these, too, might be rehearsed by an older and read with lots of fun expression. The more you involve your audience, the better.

May I also suggest finding someone who knows the old, well-loved songs of thirty or forty years ago, and could get a sing-along going? If Bill McNeil and four remaining troupers from The Dumbells can bring off a hit at Toronto's Lambert Lodge (home of elderly war veterans) with a sing-along, so can you.

Many thousand Canadians can't be wrong!

His Memory Quilt

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Something from every aspect of 14-year-old Paul Martin's life has been worked into a quilt made by his mother, Dorothy Martin. "It was to be a memory quilt for my son telling something about the things that happened to him and the things that were special to him," she said.

Saudi Arabia Using Oil Wealth To Try and Turn Desert Green

ROPUF, Saudi Arabia (AP)—The government of Saudi Arabia is planning to spend $13 billion of its oil wealth in an effort to turn the eastern Saudi desert green.

This ancient oasis 180 miles east of Riyadh is the centre of a grandiose desert reclamation program.

It is just a fraction of Saudi Arabia's plans to turn 4.13 million hectares from sand to farmland.

"But this will require at least half a century to accomplish," said Tahir Ehsed, undersecretary of agriculture.

"We have the money, we have water resources. What we don't have is an adequate infrastructure to carry out this ultimate objective."

At present, only 1.4 million acres of farmland are cultivated in the desert monarchy, which earns more than $25 billion in oil revenues annually.

The kingdom, Ehsed said, envisions improving and regulating underground water resources and installing an efficient drainage network to reduce salinity in various areas.

Five research centres have been set up in Jiddah, Riyadh, Hasa and Qatif, in addition to the one in Hofuf. These operate model farms and carry out experiments dealing with fishing, insecticides, fodder, seeds, fertilizers, poultry and livestock.

Most of the 17 medium-size dams in the kingdom control rain waters in the southern regions of Jaizan and Abha.

The biggest is Jaizan dam, about 1,000 feet long and 125 feet high, with a capacity to store enough water to irrigate about 50,000 acres. It cost $27 million.

Hofuf was once a rest area for nomadic Bedouins. The government has earmarked $30 million for resettling them at Hassa, Hofuf, Khobar and elsewhere. This envisions pumping water from 50 wells, and distributing it through an irrigation network covering about 10,000 acres.

"Education and attractive incentives are proving an effective means to encourage the Bedouins to settle down to a permanent mode of life and assimilate," said Abdel Latif Aqaqil, director of the Hassa irrigation program.

The resettlement began five years ago. Hofuf and nearby Hassa are the new homes for the Bedouins of eastern Saudi Arabia, where irrigation projects have consumed 66.5 million. More money is being spent on electrification, road building and education.

Under the plan, $1.8 billion went to electrification projects. Desalinated water production will rise from 97 million gallons a day to 145 million. A total of 270,000 new homes, some in reclaimed areas, are to be built.

Airplane Stunt Champion Seeks Challenge, not Thrills

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Gerry Younger, Canada's reigning aerobatic champion, is impatient with persons asking him to describe the thrills of his gravity-defying feats.

He's in it for personal challenge, not thrills.

Mr. Younger, 43-year-old father of four, was a private pilot before he moved to aerobatics six years ago.

"If you're going to fly you have to do it or else you haven't exploited flying to its limits," he says.

Aerobats who perform 30 manoeuvres in nine minutes have to endure a lot. Flying upside down, Mr. Younger says, your neck swells, your cheeks puff out, blood rushes to your head and your body is heavier because of negative gravity.

Mr. Younger has won the last four national championships.

Vice-president of Kemp Manufacturing Company, he spends most weekends at air shows to finance his expensive hobby.

Fees from $600 to $1,200 help finance aerobats in serious competition.

However, most dislike air shows and the hazardous low-level manoeuvres.

Mr. Younger admits he was terrified when he started his aerobatic career. Now he discounts the danger, adding that there has never been a fatality recorded in international aerobatic competition.

He did come close during an air show in Brampton, Ont., in August, 1973, when the engine of his 174-foot airplane stopped while he was performing an upside-down routine at less than 400 feet.

He managed to right the plane and land in a rough field, only to have it hit a soft spot and flip over. The wings were damaged.

A week later, he borrowed a plane and won the Canadian national aerobatics championship.

Mr. Younger gets numerous requests for aerobatic instruction and gives a basic course to experienced pilots at Waterloo-Wellington Airport.

His dream is getting a four-member team together to represent Canada in future world championships.

Although many fans adore Mr. Younger as he performs his stunts at airshows, there is one unidentified farmer south of Elmira, Ont., who is anything but a fan.

During an early-morning practice, he was advised by the control tower to clear the area.

"He's got two minutes before I open fire," an irate caller had informed the tower. "I've got a .303 out the window."

Mr. Younger cleared out quickly.

Britain Selling Oil to Sheiks

WARRINGTON, England (CP) — Britain is selling oil to sheiks, populous to Icelanders, spaghetti to Italy, tom-tom drums to Nigeria and sand to the Persian Gulf States.

These unlikely exports have been discovered by a distiller's firm here. They adapted the idea from the magazine Export Times.

David Cobb of G. and J. Greenhalgh, the sponsoring company, said the idea was to recognize the small exporters who can not be eligible in the Queen's Award to Industry competition.

The first prize in the special competition was awarded to Premier Drum of Wigston, Leicestershire, which supplies percussion instruments to customers all over the world—including tom-toms to Nigeria.

Selling fuel for cigarette lighters to the world's richest oil-state, Saudi Arabia, earned the Permaflex company the second prize.

Third prize was shared by Ayala Designs of Suffolk for selling a complete bistro (restaurant) to Paris, and to a Great Yarmouth, Norfolk, firm for exporting tons of whole-meal spaghetti to Italy.

Adventurer

Jack Joyce, 31, left the University of Western Ontario in 1969 with degrees in political science, urban studies and town planning. Since then, the locals in the Congo thought he was a mercenary, he was attacked in Afghanistan while camping, and has survived six civil wars and eight cholera epidemics in Africa. He finally settled in Rhodesia 3½ years ago and joined the University of Rhodesia's political science department. (CP Photo)

Library Corner

A CROCODILE ON THE SAND BANK — Elizabeth Peters.

When Amelia Peabody's father left her his entire fortune, she was immediately besieged by fortune-hunting suitors. Being a strong-willed female of 22 in Victorian England, she seemed to have little choice but to accept one of her many proposals, but, Amelia decided instead to travel to such places as Rome and Egypt, and after hiring a lady companion she set off. In Rome her companion fell ill and she replaced her with a young gentlewoman who was alone and destitute.

Strange things begin to happen to Amelia, in Cairo her room is broken into, a two-thousand year old mummy disappears from it's tomb. What had begun as an exciting adventure develops into a terrifying struggle for sanity and life.

SUPERSONIC — Basil Jackson

Streaking across the Atlantic three times faster than the speed of sound and thirteen miles above the earth, a supersonic transport turns into a nightmare for the 180 passengers and crew aboard. Desperately trying to avoid deadly cosmic radiation from outer-space, Captain Thomas Bartlett and First Officer Peter Kowsky, struggle to keep the plane aloft despite a chain of events that if not corrected, will lead to certain catastrophe. The reader is taken behind the scenes of Air Traffic Control, where highly trained workers pit their skills against the plane's self-destructive manoeuvres. Written with scientific authority, the author's vision of the hazards, posed by the coming era of travel is compelling, terrifying, and all too probable.

THE MEDICINE MAN — Ivan Shaffer.

This is the story of how the international pharmaceutical industry attempts to manipulate the outcome of a special parliamentary committee investigating the high price of medicine, of drugs that kill rather than cure and of the unnecessary prescribing of drugs. Because this novel is based on actual events, the points raised are crucial and concern every one of us. How safe are brand name drugs? How do the politics of special-interest lobbyists affect parliamentary decision-making? Can the demands of global corporations subvert the integrity of nations, and can individuals control their own lives, or are we powerless in the face of governments and multinational corporations? On each page the reader is caught up in the inter-play of characters and events, which lead to a shattering climax.

HOW TO SURVIVE THE AGE OF TRAVEL — Robert Thomas Allen.

After years of travelling all over the world, Robert Allen believes that we've all been sold an incredible Bill of Goods about the "benefits" of travel. Here he takes a wry look at one tourist's habits at home and abroad and offers a few wise comments on life in general. Far from an insider's guide to places you "must see", this book highlights the foibles of airports, hotel beds, porters, waiters, cab-drivers and those dreadful travel books that gush on about the "grandeur of the towering peaks" or "the traditional Slav love of mirth". Just reading these amusing stories about Robert Allen's personal travels, will give you a more tolerant and humorous view of people and places.

VOICES IN AN EMPTY HOUSE — Jean Aitken

"Voices In An Empty House" evolves around the search for sixteen-year old Gabriel Baird, who has spent the summer of 1974 in the United States and vanished just when he is due for desperately needed heart surgery. Gabriel is the acutely perceptive and intelligent son of an English Nobel prize-winning genius, August Baird, now dead, who as well as a huge estate which the boy stands to inherit, has left behind him a complex and potentially dangerous collection of loyalties, jealousies, homage and antagonisms. This is essentially a novel of loss: loss of innocence, loss of hope, loss of the past, which is epitomized in the search for the missing boy.

Students Learning Hard Way

WEST VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP)—Twenty-one Grade 10 students here have been learning about pioneer life in the frontier days of British Columbia.

And they have been learning the hard way.

The students have been building a log cabin at Lighthouse Park as part of a social studies class at Sentinel satellite school.

When completed, the cabin will be the final touch to a history project on how Canadian pioneers lived and worked in the mid-1850s.

"This is a regular academic project . . . but the students are trying to do the most excellent job they can," said teacher Barbara Shumiatcher.

The nine-by-18-foot cabin, complete with shake roof, is being constructed by plan from a model built by two class members.

Mrs. Shumiatcher said there's more to the class project than building the cabin. She is asking her students to seek out old-timers to relate to the class their pioneer experiences.

Accidents At Home

EDMONTON (CP) — More than half the accidents that send persons to hospital emergency wards occur in the home or during leisure activities. A three-year Workmen's Compensation Board study in northwestern Alberta's Peace River district found home accidents caused 423 out of 1,292 injuries recorded.

Bank Employees Study

MONTREAL (CP) — About 10,000 bank employees are involved in the educational programs of the Institute of Canadian Bankers, the educational arm of the Canadian Bankers' Association.

Veteran Penguin, Jean Pronovost Will Wait and See

MONTREAL (CP) — Like many people, Jean Pronovost is in the dark about the fate of the Pittsburgh Penguins franchise in the National Hockey League. The Penguins club was placed on indefinite suspension Friday when it was revealed the club owed associated companies $1.1 million, including $5 million to Pittsburgh and $1 million to the league for previous loans.

The fate of the Penguins is important to right winger Pronovost, who has spent all of his seven-year NHL career in the Pennsylvania city.

"I don't know what's going to happen," Pronovost said Tuesday. "Like everyone else, I'll have to wait and see."

NHL president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday night the league could be forced to wait until its semi-annual meeting Aug. 15 to find out if the Penguins will operate next season. He spoke after the conclusion of a day-long meeting of the league's board of governors.

Campbell also discussed the fate of California Seals and the Greg Neeld case.

The Penguins were not allowed to participate in Tuesday's intra-league draft because of what Campbell termed the "uncertain legal position" of the Penguins.

The Penguins have until Sept. 30 to get their financial affairs in order before creditors can force any payments.

Campbell said the Pittsburgh situation could not go beyond the Aug. 15 meeting but he said the California situation could be cleared up before this week's meetings end Thursday.

Mel Dorfman, a San Francisco group that wants to buy the Seals from the league, which has operated the franchise for more than a year after taking it over from Charles O. Finley, Campbell said it would take $11 million to take over the club's liabilities. Neeld is scheduled here today.

Concerning the Greg Neeld case, Campbell said the league voted against changing its legislation which prohibits players with less than 25 per cent vision in any eye from competing in the NHL.

Neeld, a defenceman with the Omaha Knights of the Central Hockey Association Junior A series game in Omaha, Neb., was playing for Toronto Marlboros. He used a protective mask last season, which played for Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League.

But Campbell said the special mask which Neeld hoped to use had some sharp edges and could cause injury to other players.

Neeld was a fourth-round pick by Buffalo Sabres in this year's amateur draft. He was also drafted by Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association.

Neeld's lawyer, Roy McMurtry of Toronto, did not say you consider that other players who don't wear helmets can just as easily be injured."

McMurtry said his client would take legal action against the league, but declined to specify what form it would take. He said he wanted to talk to some other lawyers and the Saints.

In other developments, only two players were selected in the 10-minute intra-league draft. Jean-Yves Roy Rangers graded Dalle Lewis from Los Angeles Kings organization in the first round, dropping Hartland Monahan from their protected roster. Roy was selected by Washington Capitals in the second round.

Montreal Canadiens traded goaltender Wayne Thomas to Toronto in exchange for the Maple Leafs first-round amateur draft choice in 1978.

Wayne Thomas a Leaf

Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League traded goalie Wayne Thomas to Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday for the Leafs' first round draft choice in next year's amateur draft. Thomas, 27, a native of Ottawa and a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, did not appear in any of the Canadiens' 80 league games last season.

One-eyed Official

Chadwick Stuck With It and Won

An AP Sports Analysis
By JIM BAWSON, Jr.

Some 25 years ago, a New York-born referee named Bill Chadwick began to officiate National Hockey League games. It was nothing unusual, except for the fact that Chadwick only had one eye; the other one had been lost in 1935 due to an injury incurred as a junior player.

A year after he lost the eye, Chadwick was playing hockey again. But one night he was hit in the good eye with a puck ending his playing days. He became a linesman and later became one of the most respected referees in NHL history.

Bill Chadwick was inducted into the hockey Hall of Fame in 1964, proving that the handicap was no impediment to success.

That is why the NHL presented a confusing reversal in policy Tuesday when it refused the application of a one-eyed junior player, Greg Neeld, to play for Buffalo Sabres.

Neeld had been Buffalo's fourth-round pick in the recent junior draft, but because "letting Greg play would complicate the group insurance plan" among other things, the board of governors voted 13 to 3 with two abstentions against letting Neeld have a chance at professional success.

"We plan to take some kind of legal action," said lawyer Roy McMurtry, who represented Neeld at a hearing before the board. "The NHL is not known to be very progressive. Only a few years ago, they were dragging kicking and screaming into the 20th century. It will take another few years before they get into the second half."

Simply stated in the NHL bylaws is a section that bars players with less than-25 per cent vision in either eye. Neeld, who lost his left eye in 1972, plays with a protective face mask.

There are points to the arguments for and against Neeld. A Canadian Ophthalmological Society survey produced findings that 37 amateur players were rendered legally blind by hockey injuries last season, with five out of eight eye injuries caused by sticks. Amateur players spent a total of 850 days in the hospital with eye injuries last season.

And as a result of those findings one doctor recommended that all amateur hockey players wear super eye protectors — which is exactly what Neeld is doing.

But the mask was not sufficient for the NHL, although it has left eye in 1972, was given for the rejection," said Mr. McMurtry.

Philadelphia Flyers defenceman Barry Ashbee knocked out of hockey when hit in the right eye by a slap shot during the 1973-74 playoffs. Detroit Red Wings defenceman Doug Barkley lost an eye through a similar incident during the 1960s.

If Neeld, with those facts in mind, still wants a chance to play professionally and the Sabres want to help him, he shouldn't be be given the chance Chadwick got?

Move to Reduce Alarming Number Of Eye Injuries

OTTAWA (CP) A medical report on eye injuries in hockey games was released Tuesday and Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) officials promised to restrict rough play next season.

Dr. Robert Pashby of Toronto presented the results of a survey of reports by Canadian doctors at the annual convention of the Canadian Ophthalmological Society.

He said 27 of 237 amateur hockey players injured during the 1976-75 season were rendered legally blind. In the 1973-75 season 36 of 287 injuries led to blindness.

Some of Dr. Pashby's findings:

—Eight per cent of all head injuries occur in the eye.

—Three out of four eye injuries in the 1973-75 season were caused by sticks. In 1974-75 five out of eight were blamed on sticks.

—Pucks caused 19 per cent of the 1973-75 eye injuries and 29 per cent in 1974-75.

—More than 70 per cent of eye injuries reported occurred in games played in organized leagues.

—Amateur hockey players spent 1,000 days in hospital because of eye injuries in 1973-75 season, and 850 in 1974-5.

—Hockey sticks were the cause of 36 per cent of the injuries which led to blindness.

—Eye injuries last season occurred most often among players over 20, but a third were among those between 11 and 20 years.

Dr. Pashby recommended proper eye protectors be made available to amateur hockey players and that the Canadian Standards Association CSA approve specific kinds of protectors.

Panel member Tom Lawson from CAHA said a new rule on eye protection will be written before the coming season. "It would give the player the option of wearing any kind of eye and tooth protection he wants but it would not be mandatory."

George Lynn of the CSA committee on protective equipment for hockey, said tests of eye shields are under way and approval of a specific shield likely will come before the 1975-76 season.

Bob Nadin, a member of the CAHA rules committee, said tougher penalties will be introduced next season to reduce eye injuries, especially those caused by sticks.

Match penalties will be imposed for high-sticking above the shoulders which injuries or is classified as intent to injure. Officials agreed the rule change will merit a major penalty.

Expos Get Split With the Mets

MONTREAL (CP) — Mike Phillips drilled an 11th inning game winning triple Tuesday night and was happy Gary Carter powered a game winning two-run home run and wished Phillips' hit helped New York Mets to a 5-2 win and a split of a National League baseball doubleheader against the Montreal Expos.

"I was a good feeling," said Phillips after smashing his hit off Expos reliever Chuck Taylor. "I just got lucky and hit the ball on the nose."

Carter, who chased Phillips' triple around right field after its rebound off the fence, was despondent.

"I felt good about the homer in the first game but I wanted rather have won the second game too. It was just a matter of I was too aggressive. I was too aggressive."

Phillips trotted home with John Stearns on Wayne Garrett's bases loaded single to provide the final margin in the Mets win. Jesus Alou had contributed a two - run punch hit single in the seventh to tie the score at 2-2.

Pete Mangual gave the Expos a 1-0 lead in the third with his sixth homer of the season after going hitless in five at bats in the opener. Pat Scanlon doubled to score Mike Jorgensen in the fourth for the other Expos RBI.

Carter walked and Barry Foote received an intentional pass to load the bases for starter Steve Rogers, but Mets first baseman Ed Kranepool leaped high to snag his liner and end the threat.

Harry Parker evened his record at 2 with three innings of relief for New York. He gave up one hit, walked four, one intentionally, and struck out Pete MacKanin to end the game.

NHL Award Winners Named

Clarke Edges Vachon for Hart

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Clarke insists his leadership role with the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers is overrated.

But the 27-year-old centre from Flin Flon, Man., appears to be about the only one in professional hockey who maintains that opinion.

Today the Flyers captain will attend the National Hockey League's annual awards luncheon where he will be the recipient of the Hart Memorial Trophy as the player "adjudged to be the most valuable to his team" for the second time in three seasons.

Clarke edged goaltender Rogatien Vachon of Los Angeles Kings 127-113 in the voting for the award, and Tuesday night the Philadelphia captain had some kind words for the runner-up.

"Vachon had a helluva year," Clarke said. "But he played for a team that was relatively diversive. If they were ahead 3-1 with 10 minutes left to play they didn't try to score."

Clarke's rival over Vachon was the closest balloting of all the four awards. Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins, centre Marcel Dionne of Detroit Red Wings and Eric Vail of Atlanta Flames were the other winners.

Orr became the first player in NHL history to win an award eight times, and all consecutive, as he was named recipient of the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the league's outstanding defenceman.

Orr also won the Art Ross Trophy this year as the league's scoring champion, the second and only times he or any other defenceman won.

The Boston defenceman collected 885 points in the Norris voting, based on five points for a first-place choice, three for a second and one for a third. A unanimous vote would gain 270 points.

Denis Potvin of New York Islanders was runner-up to Orr with 99 points.

Vail, a 21-year-old native of Timmins, Ont., was named the outstanding rookie of the 1974-75 season. He will receive the Calder Memorial Trophy after he polled 183 points from members of the Professional Hockey Writers' Association. Pierre Larouche of Pittsburgh Penguins was named the rookie vote with 123 points.

The Lady Byng Memorial Trophy was awarded to Dionne as the "player adjudged to have exhibited the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct, combined with a high standard of playing ability."

Dionne, left winger John Bucyk of Boston was second with 35 points, compared to the 150 accorded Dionne.

The winners again receive 1,500 from the league and the runners-up $750 apiece.

Before the current winners were announced, five former NHL stars were named members of th Hockey Hall of Fame. Two were former teammates with Chicago Black Hawks, while the other three were one-time members of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Glenn Hall, whose goaltending heroics earned him accolades over 16 seasons with the Hawks, Detroit and St. Louis Blues, was joined by defenceman Pierre Pilote, a former team-mate with Chicago.

The other former Toronto players chosen were all forwards—George Armstrong, Gordie Drillon and Ace Bailey.

By winning the Norris, Orr has won 16 individual awards in nine NHL seasons. He also been named to the first all-star team eight straight seasons and the second team in his rookie season—1966-67.

In addition to the eight Norris Trophy awards, Orr has won the Hart three times; the Conn Smythe Trophy — awarded annually to the outstanding player in the playoffs twice; the Art Ross Trophy twice; and the Calder in his rookie year.

Five Named to Hall of Fame

MONTREAL (CP) — Glenn Hall, once known as Mr. Goalie during his tenure as a goaltender with Chicago and St. Louis of the National Hockey League, was named Tuesday as one of five new members of the Hockey Hall of Fame.

The others who were defenceman Pierre Pilote and three former Toronto Maple Leafs—Ace Bailey, Gordie Drillon and Ace Bailey. All will be inducted into the hall later this summer.

During Hall's 16 seasons in the NHL with Detroit Red Wings, Chicago and St. Louis Blues, he was an all-star selection 11 times, and held the goalie's hit record for most consecutive games by a goaltender —502—and appeared in 906 games. He also holds both Stanley Cup records—most playoff games by a goaltender (115) and most minutes played by a goalie in a career (6,999).

His rookie year—1955-56—when he won the Calder Trophy.

He holds the NHL record for most consecutive games by a goaltender —502—and appeared in 906 games. He also holds both Stanley Cup records—most playoff games by a goaltender (115) and most minutes played by a goalie in a career (6,999).

In 1968, he was selected as winner of the Conn Smythe Trophy as the most outstanding player effort against Montreal Canadiens.

Pilote played with the Black Hawks from 1956 to 1968 before finishing off his career with Toronto Maple Leafs in 1969. He won the Norris Trophy as the league's best defenceman in 1963, 1964 and 1967, and was a first-team all-star from 1963 to 1966. He was a second-team choice from 1960 to 1962.

He also was a first-team all-star selection in 1937-38 and 1938-39.

Bailey's hockey career came to a tragic end in Boston when he was injured in the game by Boston defenceman Eddie Shore. Two separate fractures in operations had to be performed and for three weeks, it was uncertain whether he would survive. Bailey recovered in the 1933 game of the 1933-34 season.

Edmonton, said said he takes some of the credit for Hall's sportsmanship selected at the same time.

"George enjoyed playing against him and he enjoyed playing against him," said Hall of Fame Bobby Hull here.

"I may have had something to do with Glenn being in the Hall of Fame. I—certainly had something to do with it."

Accepting congratulations, he said he felt especially good about the selection of Pilote.

"Pilote will feel good, and I feel good for him. I played with him for many years. He played professionally well."

Carl Morton Sees Red

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Crazy time Cole Ford faces Cincinnati's National League Reds Tuesday night.

"The only way to beat Cincinnati is to give it everything you have," says the Atlanta Braves pitcher. "Cincinnati is the only way to beat the Reds—get mad at 'em."

Morton gave it everything—which means that he gave Cincinnati practically everything while winning a 5-1 decision over the Reds.

"I like always respected him," Cincinnati second baseman Joe Morgan said after Morton's fine performance. "He says, 'Hit me, here I come.' I respect that. He came at us—and he had us."

In the other National League games, Chicago's Rick Reuschel pitched Philadelphia Phillies 9-5, Montreal Canadiens defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Houston Astros 6-1, San Francisco Giants beat Cleveland Indians 3-2, Cincinnati Reds defeated Atlanta Braves 5-1, St. Louis Cardinals doubleheader before losing the second game by 11 innings.

Dave May hit a grand slam home run to back Morton's splendid pitching. Morton, 7-6, capitalized the Reds with six assortment of sliders and changeups, but lost his shutout in the ninth when Ken Griffey walked Morgan singled for his second hit of the game and Johnny Bench drove in the runner with a double.

May's grand slam broke up a pitching duel between Morton and Gary Nolan, who also had a six-game winning streak snapped. Nolan, 6-2, gave up single started the Braves' outburst against Nolan. 7-4 and came following a double which popped out of centre-fielder Gerald Tomlin's glove.

Dusty Baker was walked intentionally, moving up May's second home run of the season. Darrell Evans' single scored Baker, the second provided the other Atlanta run.

Tim Hosley drove in three runners with a two-run home run and single, leading Chicago over Philadelphia. The Phillies took a 5-4 lead in the fifth inning on Greg Luzinski's 18th home run off Reuschel before Chicago struck for six runs.

Reggie Smith drove in three runs to lead St. Louis against Houston. After scoring the game in the second inning on an error, Smith singled home two more in the fifth, two on Ted Simmons' two-run double winning runs.

Royals Happy Whistlers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kansas City Royals indulged in a bit of espionage Tuesday night as they whipped the American League baseball winners 7-4 in Oakland.

"The Royals were picking up the signals and they were able to throw in the early innings," said California manager Dick Williams.

"They were letting their batters know by whistling. We caught on about the fourth. So then we put a stop to it."

But the Royals had their fun in the first inning and the Athletics could manage only two in the ninth.

"We beat ourselves," said Williams.

Elsewhere in the American League, Oakland's A's swept a doubleheader from Minnesota Twins 4-2 and 8-7, Milwaukee Brewers beat New York 4-3 before the Yankees took the night cap 4-2, Baltimore Orioles defeated Cleveland Indians 5-2, Boston Red Sox beat Detroit Tigers 7-6 and Chicago White Sox defeated Texas Rangers 13-2.

The play of it was that California's Ed Figueroa pitched a good ball game—a six-hitter—against his team-mates and resulted in two unearned runs off the game-winning came on Hal McRae's sacrifice fly.

"He was great," said Williams of his 26-year-old right-hander. "He's developing into a consistent pitcher, one of the most consistent in the game."

But one arm couldn't beat all comers so Figueroa leaned on the pitch he was about to throw.

Reggie Jackson pulled out a hitting slump as Oakland swept doubleheader.

"I feel like I've been in quicksand for a long time," said Jackson, who pulled himself out with 420-foot home run and a run-scoring double in the opener to back Vida Blue's 10th victory against seven.

"It seems like a century since I hit a home run," said Jackson. Blue, who hadn't won in nearly three weeks.

Paul Goodfellow Making Bid For All-star Recognition

One name familiar to Belleville baseball fans is Paul Goodfellow, shortstop for the Belleville Senators, and one of the bright spots on the O.F.L.A. (Football League (OFL) team.

So far, he is the teams leading hitter at well over .300 and his fielding has bordered on sensational.

Really though, it's not surprising. Many people who know Goody (as his teammates call him) feel he's always been one of the best in this area. What is sense is that he is ranking with the best in Ontario and Harold Reid, Goodfellow's mentor says, "I haven't seen a better shortstop in the league. Some have been as good, but none have been better."

Past started playing football late, either for baseball until he was 16. He then found a home with football, and hasn't looked back since.

He started in the Community League, then was playing for the Belvedere Hotel, Deseiters and Rollins Construction.

In his nine years in the Community League (now the Quinte Football League), he was twice winner of the Most Valuable Player Award, once in 1968 at the age of 17 and again in 1973 at the age of 24. Being only 25 years old, Paul hasn't reached his prime yet, when he does, OFL pitchers better look out.

The thing that impresses Paul the most about the OFL is the superior pitching — he mentioned Wally Dick, Bob Domik and Dick Balint as particularly tough pitchers.

"Goody" has been tough on pitchers though, leading the team in doubles and triples as well as batting average.

His fielding, as was already mentioned, has been stellar. He has yet to make an error in the OFL, something highly uncommon. What makes it even more uncommon is where he is playing, shortstop, the position which usually is a busy one.

Paul didn't start as a shortstop though, he began as a first baseman. Then did some catching and finally moved to the hole between second and third. The position he definitely one of the most important in the game and that is probably why he was named team captain at the beginning of the season.

When asked what his aims are for this year, he replied, "I'd really like to make the All Star team." It could very well come about if he receives proper recognition around the league.

Goodfellow referees basketball in winter months, which helps him keep in shape. A graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Paul checks in at six-foot-two giving him better range than most shortstops.

It is quite possible, if he continues his present trend, Paul Goodfellow will be a member of the OFL's final "Division all-star squad. In any case, he's a star with the Mace.

Busy Night for Tony's Timbers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oshawa Tony's and visiting St. Catharines Mr. Jacket's split a doubleheader Tuesday in Ontario Baseball League action as Oshawa won the first game 3-0 but lost 3-1 to St. Catharines in the second.

In other action Toronto Waxman-Globals exchanged shutouts with visiting Burlington Provisioners, winning the first game 5-0 and losing the second 4-0.

London Dukes defeated visiting Woodstock Warriors 3-1 in the first game of a double header. The second game was rained out.

Barry Timbers pitched both games for Oshawa, striking out seven and allowing three hits in the first game. In the second game, he struck out six and gave up eight hits.

Dick Ballint of St. Catharines was the winner of the second game, striking out nine and allowing five hits. Ken Rhora was tabbed with the loss in the opener.

Metro Smeryk was the winning pitcher for London, his fourth against one loss. He struck out 13.

Bill Fatkulin knocked in the first London run with a sacrifice fly after Vaughn Carpenter's double advanced Bob Mogach to third base.

The second London run came when Bill Cheddick singled home Bruce Everett.

Don Reeder took the loss for Woodstock.

Toronto pitcher John Young allowed three hits and struck out seven in the first game of its doubleheader with Burlington to earn his third victory of the season.

Third baseman Brian Haynes scored two of Toronto's runs. Centrefielder Lee Gould scored one run and knocked one in.

Burlington's Bill Dreman was handed his fourth loss of the season although he took himself out of the game after two innings with a pulled leg muscle. Reliever Al Few gave up eight hits.

Two Divisions In Major Jr. A

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association has named its two new divisions in the Major Junior A series after prominent hockey officials, league commissioner Clarence (Tiddy) Schmantz said Tuesday.

Two divisions were created because Windsor Spitfires are to join the league next season, bringing league membership to 12.

A western division, made up of Windsor, Hamilton, Toronto, Kitchener, London and St. Catharines, will be called the Leighton (Hap) Emms division. Emms, owner of St. Catharines Blackhawks in the major series, has been associated with junior hockey as coach, general manager and owner.

The eastern division, made up of Sudbury, Ottawa, Cornwall, Peterborough, Sault Ste. Marie and Kingston, will be called the Leyden division. Leyden is a past president of the OHA and a member of Ottawa Generals' executive for many years.

Could Be Headed for Cleveland

Move Suits Gruen Just Fine

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Crusaders plan to draft left winger Danny Gruen at a special World Hockey Association draft in Toronto Thursday as Baltimore Blades go out of business.

Gruen, understood to have agreed Friday in Detroit to join the Crusaders despite the Detroit offer, is delighted. It means reunion with Cleveland's new coach, John Wilson.

When Wilson was coach of Michigan Stags before he, Gruen and the club moved to Baltimore, Gruen faced personal problems to which the coach was sympathetic.

Gruen's wife, Carol Ann, was in hospital in Toronto with brain tumors which later proved to be benign. As Gruen travelled to Toronto nightly, he joined few practice sessions, and Wilson permitted it.

Gruen says: "I've got a lot of respect for that man. What he did for me I'll never forget."

Wilson, too, is delighted, saying Gruen "should be a tremendous asset to our club."

Gruen was loaned to Winnipeg Jets late last season and scored 19 goals and 47 points. Wilson predicts he'll post 30 goals for the Crusaders.

The draft in which Cleveland will have third choice also will have 21 players.

Jamie Russell of Burlington, Ont., led the Canadians Tuesday night with 13 points while Bob Sharpe of Guelph, Ont., added 18.

The Canadians' next game will be Friday against the Cuban B team.

On Monday, Russell topped the Canadian scorers, scoring 25 points against the Yugoslavs and 13 against the Cuba B team.

Sid Gordon Dead at 56

NEW YORK (AP) — Sid Gordon, a 15-year major league baseball veteran, died of a heart attack Tuesday in Central Park. He was 56.

The former star was playing ball in the park when stricken. He was taken by police to hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The Brooklyn-born Gordon began his career with New York Giants in 1941, was traded to Boston Braves in 1950 and later went to Milwaukee Braves and Pittsburgh Pirates before closing out his career with the Giants.

His career totals included a batting average of .283 in 1,475 games. The third baseman-outfielder collected 202 home runs, including 30 in 1948 and hit above .300 in 1950 and 1954.

International Blood Trade Concerns Health Organization

GENEVA (Reuter) — A thriving international trade in human blood is causing concern to the Red Cross and the 146-country World Health Organization (WHO).

The traffic is largely from the Third World to industrialized countries and has given rise to accusations that Western companies are profiteering in the blood of persons in developing countries.

WHO Director-General Halfdan Mahler told the recent world health assembly here that commercial firms were scouring the Third World for donors who supply blood at a tenth of the price it would cost in some advanced countries.

Dr. Mahler said the trade apparently started about 10 years ago in Central and South America and more recently has spread to Asia and Africa.

The blood drawn from nationals in these regions is usually turned into plasma — blood's liquid part — by a process known as plasmapheresis. It provides for the separation of plasma from the red cells. The ...

...WHO questionnaire sent to the health authorities of 17 developing countries showed that 11 of the 12 states which replied had received requests from ... up plasmapheresis ...

...country delegates warned of dangers in the system: poverty-stricken people in the Third World, turning professional donors to earn money, might pass their ailments to the recipients of the blood.

The donors' own defence mechanism, often already weakened through malnutrition, might be badly impaired through giving too much blood.

The assembly tabled resolutions calling for a tightening of national legislation concerning blood transfusions.

One of the fears of WHO and the Red Cross is that the development of commercial blood transfusion centres may ruin the chances of governments setting up their own services based on a system of voluntary donations.

The two organizations said donation of blood should be motivated by humanitarian reflections. This was the most effective way of supplying blood needs.

Teacher Views

by Morris Richardson

Why Bill 100 must be amended– or cause problems

Very soon—and possibly this week —a 20-member standing committee at Queen's Park will be discussing one of the most important pieces of Ontario legislation in decades.

The legislation is Bill 100 which was introduced in the Legislature June 3 and which sets out detailed guidelines for negotiations between Ontario's 103,000 teachers and their local school boards. It is a long overdue bill and has many good points.

If your impression of the legislation, however, is based upon several editorials or instant comments, you may share a widespread belief that Bill 100 will solve all of the negotiating problems of the last two years.

That, unfortunately, is dead wrong.

CREATES NEW PROBLEMS

Teachers fervently hope that the legislation will eventually solve most of the problems. But in its present form Bill 100 will create new problems that did not exist before its introduction.

In fact, close reading of the legislation shows that it is a restrictive bill in its present form. The following points tell why.

Point 1—Some headline-writers seized upon the fact that Bill 100 contains the right to strike for Ontario teachers. While that is correct, careful reading of the fine print shows that such a sanction can be undertaken only after a series of steps. And to add a further stumbling block to the reality of the sanction, the bill creates a new public service commission with far-reaching powers, responsible only to the government. In short, the bill restricts the right teachers have used to strike upon rare occasions in Ontario.

Point 2—Strike is a rarity in our school system. (The publicity spotlight on a small number of strikes this past year overlooked the many areas that settled amicably). The bill, however, uses the small number of situations to remove the right of all principals and vice-principals to participate in local sanction. In fact, they can't even vote on it.

This is particularly dangerous from an educational viewpoint because overnight it places the emphasis upon the administrator role of the principal and vice-principal. Principal teachers should mean exactly what it says: the head of an educational team within the school. Unless amended or dropped, however, this clause will destroy that educational role and the mutual trust necessary to support it. Again, Bill 100 is restrictive, removing rights that now exist for those principal teachers.

Point 3—Bill 100 would create a five-member Education Relations Commission, the public service body referred to earlier, responsible for ensuring that the guidelines work. A serious question about this body is whether it should be responsible to the government or to the Legislature. Ontario's newly-appointed ombudsman is responsible to the latter. Why not the Education Relations Commission as well?

Point 4—After setting up a series of obstacles to the possibility of strike ever happening, Bill 100 then goes on to include in the definition of strike a far-ranging list of activities. Most unrealistic is the inclusion of extra-curricular or voluntary programs that teachers now provide on an unpaid basis of good will. If this clause passes without amendment, several things will happen. (a) Those voluntary activities may now be mandatory under the legislation. (b) If so, they become an area of negotiation which they have not been. (c) Inevitably, that will mean increased cost for the taxpayer. Again, Bill 100 is restrictive in this part of the legislation.

Point 5—The bill suggests that all contracts end at the same time: August 31. This seems like a tidy idea until one suddenly realizes that every teacher contract in the Province of Ontario will be concluding at the identical moment every year. This has mind-boggling implications for the workload of the Education Relations Commission which may be overworked for part of the year and overstaffed for the rest. Again, by creating a lock-step timetable the bill may be creating unworkable restrictions.

All of these points indicate why Ontario teachers believe that every member of the Social Development Committee (13 Progressive Conservatives, four Liberals, three NDP) should take a close look at the educational implications of Bill 100 before returning it to the Legislature for third and final reading.

The legislation has many good points. But if it passes in its present form, here is what will happen in Ontario's education system.

IMPOSSIBLE SITUATION

The knee-jerk decision to restrict the rights of principals and vice-principals will create an "us and them" psychological situation in every school. It may, in fact, be impossible for many principals to "develop co-ordination and co-operation of effort among the members of the staff of the school" as they are legally required to do in the Education Act 1974.

Changing the ground rules for voluntary activities by teachers creates a whole new ballgame in this area. Unless amended, this clause makes it likely that voluntary and extra-curricular activities will enter negotiations. The financial implications are obvious.

The good faith that the bill endorses (without defining, by the way) will be impossible in many areas because of the many restrictions.

Teachers want to see an end to confrontation in negotiations. They want renewed emphasis upon the educational concerns they share with parents and their students. In its present form, however, they do not see Bill 100 doing that.

Morris Richardson is General Secretary of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation which hopes to inform the general public of current educational issues through this periodic column.

Saskatchewan's Ombudsman Wants More Jurisdiction

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's ombudsman says he is overworked and yet he wants his jurisdiction broadened into areas where he doubts he will need legislative powers.

E. C. Boychuk, 41, who ended his career as a Saskatoon judge to become the province's first ombudsman in May, 1973, said a budgetary increase to about $300,000 for 1975-76 will solve much of the problem of understaffing his office has experienced since it started with a budget of $90,000.

"Our office is receiving an average of 100 complaints a month and until we acquire our new staff we simply can not handle these complaints in an efficient manner," the father of five said in an interview.

"We're handling them, but not the way we would like to. It's taking too long to investigate these complaints and get the answers back to the public, but when we acquire our new staff we will be able to gear ourselves to the point where we can reasonably handle, in terms of time, any complaint that comes into the office."

The ombudsman expected to increase his staff to 12 and open an office in Saskatoon this summer.

"We've been working seven days a week, 10 staff and I are usually in the office every evening. The workload has been far in excess of what we anticipated but I think this is the normal thing right across the country . . . People are becoming more familiar with the institution of an ombudsman . . . they seem to be less reluctant to bring their problems forth."

Residents of Saskatchewan, he said, learn about his office by news stories and the approximately 100 speaking engagements he has accepted, but the ombudsman buys no advertising, finding the public willing to complain to him without coaxing.

Saskatchewan act limits the ombudsman's jurisdiction so that he can not investigate the acts of civil servants at the deputy minister level, nor those who report directly to the minister, but Mr. Boychuk has asked the legislature, to which he reports, to change this restriction.

"Really, we're not having any difficulty in this area at all.

"The deputy ministers have been most co-operative. They have not been hiding behind this section at all. Practically speaking, it's not there.

"But it is an area that; in the event some difficulty should arise in the future, it's much better to eliminate those difficulties now rather than have them wait upon the event."

Mr. Boychuk said he considers his jurisdiction before passing a complaint on to one of the investigators, who report back to him for a decision as to whether the complaint is valid and if so, what recommendation should be made.

"Each file starts with me and ends with me."

In 1974 the ombudsman reported to the legislature that he rectified 119 complaints, found 15 to be unjustified and was without jurisdiction in 218 cases. He had 146 under investigation and had made some progress on others to give a total of 803 for the year.

So far, he said, in three cases the provincial government has rejected his recommendations.

"The ombudsman, being human, himself, is not necessarily going to be right on each occasion. As long as the number of recommendations which are not accepted is a small one, then this is quite satisfactory. I can not possibly be right in every circumstance. There will be differences of opinion and certainly there will be the occasional setback but that's not harmful that's a healthy situation."

So far the track record can't be too bad because Mr. Boychuk says once civil servants understood he was an impartial investigator of complaints capable of reaching a fair decision and not the advocate of the complainant, there's been no trouble.

"The office really has not had any difficulties. The spirit of co-operation and assistance that's been rendered to the office by all departments and agencies has been simply overwhelming. We have no problems at all except that we are overworked."

Investigation, persuasion and the threat of publicity, he said, are all the powers an ombudsman needs.

"If my powers were any greater you would have to cut down my jurisdiction. You see the genius of the ombudsman plan is that you permit the ombudsman the widest latitude in obtaining information. . . . When I conduct an investigation I have the right to inquire of anyone in the province. This wide latitude gives me a great deal of flexibility. To give me any coercive powers would necessarily have to restrict this wide latitude."

The need for an ombudsman, Mr. Boychuk said, is unavoidable in a day when government services are creeping so many areas of life and so there is so much room for errors, omissions, misinterpretations and misunderstanding. So far he states he has found no evidence of malicious behavior on the part of a civil servant and indeed finds it "refreshing" to hear them admit when they are wrong and be prepared to correct the error.

Along with an interest in people and their problems, a quality he considers essential, Mr. Boychuk brought a desire to humanize government to his post.

People's attitude that government is cold and unreachable can be changed just by convincing civil servants to make personal visits to complainants and explain why a program works in the way it does or a decision was made as it was, he said.

There has been no one area or government service, he said, which has shown an inordinate number of problems nor has there been any one case which is outstanding in his mind. If there is a difficulty, it's that people don't understand the differences among the three levels of government in Canada and his jurisdiction is only at the provincial level, but even there he says, a letter to a federal agency or a request for help through the department of municipal affairs can bring positive results.

Museum Claim Disputed

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Norman Hopkins, a 65-year-old bachelor, is disputing a claim by Ripley's Museum in Niagara Falls, Ont. that its one inch exhibit stolen March 17 was the smallest knife in existence.

Mr. Hopkins does not doubt the knife was taken, but he says he owns one that is only five-eighths of an inch long when the blade is open.

"I've had it for 50 years," said Mr. Hopkins. "My uncle made it and gave it to me when I was 15."

The metal blade of the tiny knife unfolds from a moon-shaped fingernail slot in the mother-of-pearl handle that is held together with three rivets.

Mr. Hopkins keeps his miniature pen knife on a chain in a snuff box wrapped in cotton and sealed in a plastic bag.

"I may gamble, smoke and wear, but I don't lie," Mr. Hopkins said, jokingly. "When I say I have the smallest knife in the world, it's because I do."

Another St. Catharines resident said knives like the one reported to Niagara Regional Police as having been stolen were common about 50 years ago when they were distributed by knife manufacturers for promotional purposes.

"The policeman took a liberty when they told the press our knife was an inch long," said Doug Birrell, manager of the museum. "I don't think we ever measured it and it would be difficult to determine whose claim is valid."

"If we ever get our back and find Mr. Hopkins' knife is smaller, I guess we'll have to change our advertising, or we might be willing to buy his."

Mr. Hopkins said he would not sell the knife, but would give it to a niece who has always admired it.

Shulman Denies Having RCMP File on CBC Man

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Moe Shulman denied Tuesday he has a copy of an RCMP security file on CBC executive producer Mark Starowicz.

Tom Cossitt, Progressive Conservative MP for Leeds, has linked Mr. Starowicz's name several times in the Commons recently with that of expelled Soviet journalist Konstantin Geivandov.

Dr. Shulman said Tuesday he gave Mr. Cossitt information by telephone last Thursday that Mr. Starowicz, executive producer of As It Happens, provided reports on NDP waffle members to the journalist.

The doctor said RCMP spent $250,000 in man-hours and expenses in investigating Mr. Starowicz's connection with Geivandov and had to justify its action by having the Soviet expelled, although he was not guilty of anything.

Fight Quebec Move

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government is determined to stand firm against Quebec's attempts to take control of cable television licensing in the province, Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier said Tuesday. Ottawa will take "all the necessary measures" to enforce federal authority over licensing and operation of broadcasting and cable television industries, he said in the Commons.

Dow Wants Lake Ships To Move All Year Round

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., Sarnia, Ont., said Tuesday that his company is prepared to do everything in its power to see that the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Seaway become navigable year round.

"Based on our winter of 1974 experiences," Clyde H. Boyd said, "Dow Canada is ready to commit itself to keeping a ship operational on the seaway during the 1975 winter season, and we'll be ready to ship at least four loads during the periods of late December and January."

Meetings Open

WINNIPEG (CP) — The parliamentary committee on immigration is determined to keep its hearings open to the public despite disruptions in Toronto and Hamilton, committee chairman Martin O'Connell said Tuesday.

Lots of Garbage

TORONTO (CP) — Non-returnable bottles should be banned as a step towards reduced garbage, Jack Riddell (L—Huron) said Tuesday.

Speaking to a committee of the legislature studying environment ministry estimates, he said the composite beverage industry in 1973 generated about 241,846 tons of waste at a cost of $1.87 million to the taxpayer.

A government study group on waste concluded non-refillable containers are environmentally harmful and a switch to refillable containers would be beneficial to the environment, he said.

Amend Bail Act

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bail Reform Act will be amended "because we are not satisfied that bail law is working in every respect," Justice Minister Otto Lang said Tuesday in the Commons.

The amendments would clarify the power of judges "to protect the public interest."

Mr. Lang said amendment would be introduced soon but he gave no additional details.

Plan Olympic Coin

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to permit the minting of a special Olympic gold coin was introduced in the Commons Tuesday.

The reason for the special coin is to raise more money for the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

Payments Up

OTTAWA (CP) — In a sharp reversal of the usual trend, payments of unemployment insurance benefits rose 26 per cent during April from a month earlier to $237 million, Statistics Canada said Tuesday.

The government agency noted that there generally has been a decline in unemployment benefit payments between March and April.

Acid No Threat

TORONTO (CP) — There is no indication of significant environmental damage or threat to health or safety following a Monday acid spill at Port Maitland, Ont., Environment Minister William Newman told the Ontario legislature Tuesday.

CP News Roundup

Big Lineup For Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — More than 300 job seekers lined up Tuesday in a Depression-like scene to apply for 25 full-time and 50 to 60 part-time jobs at a new Horizon department store opening here in August.

"In the nine years I have been with the company I have never seen anything like that," said Paul Christian, personnel administrator for T. Eaton Co., which will operate the store.

Can Prosecute

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal Public Service Staff Relations Board has granted the government the right to prosecute 740 public servants who allegedly took part in illegal strikes last winter.

The employees, members of the general labor and trades and heating and power bargaining units of the Public Service Alliance, work in Quebec, Manitoba, Alberta, British Columbia, the Yukon and in Toronto and Ottawa.

The federal treasury board now may take action against the employees in provincial courts. Under the federal Public Service Staff Relations Act, the employees can be fined up to $100 upon convictions.

Tower Costs Soar

OTTAWA (CP) — The cost of the CN Tower in Toronto went up almost as fast as the 1,815-foot structure itself, Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) was informed in the Commons Tuesday.

Transport Minister Jean Marchand, in a written reply to questions by Mr. Stevens, disclosed that the tower will cost at least 115-per-cent more than the original estimate of $24 million.

The latest estimate is $53 million for completion and so far $31 million has been spent on the tower, Canadian National Railways had advised Mr. Marchand.

Leave OHIP

TORONTO (CP) — Some doctors are opting out of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP), raising their fee schedules significantly and, in the process, doing "awful damage" to their patients, Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, told the legislature Tuesday.

He said a group of doctors in Burlington, Ont., informed their patients earlier this month of increases in fees.

Troubled Waters

TORONTO (CP)—Education Minister Thomas Wells gave no indication Tuesday he will allow principals and vice-principals to participate in teacher strikes.

But the minister forecast troubled waters for the government's proposed legislation which establishes ground rules for collective bargaining between school boards and their teachers.

Second reading was given the education bill in the legislature. It now goes to committee for study.

Munro Backs Off

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro backed away Tuesday from his previously-expressed view that high wage increases have not been a major cause of inflation.

Mr. Munro, replying to questions in the Commons, said some recent wage increases have been "outstandingly higher" in Canada than in the United States and something should be done to restrain exceptionally-large increases.

Cost of Moving Bone and Fat Blamed for High Meat Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Al Graham, vice-president of the Ottawa Group's Ontario food division, told the federal inquiry into beef marketing Monday that the man behind the counter at the supermarket may be responsible for higher beef prices.

Mr. Graham said consumers would pay less for beef if it were cut into steaks and roasts in central packing houses rather than in supermarket backrooms.

"Consumers have the right to be outraged over the cost of shipping inedible parts of a carcass, the bones and fat, all of which is reflected in the ultimate price they pay at the meat counter," he told the commission.

The Oshawa group, which operates 41 Food City supermarkets in Ontario, has eliminated all its in-store butchers and now cuts up carcasses in a Hamilton plant.

Mr. Graham also said beef prices are raised by spoilage in meat slaughtering plants.

"The beef industry prides itself on sanitation and yet, unlike Australia and New Zealand where cattle are thoroughly washed before slaughter, in Canada a steer goes to slaughter often caked in dirt and dung.

Poor Packaging Irks Consumers

TORONTO (CP) — The Consumers Association of Canada (CAC) called Tuesday in a brief to the federal beef marketing commission for better standardization of cutting and sanitary control on beef through federally-inspected plants.

The brief, presented by Ruth Jackson, president of the Ontario branch of the CAC, was partly based on a survey of 30 consumers done by the association.

The most common complaint, the survey revealed, was about packaging of meat for retail consumption. There was either too much packaging, it leaked or the poorest side of the meat was down so the consumer was unable to judge quality.

"The second most common complaint referred to store specials," said Mrs. Jackson. "Often they are not available or not available in sufficient quantity or the store limited the number of units of a special that a customer could purchase. But the store had not declared this in their advertisements."

The CAC said discussions to establish standardization of names of beef cuts and cutting charts for beef should be completed and implemented as quickly as possible, saying beef terminology is inaccurate and deceptive. Surveys have found T-bone steaks that are wing steaks and ground chuck that contains little chuck.

The survey also found less that half of those questioned were aware of the trend in Canada to boxed beef.

Savings of construction costs of cutting rooms and handling hanging rail beef will be passed on to the consumer," Mrs. Jackson said, "hopefully when more boxed beef is used."

She said that the worst advertising in the marketing of beef is found in freezer promotions.

"Hopefully Ontario's Bill 55 which deals with unfair business practices will deal with those ads which promise six months of food for a family of four but include only enough to let you eat meat once or twice a week."

Food Prices Up

The food price index rose to 206.5 during May, up 2.1 points.

Statistics Canada reported June 11. The Food Prices Review Board said that prices for meat, vegetables, fruit and dairy products have been rising during recent weeks. (CP Newsmap)

Stabilized Production Of Pork Is Necessary

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Pork producers must find ways to stabilize production if they are to win consumer support and develop long-term export markets, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Tuesday.

He told producers at the annual meeting of the Ontario Pork Congress that pork is the least stable livestock commodity.

Davis Says Federal Cabinet Has Not Yet Set Oil Price

TORONTO (CP)—Any increase in the domestic price of crude oil and natural gas would contradict what is expected to be the objective of the federal government's June 23 budget, Ontario Premier William Davis said Tuesday.

Citing recent Statistics Canada figures which show the economy at its worst in 21 years, he told Toronto and area Kiwanis clubs Ontario doesn't believe it is "rational or logical or responsible to increase inflation—to strike down jobs—though raising the price of crude oil and natural gas."

He said he had been told Friday by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald was "not right" in a statement that cabinet had agreed to the timing and extent of a price increase.

A $1-a-barrel increase in the price of crude oil would cost the average Ontario family $100 a year, prevent development of a further 7,000 jobs in the province, escalate prices and reduce the gross provincial product, he said.

He said the federal government, about to receive its share of an additional $328-million annual revenue through the price increase in export natural gas, would be among the winners of any domestic price increase.

"The escalation of crude oil and natural gas prices in Canada has been a mammoth windfall for the government of Canada.

"That they should be contemplating acts to increase the size of the windfall, when every extra penny they receive is a form of tax on the citizens, would be grossly inappropriate."

Questioned in the legislature, Ontario Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell said he made clear the province's position to his counterpart in Alberta in a meeting two weeks ago.

Asked by NDP Leader Stephen Lewis what inventory the oil companies have on hand, he said he would look into the amounts.

SUMMER STORAGE OF FOOD STAPLES

Warm, humid weather shortens shelf life of many staples. These precautions will help control spoilage when really hot weather strikes:

*Clean cupboards thoroughly now, using up old supplies. Check dry staples and mites periodically throughout the summer.

*Buy only as much of cereals and other grain products as can be used in 6 months. Whole grain products have shorter life than refined ones. Store in clean, dry, closely covered containers.

*Remove fat and leavening in mixes are affected by heat and moisture, buy only what can be used in a reasonable time.

*Date staples, especially canned foods which you might forget. Rotate items, using oldest ones first.

Johnson New Head as Picard Resigns as CBC President

OTTAWA (CP) Laurent Picard said Tuesday he is leaving the presidency of the CBC at a time when its long-term future growth seems set, and to stay any longer would be to pass the point of diminishing returns.

Mr. Picard, president since August, 1970, and executive vice-president for four years before that, said the corporation now needs a president who can commit himself for a full seven year term to bring stability to it.

Al Johnson, a career civil servant who has been deputy minister of health and welfare, became vice-president this month and will step up to the presidency when Mr. Picard retires Aug. 1. In fact, Mr. Johnson, in this fall, will take over next week when Mr. Picard, 47, leaves for a month's holiday in France with his family.

Mr. Picard said in an interview that as president he had brought new directions to the CBC, particularly in reorganizing the English TV network and in budgeting and head office administration.

"The direction, the long-term approach has been set," he said. "I leave behind me a strong team."

P. He said Mr. Johnson's appointment has been criticized because the deputy minister has had no broadcasting experience. Mr. Picard said he had none when he became vice-president—and neither had his presidential predecessor, George Davidson.

Mr. Picard said the new president is well versed in CBC financial affairs through Mr. Johnson's earlier position as secretary of the treasury board, and before that as an assistant deputy minister of finance.

While the chief product of the corporation is its English and French radio and television networks and programs and its services to the far North, Mr. Picard said still is in the network, not the president's office.

He said programming decisions rarely come to his office. The president's job is to decide general directions and leave it to men like John Hirsch, head of English TV drama, and McAndrew, head of English TV variety programming, to develop their departments.

Mr. Picard said the CBC needs more light entertainment shows, "to help us laugh at ourselves, and perhaps be sorry about ourselves."

A graduate of the Harvard University school of business administration, he leaves the CBC to become head of Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, Que.

He said he could not pass up the new job offer because of the the challenge it provides in the field of management.

"The CBC is not going to be the prisoner of my choice for my successor," Mr. Picard said. "But we need a president who is ready to commit himself for seven years into the future. I can't give that commitment."

He said he had told the government when he took over the presidency it would be only for two or three years. During the seven years he has worked in Ottawa, his family has lived in Montreal and he has commuted between the two cities. Now he wants to get back to his family, permanently.

Paul Anka At CNE

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian National Exhibition announced on Tuesday its 1975 Grandstand lineup, including stars Anne Murray, Paul Anka, Olivia Newton-John and a two-night booking for Chicago.

The exhibition is bringing in big-name acts for 14 nights at the Grandstand, only four nights filled by Canadian performers.

General manager David Garrick says the vast majority of entertainers elsewhere on the grounds will be Canadian. Some supporting acts for Grandstand stars are still to be signed.

The Guess Who will be back for the sixth consecutive year and the Osmonds for the fifth. Lawrence Welk and the Beach Boys will both make return engagements.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Thursday, June 19

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to be too pleased give and demanding of a loved one today. It could cause a rift difficult to heal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Tie a string around your finger to remember to do something today that you've promised your mate. She's counting on you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're still not in full gear with your productivity. Stop looking for excuses. Get down to work.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This evening you'll let your guard down a bit where social dialogues are concerned. You could overindulge in some manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you want to keep peace at home today, set your crown aside. Pitch in like all the rest. Being a straw boss won't win points.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Bs complimentary today to one who really deserves it though you feel she never pats you on the back when you've done something noteworthy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A friend who always borrows things but is slow return: if then will have her hand out again today. Try to say "no" diplomatically.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A friend who promised you a favor will have to back off. Don't be angry; She'll be as disappointed as you are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep all your dealings out in the open today. If you try to do something coy, no matter how harmless. You'll get caught.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Watch out for a friend today who tells tales behind people's backs. She could involve you in an intrigue you're better off without.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't take role credit today for something another had a hand in bringing about. There's room for the spotlight for both parties.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It would be unwise to look to a person who has proved to be unreliable to bail you out of a problem. Find a new source.

To Your Good Health

Adequate Protein Easy to Obtain

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoteson: I have low blood sugar and, as you know, I must eat food high in protein, low in carbohydrates. Now, my question arises because of a trip I am planning this summer into a rather primitive area.

I was wondering if there are some kinds of proteins you can buy in cans. All we will have with us is a cooler in which to keep food. Some of the products in cans I have looked at have sugar in them. When I eat them I get a headache.

What would be a good thing to take along on such a trip? — Mrs. R.B.

"First of all, I believe you would have foods high enough in proteins for your regular three meals from any reasonable food supply. Meat or dried fish, for example, serve this purpose. For your protein snacks, which are also desirable in hypoglycemia, you can have hard-boiled eggs, cheese, leftover meat and fish, or poultry. Nuts are an excellent protein source.

You can get canned protein supplements, but they might involve extra and perhaps unnecessary spoonfuls of sugar. Much depends on just how remote the area is.

In recent years, advances have been made in the manufacture of protein concentrates in which most fat, carbohydrate, and water have been removed. Oil of fish concentrate has up to 90 per cent protein content. Soybean products are the cheapest source of protein now available in the world. A soybean flour might be used in place of regular flour, if you're planning to take any. If you feel you need such items, you should check a health food store, which can advise you about their availability. Many of the concentrate foods are in research stages and may not be available.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 73 and weigh 178 pounds. I eat two meals a day, breakfast and dinner. For breakfast I have cold cereal with milk and sugar, also prune juice and orange juice, occasionally a cup of coffee.

I exercise and take a sauna bath every day. My doctor gives me an injection of liver and vitamin for anemia. How do you think of my diet?—A.H.

The breakfast sounds acceptable, but what about dinner? Your anemia can be related to a deficiency of other foods, such as meats, in your daily intake. You don't give me any height and weight information, so it is difficult to say whether or not your 178 pounds represents overweight. But if you are an average-sized man, you might have room for an extra 50 calories a day for some of those pounds, especially if you are a sedentary physical oil-ments. These can dehydrate people and cause or worsen blood vessel problems.

Does your doctor know about them? If not, you would be wise to mention the subject to him or her and ask about it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes peritonitis? Is it from appendix, the liver, ulcers or what?—A.H.R.

Peritonitis is an inflammation of the peritoneum, the inner lining of the abdomen cavity within which lies the intestinal tract.

The source of the infection may be anywhere within this tract, and it can break through the abdominal cavity via a perforation, as in ulcer, or by way of a ruptured appendix. Or the gall bladder can be also be a source.

There are numerous other possible sources of peritonitis. In women, it can arise from an infection in the genital tract. Other possible causes are infections such as tuberculosis, or a complication from gall bladder, stab wounds, or from abdominal surgery.

Opening lead — J ♥

A trapper cuts a fine figure in the North western. He is a mixer able object at the bridge table.

North's opening bid was quite sound although in the minimum range and the prospect of getting certainly didn't hurt it any. North might well have made the slightly optimistic jump to three spades, but he decided to make the conservative bid of just two.

This bid should have conveyed the message, "Place the contract if you can but I do not want any further bid or bids from me. I am willing to game or slam and I will take action."

In response to that message, South jumped to four spades. As far as South knew he had placed the contract at game. However, North revealed his hand and decided to make one more bid. He cue bid hearts!

South had been trapped. He wagled no part of a slam and merely returned to five spades. North passed this and it was up to South to try to make 11 tricks instead of just 10.

Actually, he might make. Just place king and one spade in the East hand. Furthermore, five was a pretty good contract. It only went down because West was sitting in back of South with the king-jack and another trump.

This was unfortunate indeed, but it didn't make either North or South any happier.

CARD SENSE

The bidding has been: 1♠

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 N.T.	Pass	3 ♦
Pass	2 ♥	Pass	?

You, South, hold: ♠ 7 ♥ K J 9 7 5 ♦ A K Q J 4 ♣ A 4

What do you do now?

— Bid four hearts. At the very worst there will be a play for this contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three hearts your partner has bid three notrump over your three diamonds. What do you do now?

Be Kind to Cats... It Could Save Your Life

OTTAWA (CP) — Next time you are tempted to throw a kettle of hot water as the neighbor's cat howls beneath your window, think twice—a cat may save your life.

In fact, if scientists testing thalidomide in the 1960s had used cats as experimental animals instead of rats, one of the worst greatest drug tragedies might have been avoided, an Ottawa scientist says.

"Rodents just do not respond to thalidomide the way human fetuses do," Dr. Kundan Khera of the federal health protection branch said in an interview.

However, experiments with cats showed that they do respond in the same way as humans."

In fact, the hitherto approved feline species, scientifically speaking, also responds to tranquetrate, used to treat certain forms of cancer, and several other drugs.

Cats have been proved useful in medical and animal research, he said, mostly because they live best only during the first months from January to June.

He said that when scientists are testing chemicals in an attempt to determine a potential hazard for a human fetus it important to be able to conduct tests all year.

"We have solved this problem by giving the cat an injection of gonadotropin, a hormone that will bring the feline into heat."

He agreed that animal data is not always applicable to humans of the effects of the human fetus.

"However," he added," there is no other satisfactory recourse except to improve the present techniques so that hazards of food additives and the like for human fetal development could be accurately determined."

At the same time he stressed that most of Canada's food preparations appear to be without excessive hazards. But with two per cent of all newborn babies suffering major physical defects, doctors and research-ers continue to search for the source of the problems.

PCs Would Halt Sales of Reactors

OTTAWA (CP) — The gap between the government and its parliamentary opposition over nuclear matters became wider Tuesday when the Progressive Conservatives demanded a moratorium on reactor sales.

The call by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield was the strongest statement yet in the party's growing opposition to Canadian nuclear reacor sales abroad. It contained anxiety about the possibility of a nuclear catastrophe.

It was made in the Commons, and was supported by New Democrat energy critic T. C. Douglas, as Prime Minister Trudeau was preparing to reiterate government determination to continue reactor sales despite the risks.

The prime minister addressed the Canadian Nuclear Association, which earlier Tuesday said it favors more Candu nuclear reactor sales.

Mr. Trudeau was backed by External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen who revealed in the Commons that Canada, in bilateral agreements with Candu customers, will seek the power of veto over the use of spent fuel. This fuel contains plutonium from which bombs can be made.

Both men reiterated government policy that despite the risks, nuclear power must be made available to developing countries desperately in need of relatively cheap electricity.

Mr. MacEachen and the prime minister strongly defended Canadian nuclear safeguard policies, but the external affairs minister heard strong complaints against them.

Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland—Durham) said a Pakistani at the site of a Canadian-supplied Candu near Karachi, Pakistan, told him the international inspection that Canada depends on for its safeguards is a joke—that there is no inspection with any meaning.

Mr. Stanfield's speech underscored his party's growing concern over proposed sales of Candus to South Korea and Argentina.

He, Mr. Douglas and Claude Wagner (St. Hyacinthe), Conservative external affairs critic, said neither of those two countries are stable. Both might be affected by terrorism and existing safeguards did not cover a sudden change of government, nor the use of spent fuel.

Mr. Stanfield said there should be a moratorium while Canada presses the other nuclear exporting countries—the United States, France, the Soviet Union, West Germany and Britain—to achieve some control and to stop nuclear proliferation. There could be an interim arrangement until a worldwide agreement on restraint was reached.

The Conservative leader also said Parliament should have to approve Candu sales. He suggested this "because of the immense unbelievable horror which could confront the world if nuclear proliferation becomes the reality which it is well on the way to becoming."

Swinging George Hees Becomes Senior Citizen

OTTAWA (CP) — George Hees, who long had an image as one of the swinging young members of the Conservative Party, became a senior citizen Tuesday.

After his 65th birthday was acknowledged in the Commons, Mr. Hees characteristically slipped away without giving reporters an opportunity for an interview.

The Conservative MP for Prince Edward-Hastings, cabinet minister in the Diefenbaker government and former president of the party, was brief and subdued when he responded to birthday congratulations from Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield.

"Since I arrived here 25 years ago I have seen many things happen but have never seen a better House, better members and better friends than there are in this House at the present time."

Prime Minister Trudeau, whom Mr. Hees heckles regularly, was away launching Senior Citizen's Week. But Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, injecting the needle on behalf of the prime minister, was quick to make reference to old age security.

He referred to special identity cards for senior citizens and said: "I kept a special one for the honorable member and will make a special presentation to him very shortly."

Retail Sales Lower in April

OTTAWA (CP) — Retail sales turned down for a second successive month in April and the increase in wholesale sales was too small to outpace the inflation rate, figures released Tuesday by Statistics Canada show.

600 Trapped in Prison

Troops Rescue Catholics From Lisbon Leftist Mob

LISBON (CP) — Troops today evacuated about 600 Catholics, most of them nuns, trapped all night in the palace of the Archbishop of Lisbon by angry left-wing extremists.

The Catholics, some of them injured in a clash with the leftists outside the palace Wednesday night were driven off in open army trucks.

The Catholics had tried to stage a counter-demonstration against a left-wing rally in support of workers who had occupied a Catholic radio station. The occupation has threatened a church-state split.

The Catholics took refuge in the palace, headquarters of the Portuguese Catholic Church. The leftists, at times numbering over 5,000, threw stones, iron bars and sticks, and shouted "Death to Fascism."

Soldiers guarding the palace said after today's evacuation that only a handful of Catholics were injured, none of them seriously.

As they were driven off in open army trucks, the surging crowd of leftists pelted them with rubbish and shouted insults.

There were nuns and a number of children among the evacuees.

The left-wing demonstration was called by the Popular Democratic Union, a small extreme group with one seat in the elected constituent assembly. They were supporting workers who had occupied the Lisbon studios of the Catholic Radio Renascence.

The Catholic management of the radio warned earlier this month that there would be a church-state split if Portugal's leftist military leaders did not evict the occupiers.

The split appeared closer today after Catholic bishops issued a statement containing their sharpest criticism so far of the country's swing to the left.

Their statement, published before the wild scenes at the palace, accused the military of promoting East Europe's totalitarian regimes as model societies.

Mistreatment Alleged

Stanfield Demands Morgentaler Probe

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Controversy over imprisoned abortionist Dr. Henry Morgentaler continues to reverberate on the political and legal fronts.

Twice acquitted by Montreal juries on charges of performing illegal abortions, the 59-year-old Polish-born surgeon is in hospital with a heart ailment while echoes of his case are heard in Ottawa, Quebec and elsewhere as conflicting claims pile up.

In the Commons Wednesday, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield called for an independent inquiry into allegations that Dr. Morgentaler was mistreated in the Quebec province prison where he had been serving an 18-month sentence imposed by the Quebec Court of Appeal after his first jury acquittal.

Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said media reports quoting a smuggled-out letter by Dr. Morgentaler saying he was denied heart medicine in jail are "unfounded and just plain lies."

Federal Justice Minister Otto Lang disposed of Mr. Stanfield's demand by saying any representations about the doctor's treatment in prison should be directed to the Quebec provincial authorities.

In the Commons also, former prime minister John Diefenbaker called for a new federal law to prevent an appeal court from substituting its own view for that of a jury.

Mr. Lang acknowledged that the Supreme Court of Canada decision upholding the contested appeal court conviction was unusual but saw it as "no great danger to the jury system".

Map of Israel Endorsed

Rabin Would Annex Golan Hills, Gaza

TEL AVIV (AP) — The secretary-general of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's Labor party said today the party has adopted a map for Israel's final peace borders that annexes the Golan Heights and the Gaza Strip.

Mordechai Zarmi, a gathering of Labor party kibbutz members that the new map:

—Annexes the Golan Heights, captured from Syria in the 1967 six-day war.

—Annexes the Gaza Strip, captured from Egypt in 1967.

—Establishes the Jordan River as Israel's security border.

—Leaves open for future negotiation the sovereignty of the west bank, won from Jordan eight years ago.

—Leaves open for negotiation the sovereignty of Sharm el Sheikh at the southern tip of Egypt's Sinai Peninsula, as well as a narrow strip of land on the east coast of the Gulf of Aqaba connecting Israel proper with the Strategic strait.

A Labor party spokesman said all party cabinet ministers included Rabin, Defence Minister Shimon Peres and Foreign Minister Yigal Allon, were obliged to support the map should it ever come up for a vote within the government. This means the Labor map almost certainly would become official Israeli policy since Labor has a clear majority in the coalition cabinet.

But, any settlement negotiated on the basis of the map would have to win approval from parliament where Labor has no majority.

The government has come under some accusations, both at home and abroad, of failing to present a clear program for a final peace settlement with the Arabs, including a map of the borders it wants. Zarmi's statement that Labor has "a clear final map" appeared aimed at countering these attacks.

The specific points mentioned by Zarmi have been made public before but it was believed the first time they were compiled and presented as a clear and "final peace map."

Zarmi did not mention the disputed city of Jerusalem in his speech.

Zvi Harmor, party spokesman, said "the question of Jerusalem, from our point of view, is already settled. It has formally been annexed, and there is no question of unannexing it."

Sagging Profits Worrying Turner

OTTAWA (CP) — With budget night drawing near, Statistics Canada has released a series of economic indicators that show some of the problems Finance Minister John Turner must deal with Monday.

One of the problem areas is sagging corporate profits, which government officials fear may later be reflected in reduced capital investment.

Statistics Canada said Wednesday that first-quarter profit for industrial corporations dropped 9.8 per cent from a year earlier to $1.96 billion. This represented a drop of $210 million in after-tax profit for the 400 companies surveyed.

While capital investment in new production equipment has so far remained relatively strong, Mr. Turner has publicly stated he fears it may be affected by falling profits.

Profits also were down in the first quarter of 1974, the first drop after 14 consecutive quarterly increases.

Reduced business investment might further aggravate unemployment, and also affect Canada's competitive ability in world markets. [Unemployment between March and May exceeded seven per cent of the labor force', the highest jobless rate in 14 years, Statistics Canada figures show.

Statistics Canada figures released Wednesday show the average weekly earnings for industrial workers was up 14.8 per cent in April from a year ago at $187.07. In that same period, the consumer price index was up 11.1 per cent, so that wage gains have outstripped the inflation rate.

But industrial production is down: Statistics Canada Wednesday reported a production decline for April, at the same time saying manufacturers' inventories of unsold goods are on the rise.

Earlier this week a report from the government agency showed seasonally-adjusted retail sales during April declined 1.4 per cent to $3.9 billion. It was the second consecutive month that sales were down.

The figures point to costs, and not excessive demand, as the primary force behind currently rising prices.

Oil Price To Be Decided Before Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday a decision on domestic crude oil price increases will be made before the federal budget is brought down Monday night.

He told reporters he had "gone through one round" of bilateral talks with the provincial premiers and now has to "get back to some of them" for further negotiations.

But, "we will have to know what the decision will be before Monday."

He was not sure when the new prices would be announced.

However, the new prices are unlikely to be made public before Monday night's budget. The Alberta government has said it will not give final approval to any deal on prices before it sees the budget speech.

Union Steward Facing Charge

By RACHEL SPENCER
Staff Correspondent

MADOC — A Belleville area man who is steward for striking Hastings County road workers has been charged with the obstruction of a weapon dangerous to the public.

Provincial police at Madoc said the charge followed what they called "an infraction" Tuesday at the junction of Highway 62 and County Road 11 at Eldorado.

They gave no further details.

Police said they went to the home of John Robert Boyle, 29, RR 4, Belleville, later that night and seized a number of rifles and ammunition.

They say Mr. Boyle has been issued with a summons to appear in court here July 8.

Indian Chiefs Complain Fishing Rights Ignored

TORONTO (CP) — Fifteen Indian chiefs called Wednesday for the federal government to either live up to the terms of an 1850 treaty giving them out-season fishing rights or to negotiate new terms it will honor.

The statement by representatives of 15 bands from the area under the jurisdiction of the Robinson Huron Treaty, was issued through Toronto lawyer Paul Williams after two Ojibway Indians were convicted in provincial court of fishing out of season.

Mr. Williams said the Indians, fined $50 each, were faulted legally as terms of the treaty read, but illegally in the eyes of the Canada Fisheries Act.

He said the Supreme Court of Canada has ruled that federal law supersedes treaty rights and the court decision Wednesday followed that precedent.

Over 2,000 Seeking 165 Jobs At Procter and Gamble Here

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Before Belleville's new Procter and Gamble plant even opens its doors, the company is earning a reputation as one of the community's more selective employers.

More than 2,000 Belleville and area workers have applied for 165 openings and the firm is still defining help wanted advertisements.

The industry is one of the largest to locate within the city's boundaries in recent years and is geared to employ 165 people when it begins manufacturing Pampers disposable diapers late this fall.

Plant information officer Dave Fuller said during a telephone interview: "Our hiring process is a long involved one — requiring the applicant to make several trips to our employment office. Each applicant must submit to three interviews and several tests."

"We want to select the best staff we can," he said. He would not reveal how many of the 2,000 had been put through the company's hiring procedure or how many had been successful. "We've hired some," he said.

"We're quite a ways away from the whole complement (of staff), said Mr. Miller.

Wages have not been disclosed for employees at the plant.

Mr. Miller said "wages have not been approved," and that final pay scales should be known within the next two or three weeks.

Construction of the plant, located in the city's north west industrial park, should be complete by the early fall. Office staff members currently interviewing job applicants at the Appleyard Building will be moving into their permanent plant office mid-July said Mr. Miller.

CIA Tried To Poison Cuban Trio

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) organized an attempt in 1961 to poison Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, his younger brother Raul and the Guevara widow while they were dining together, the New York Times says.

Quoting an unidentified source, The Times says the agency believed the three men were strong enough to rally the country against a counter-revolutionary invasion such as the Bay of Pigs, then in the planning stage.

While recent reports on the CIA have linked the agency with assassination attempts against Fidel Castro, The Times story is the first that names other Cuban leaders as targets.

The newspaper says the inclusion of Raul Castro and Guevara, a revolutionary folk hero then head of the national bank, indicated the CIA hoped to create a power vacuum in Cuba to foster confusion following the bombing.

However, the would-be assassin reported he had been unable to get close enough to the three men while they were dining.

Middlemen for the plot were two alleged organized crime figures recruited by Robert Maheu, a former agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and until 1966 a top aide to billionaire Howard Hughes.

Dams Major Hazard to Cold Creek

By CARR MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Cold Creek, one of the prime brook trout streams in this part of the province, is under the intense scrutiny of the provincial ministry of natural resources this summer. A major conclusion to be drawn from the stream inventory study will be the effect of damming on the trout in the creek.

Napanee district fish and wildlife supervisor Hans von Rosen said he feels unauthorized beaver dams pose the biggest threat to the fishing future of the waterway that flows east into the Trent River at Frankford.

"When the first settlers arrived on the shores of Lake Ontario, the first thing they did was dam its feeder streams to create head ponds for mills to grind grain and saw wood. If they hadn't done that, we'd probably still have Atlantic Salmon in the lake."

Mr. von Rosen said.

"Dams simulate hasn't changed. People still want a pond or swimming hole in front of their house, but this usually results in the rapid deterioration of stream quality.

"Would we rather have a pond full of muskrats or a stream full of trout?" Mr. von Rosen asked.

"The situation hasn't changed. People still want a pond or swimming hole in front of their house, but this usually results in the rapid deterioration of stream quality.

"Would we rather have a pond full of muskrats or a stream full of trout?" Mr. von Rosen asked.

"Dams interfere with fish migration; they cause buildup of silt upstream of the dam as the water is slowed and this destroys trout spawning beds. Also, they make a warm stream water considerably. The water that spills over dams is warm water and it flows downstream and spoils the trout environment there.

"When all these things happen," Mr. von Rosen said, no person may build on dam "the trout population declines or disappears and other less desirable fish take over."

By law, Mr. von Rosen said, on a stream unless permission has been obtained from the ministry of natural resources. Illegal structures can be ordered removed, or they can be removed at the builder's expense. Builders of illegal dams are also subject to fines.

Mr. von Rosen recognizes that most existing dams are of such long standing that little can be done about them, but hopes landowners can be discouraged from adding to the problems the trout already face.

"Another problem," he added, "is cattle. When they break down stream banks and stir up silt, spawning beds suffer and waste elements added to the stream upset the environment for trout."

Murray Township Increases Taxes Average of $40 - $60

WOOLER — Murray council gave its official stamp of approval Wednesday to a $1,030,000 budget for 1975 that translates into a 40 to 60 increase in taxes for the average township homeowner.

The majority of taxpayers, supporters of the public school system, will face a 30 percent mill rate increase, up 20 mills over that of 1974. Last year, the mill rate stood at 100.

For separate school supporters, the picture differs. In both cases including the country rate increase, Hastings Prince Edward board supporters must pay out dollars represented by an approximate 25 mill jump. Peterborough-Victoria-Northumberland and Newcastle board supporters will see their tax bills rise by 11 mills.

Murray clerk Ken Rose blames the jump in the rate on an increase in levies by the boards of education and the county. The township portion of the budget, $521,000 has been held in check with no curtailment of spending.

He said the mill increase is the first in the township since 1970. Councils have either maintained or reduced the mill rate until this year.

"Even with dropping the mill rate (from 108 to 100 mills in 1973) we saved some money," said Mr. Rose. The money "tucked away" by previous councils now will be used to pay an approximate $110,000 bill for establishment of a fire department in the township this year.

A fire truck, now ordered from the manufacturer, will cost Murray about $44,000 while land for a fire hall is set at $9,000. Council has put aside $58,500 for construction of the hall, but Mr. Rose said the cost may have to be spread over two years, depending on total costs.

The clerk said the township will now be forced to keep a close watch on expenditures since its reserve funds have now dried up.

Council gave initial approval to the 1975 budget Monday at a special meeting, and passed a by-law slapping the million-dollar-plus expenditure last night.

Mr. Rose said council was able to keep its own requisitions level despite an increase in expenditures through increased provincial grants and assessment in the township.

Argentina Isolated By Ban on Imports

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Millions of foreign books, newspapers and magazines are rolling in Argentine warehouses because of import restrictions which are isolating this country from the rest of the world.

The influx of foreign publications has reduced to a trickle after Feb. 21 when the Peronist government suspended all imports to halt a heavy drain on hard cash reserves.

Books ordered for schools, universities and the flourishing market for foreign-language literature have been held in customs sheds since then.

Argentina culture has become a victim of its economy, the influential daily newspaper La Nacion said in a recent editorial.

The import ban was slapped on all goods by Economy Minister Alfredo Morales when foreign currency reserves threatened to fall below $1 billion—the equivalent of Zaccaria goods have been allowed to reach vital sectors such as the motor and pharmaceutical industries, which depend on imports, but no ex-ceptions have been made for printed material.

But importers now are worried that when a new import system is applied, they will no longer enjoy that privileges.

Film distributors also are worried that their boom business in foreign films might be at an end. No licences for new film imports have been granted since April.

Book importers, meanwhile, are facing disastrous financial problems at home and court cases abroad for failure to pay for consignments already delivered.

Prof. Obordan Calotti, spokesman for the Argentine Chamber of Publishing Agents, said many of the books and magazines in the warehouses are being damaged by dampness.

"There have been cases of pilfering too. One consignment of an expensive art books has been reduced to 264.

Importers must pay storage costs for their goods in the customs and postal sorting offices.

Until liquid importers were not being allowed to pay their foreign clients even if the books or magazines had actually been delivered.

"When imports were suspended, all import licences were automatically cancelled. We were told to apply for new licences but none have been granted," he said.

"Without licences, the central bank will not authorize payment of foreign currency. Without the licences 'we cannot collect the books. It's a vicious circle."

Publishing houses in Britain, Italy, France and West Germany are threatening legal action against the 100 book importers in Argentina, he said.

Picton Egg Producer Quits Association

PICTON — A local egg producer has resigned from the Ontario Egg Producer Association because he fears an agreement with a federal agency leaves his member open to lawsuits.

MacKenzie Brown said Wednesday he interprets the agreement with the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) as committing the board to follow action contary to Ontario legislation.

Mr. Brown said the agreement with CEMA provides for penalty payments if Ontario producers' ben fiecia exceed the federal agency's allotments in any given months.

The Ontario board would be required to pay a penalty of $1 a ben. This would be paid out of a general fund raised through levies on provincial producers.

But, said Mr. Brown, Ontario legislation calls for overproduction penalties to be collected from individual producers responsible. Thus, lawsuits could arise against the provincial board.

He said he fears the board will be used by producers on grounds that use of funds raised through levies for payment of penalties would be illegal.

"It's a case of mismatched federal and provincial legislation," he said. "I don't want to get soaked for $50,000 or so."

In Picton today, Mr. Brown said unless the issue is resolved he couldn't see how any one could sit on the board for reason of personal liability.

"It might never happen. But, I think the danger is too real for me to take the risk," he said.

Commission To Study Oilfields

LONDON (CP) — Britain has set up a commission to study an economic problem arising from the need to gather the natural gas contained in oilfields already discovered in the North Sea.

The problem is whether it is better to build a pipeline to gather the gas from a number of sources and bring it ashore.

The move announced by Energy Secretary Eric Varley is an answer to fears that significant amounts of the gas produced would be lost if it proved if the quantity from each field is not sufficient to justify an individual pipeline.

Trenton Honors Civic Officials

TRENTON — Four Trenton citizens were presented long-service commemorative trays by Mayor Bob Patrick Wednesday at the third annual civic awards banquet here.

The recipients each have served 10 or close to 10 years on boards and committees of town council.

Marlon Baker, who has served on the parks board for 19 years and the recreation committee for two years, did not attend the banquet but will receive a commemorative tray.

Other recipients include former planning board member Dr. W. A. L. McDonald (1962-1974), former parking authority member John Saylor (1965-1974) and former court of revision member James Cold (1966-1968).

Presentation of the commemorative trays was the high light of the evening. Plus and awards for service by municipal employees and members of various other boards and committees were also presented.

Due to the error in the inscription in his tray, Paul Tripp did not receive an award Wednesday. Town officials plan to present him with a tray for nine years of service to the industrial committee.

Jury Suggests Double Doors On All Portable Classrooms

BLOOMFIELD — An inspection tour of Prince Edward County Collegiate Institute made recently by a grand jury has led to a recommendation for a second doorway in all portable classrooms in Prince Edward County.

The jury report stated the doorway should be provided immediately "as per standard fire regulations."

When the recommendation was read this week during a meeting of Prince Edward school trustees, business administrator for the board Ernest Short said the portables' single exits do not contravene fire regulations.

The jury's report noted PECI was clean and tidy except for the industrial laboratory which had an untidy stock room.

The tour of the school was made this year for the first time following remarks by County Judge Russell Honey.

Judge Honey, while instructing the Grand Jury of the County Court General Sessions, informed jurors they had the right to inspect any or all buildings owned by the federal, provincial or municipal governments.

Participatory Democracy, Consensus, Grassroots and All That, Has Worn Thin

By E.W. GROYER

For Richard Jackson

On Tuesday

Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the swinging bachelor politician, came to power in 1968 on a three-prong platform — participatory democracy, consensus, grassroots. Forgotten the third? Don't let it bother you. Mr. Trudeau promptly forgot all three. Actually, he campaigned with handshakes, smiles, shopping trips, selfies, kissing babies, girls and diving into moat swimming pools.

Participatory democracy manifested itself in three ways. Once the Trudeaumite were in power. The first was Information Canada, the superflat organization set up to streamline the outflow of government information and provide a channel for public views to policymakers. It now runs a government bookstore — something that the Queen's Printer, operating quite successfully before — and refers callers to other government departmental information offices for data they require.

The second was to combine a flock of private consultants to analyze a variety of aspects of the Canadian scene. Then having spent a lot of the taxpayers' money gathering the information, the Liberals fought like figures in Parliament to keep it from becoming public knowledge.

The real rub of participatory democracy, however, was to be the idea of government by consensus. Canadians were to be given a say in legislation before it was passed, or even in its truncated.

The idea was to circulate white papers on various topics to spark public discussion and sound out the national public opinion before the legislation was drafted. The white papers became green papers and red papers, but the result was generally the same — a flurry of discussion followed by legislation which may or may not bear any relationship to the original white paper.

The first was a White Paper on taxation which discussed the pros and cons of Kennedy Carter's views to reforms of the income tax. Almost everyone had given the government the benefit of their views. Finance minister of the day presented a simplified income tax policy that "is back-to-a-book-of-a-book" and came up with a document more of tax law that has given the chartered accountant business a fillip. Not a short in the arm is yours.

Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier's Green Paper on broadcasting is still going the rounds with the debate taking place mostly on federal-provincial ministerial level.

Former Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien introduced a Red Paper on the Indian Act which, in effect, told the Indians to write their own act. They are having no more success in reaching a consensus that would any other group of people spread across this vast country, speaking different languages and having the largest living standards.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde's Orange Paper on social welfare was hailed by almost everyone as the greatest advance in that field in generations. But apart from a few pension amendments, it hasn't resulted in any major legislative change.

The latest Green Paper to stir public debate was on immigration policy. Immigration Minister Robert Andras even set up a committee of MPs to travel across the country sounding out public opinion.

Grassroots participation in the democratic process. Apparently not. For just as the committee is getting into the swing of its work, State Secretary Hugh Faulkner moves second reading of a bill that affects major changes in Canadian citizenship legislation.

It is true that there are a lot of aspects of immigration policy that do not impinge on citizenship, but it does seem to a lot that do. Knowing what is involved in being a citizen at facts what kind of immigration policy the country needs. For instance, the kind of immigration paper proposes reducing the requirement from five to three years before an immigrant can apply for citizenship. Mr. Faulkner's bill makes the three-year requirement law.

Maybe the most charitable explanation is that this action is to the intelligence of the electorate is that Mr. Faulkner doesn't know what his cabinet colleague Mr. Andras is doing.

A Time to LooK Ahead

Another Friday The Thirteenth has slipped into the past once again, with its memories, good or bad, for each of us in this warm and pleasant summer.

The long evenings are here, but it is with a start that it is realized the half-way point of the year is only a few days away.

The other day a housewife was thinking ahead to winter and the need on the Rednersville Road, where she lives, for safer conditions for schoolchildren awaiting buses.

There likely are other routes too that need looking at in this regard, in surrounding townships — situations where safe pick-up points and shelters may be made available on narrow routes of this nature.

Summer may be only just starting in the official calendar order of things; nevertheless it is a time to start looking ahead and anticipating these and other needs of the future.

Looking ahead, keep in mind the good things just around the corner — such as the Kinsmen's 6th annual Highland Weekend coming up June 21-23, and that includes dancing Saturday night and the tattoo Sunday.

There was a time when this attraction coincided with the air show at Mountain View, culminating with the flight west to Vancouver of vintage planes. Unhappily, this show is suffering perhaps from the competition and, the second time around, from the weather as well, is now in limbo. A pity too, for it was unique entertainment and had the weather co-operated and sponsors been willing and able, it could still be going strong.

Oppel is Back in Laos

Remember Lloyd Oppel, the young missionary from Courtenay, B.C., who was imprisoned by the guerrillas in Laos for a time and was in Belleville in the course of a speaking tour after his release?

Mr. Oppel is back in Laos again. In fact, he has been there for some time.

This is interesting in view of the fact that Communist influence in the country has strengthened since the fall of the Saigon government in Vietnam, by the same token western influence is declining. The United States aid program for instance will be ended by June 30.

Word of Mr. Oppel's return comes to us from Bellevillian Robert Burr, a United Nations employee who left Laos himself not too long ago.

Mr. Burr says he had lunch with Mr. Oppel and his American fellow missionary in the village of Keng Khok several months ago. For Mr. Oppel, events have turned full circle; it was in Keng Khok that he was captured in the first place and from which he was marched to Hanoi.

The village, according to Mr. Burr, has been largely rebuilt after the destruction caused by the fighting and Mr. Oppel is now carrying on his missionary activities as before.

From what was told of Mr. Oppel and his experiences at the time of his return to Canada via the U.S. a couple of years ago, it was clear he would go back at the first opportunity. His dedication and courage there were very evident. How long he may be able to continue his missionary activities though in a country now veering more markedly toward Communism remains to be seen.

So Much for Democracy

Canada's activists are as noisy as they are self-righteous.

There can be no brief for the Western Guard white racist group which intended to put its case before the Immigration inquiry when it was in Toronto recently, but what are we to make, in this supposedly free country, of all those leftist radicals touting their placards and chanting, loudly, so that the white group was unable to say anything and had to withdraw.

It's not the first time Toronto has witnessed such a negation of democratic rights. Wasn't a visiting American speaker in the Under Attack program of the CBC also shouted down by University of Toronto radicals a while back?

So much for our free, democratic society. There is something very disturbing about demonstrators who make a spectacle of themselves in this fashion, as well as preventing others from exercising their democratic right.

Activists Deny Group a Hearing

The Globe and Mail

Lincoln Alexander, Tory member of the House of Commons for Hamilton West, understands democracy, all its warts its weaknesses, its meanness. He kept his place as a member of the parliamentary committee hearing briefs on immigration policy in Toronto's Park Plaza Hotel when the white-supremacist nut group, the Western Guard, appeared to spout its sentiment.

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

For people who believe in basic democratic rights, which include the willingness to accept every person's right to his own opinion, there is probably little to choose between the Communist Party of Canada (Marxist-Leninist) and the so-called Western Guard.

The latter group holds, among other rigidist views, extreme racial views, claiming, in its brief prepared for the Toronto hearings on the Green Paper on immigration, that all non-whites in Canada should be deported and recommending bonuses for Voting to have the committee accept the brief, he said this: "I believe the Canadian people should know what certain people stand for. Their position is a disgrace but I believe we should bring it out into the light."

That's right. We've heard the shouting, seen the dashed slogans — now let's read their brief.

In spite of the shrieking Maoists who for an hour disrupted the committee hearings with chants of "Fascist have no right to speak."

As for those members of Parliament on the committee who walked out rather than hear the Western Guard brief, Andrew Brewin (NDP, Greenwood) Maurice Bagin (L, Saint-Michel) and Robert Kaplan (L, York Centre). They seem to be serving the racists and the dirkdirkers.

managed to force temporary adjournment of the sessions with tactics similar to those used in Toronto.

In Stratford, some speakers praised the Toronto demonstrators and criticized the committee for providing a platform for vicious fascist propaganda.

Clearly there is a political objective behind these actions. Taken at face value, however, they suggest that those who resort to them deny the rights of a hearing don't understand the first thing about the way our political and legal system works.

Gun Control in Ontario

By DON O'HEARN'

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Certainly one of the most unusual debates we have had in the house is that which has been sent recently from time to time over gun control.

It has been remarkable in that while everybody favors gun control, nobody has been able to suggest how it is practical.

The man chiefly under the gun has been attorney-general and acting solicitor-general John Clement.

Is it Mr. Clement to whom the demands for controls are addressed. And it is he who must reply that they just aren't possible.

At present, of course, we do have some control over pistols and other hand guns.

They must be registered with the authorities and this registration gives some control, though nobody would claim it was anything close to perfect.

And with shotguns, automatic rifles and other so-called "long guns" there isn't even this protection.

And Mr. Clement says there can't be.

For one reason, most long guns don't carry serial marks. There is nothing on them barrel to identify them by and register them with.

Then there are so many of these rifles around that any registration program would call for massive space.

A registration program just doesn't seem practical.

Yet, authorities in Ottawa are working busily trying to come up with something.

And meanwhile, in the house there keeps up a constant clamor for gun legislation.

One possibility Mr. Clement does see is to make guns less accessible.

At present, of course, if one has the price they are as easy to purchase as peanuts.

But whether a concentrated effort could make them less easily available is a matter of question.

The attorney-general says it might only serve to send them underground.

A recent analysis indicates that, following the Soviet line, the Hungarian government is anti-Israel; still it pretends to be friendly towards Israel and to alienate the Jewish minority is difficult. Hungary is traditionally anti-Semitic Hungarian people, while they continue to find it, difficult to accept the Jews at home, like their Russian masters, in heartfelt pro-Israeli sentiment overcome their instinctive hatred for the Russians. Does the human spirit know any limit to rebelliousness?

Peking Jousts with Soviets

Brantford Expositor

Peking's latest jab at Moscow in their prolonged feud is an accusation that the Soviet Union is worming its way into Latin America with promises of trade and economic aid directed at ousting U.S. influence.

This is like the pot calling the kettle black. China too is no laggard at the infiltration game. Its own wooing of Black Africa ranges from building a rail railway of some 1,300 mile between Tanzania and Zambia to unfolding propaganda. Of the most extreme demands the badly fragmented organization of African Unity makes in defiance of reality.

Thousands of Chinese technicians, many more than Maoist, are working on the railway. It is known they supplied most of the weapons used by guerrillas in Mozambique and Rhodesia, supposedly fighting as their unarmed Black countrymen, the chief victims. And it is with Chinese weapons that members of the three rival power-seeking groups in the former Portuguese colony of Angola have for three months been killing each other and thousands of other Africans.

Inflation Woes 'Down-under'

The Australian

Now that inflation has been offered to compensate for rising living costs, now that Dr. Cairns has said the Government will have to sacrifice its spending plans and now that more tax relief appears likely, . . . surely all of us can do our bit to get the economy moving.

Today in Australia it is everyone to slow down on our pay requests, hold back on price rises and let the economy catch its breath before it choken. We all need a breathing space.

It is frightening enough that Australia's problems bear striking parallels to our own, more disturbing is that the same Intransigence is at work greed and the same lack of national purpose which have contributed so heavily to the British malaise are becoming accepted in Australia.

The only way the quality of life in Australia will advance is if we are all prepared to do a fair day's work for a fair day's pay.

GNP Without Inflation's Artificial Stimulus, Adds up to Stagnation

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

What has three letters and means bad news?

Answer: GNP—and the news it conveys is that the Canadian economy is in bad shape.

Gross National Product (GNP) measures the dollar cost of all goods and services produced in Canada in one year. It is the key indicator of over-all economic performance.

In the first three months of this year, the annual rate of Canada's GNP was 146.5 billion. That's 9.3 per cent higher than in fourth-quarter 1972, which in turn saw an increase of 1.3 per cent over the preceding quarter.

But those modest increases were entirely the result of inflation.

Take away inflationary price increases, and in true picture of Canada's current economic stagnation emerges:

For the 12 months ended March 31, the decline was two per cent—our worst economic year since the war.

And in the January-March period of this year, real GNP fell by nearly 1.5 per cent, the largest quarterly drop since 1961.

(In the first nine of the latest 21 months—that is, from April to December, 1972—real GNP had fluctuated between zero growth and 0.3 per cent quarterly decline.)

How reliable is the GNP figure as a true indicator of what is actually happening to the economy?

It may not be perfect, but it is nevertheless useful yardstick of Canada's material well-being.

Since it is based on samples and estimates, the GNP figure cannot be totally error-free. And there are certain unavoidable omissions—such as housework—because of the difficulty of estimating a dollar value.

(When goods are bartered, that type of transaction would not register on GNP for the same reason—no money changes hands.)

That leaves, as components of GNP, such items as wages, salaries and supplements; interest and rent; income from unincorporated enterprises (partnerships and one-person businesses); corporate profits; indirect taxes; and depreciation allowances.

The government statisticians first add up these items in terms of "market" (current) prices.

The next task is to eliminate the inflation factor and thus discover the real rate of change in GNP.

To do this, the statisticians "deflate" every item in the total GNP by an index linked to the various price rises in a certain base period. This base year has recently been changed to 1971 from 1961.

The inflation factor in the January-March period was 1.7 per cent, up from 1.4 per cent in the preceding three-month.

But Statistics Canada concedes the possibility that this may have been distorted by abnormal changes in business inventories.

It has calculated that, when the value of the physical change in inventories is left out of the equation, the inflationary factor in first-quarter GNP was 1.1 per cent, down from 2.4 per cent in fourth-quarter 1974.

In the field of consumer goods and services alone, the inflation rate, and a 1.4 percent rise in the latest quarter from 3.5 per cent in the preceding three months.

The slowdown in the inflation rate, and a 1.4 percent real growth in consumer spending, are about the only bright spots in the latest summing-up.

But only a confirmed optimist could find much comfort in those modest improvements when real GNP has been either static or declining in four consecutive quarters—for the first time since the Dirty 1930s.

How to approach a loan these days.

For a loan, as with anything else, it pays to shop around.

Rates do vary from place to place.

At the Commerce, though our rates are already competitive, we can even go one better. If you have a Commerce Key Account you get preferred rates on most consumer loans.

The fact remains, however, a loan costs money. And you have to repay it.

That's why we'd like to sit down and talk about it with you.

It's part of making sure you don't get in over your head just because you need the money.

If you need the loan for a car, we want to make sure your repayment plan still leaves you money to run it.

Talk to one of our over 1600 Commerce managers about the facts behind a Commerce Bankplan loan.

The more you know about the in's and out's of money, the better you can make use of the money you have.

And that's certainly worth talking about.

IT'S YOUR MONEY. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.

Ann Landers

Helpful Sister Means Well

Dear Ann Landers: I have a problem. It's my sister. Every time Hilda comes over she takes it upon herself to clean the house. Hilda isn't in the place five minutes before she asks for a cloth to get at "those fingerprints on the wall." Then she grabs the kitchen ladder and drags it around the house—carrying it from room to room wrapped around it so she can "wipe the webs out of the corners of the ceiling."

When Hilda has dinner with us she examines each piece of silverware. More than once, she has taken a fork or a spoon in the sink and washed it before using it. This really burns me up.

How does one deal with such a person who means well but gets on my nerves?—High Fever

Dear H.F.: One tells "the person" to please behave like a guest and set an inspection officer from the Department of public health.

One then informs "the person" that there will be no more housecleaning, silverware-polishing or cobweb-chasing. You say your sister means well but I'm not so sure I agree with you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am very sad about our dear little three-year-old grandson. He has picked up some four-letter words which embarrass his parents. I'm sure he learned these words from them, since they supply a great deal and are both capable of some shamefully crude language.

Now they are applying a large wooden spoon to the child's backside every time he says them.

I have told my daughter and son-in-law to ignore the boy when he uses these nasty words because he does it to get a rise out of them.

Tell me, am I wrong—that no child will continue to do something if he learns it will result in a painful paddling. Are they right and am I wrong?—K.G.

Dear K.G.: You are right and they are wrong. What your daughter and her husband don't understand is that children would rather be spanked than ignored. Obviously, your grandchild is not getting enough attention.

Children need models more than they need critics. Most youngsters learn verbotten words from playmates. Apparently your grandson doesn't even need to have the house.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I love each other very much, but he has been after me to join a "swingers club" in Indianapolis "just to see what it's like."

I'm afraid of what it might do to our marriage. He says it will improve it—that all married people need a few extra kicks. He claims if a couple really love each other "swinging" will not hurt their relationship.

Please tell me what you have heard from couples who went for these "extra kicks"? Did it help? Did it hurt?

I'm a broad-minded person but this sort of thing seems very far out to me.—Muscle, Ind.

Dear Muscle: I have heard from several people who went in for "swinging." Most of the letters were from wives who said they were being divorced because those "extra kicks" led to emotional involvements and bitter arguments.

Tell your husband to forget it. "Swinging" is dangerous, destructive and has no positive aspects whatever.

Dear Ann Landers: God bless that man who wrote to praise his wife for all the things she does during the day.

He found out what a remarkable woman he was married to when she had to go to the hospital for a hysterectomy and he took care of the house and kids for a week.

Are you sure that man isn't from another planet? I've been married to an angel every one of 47 years and he has yet to give me a compliment, a thank you, a Christmas present, or a card on my birthday! I never know one word out of him unless he wants to give me hell for something. I must give him HIM a compliment, however—he's the best maid-finder in the world.

How wonderful to learn that a husband somewhere appreciates his wife. Too bad I wasn't a better judge of people 47 years ago.—Lydia

Dear Lydia: You didn't ask for any advice so I won't give any, but my sympathy goes out to you. I just hope there are compensations—like loving children and grandchildren.

Won't Evict Mom

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Solicitors working on the demolition of the heard-ing at South Waterloo Memorial Park postponed work until a few a mother robs in raise three newly-hatched chicks. The men have made concessions for motherhood before when they moved their digging to another location to avoid disturbing a nest of baby rabbits.

OPP Constable Likes Her Job

OTTAWA (CP) — For policewoman Judy Hulsam, her first six months in the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) were "just a little bit shaky."

She took an audience at the Public Library that the first reaction of male officers was that policewomen should not get equal pay because they would get all the "soft jobs."

She soon proved them wrong and after her training period at the Aylmer, Ont., detachment she patrolled alone in her cruiser and worked the same shifts as the other constables.

Constable Hulsam says that now, a year later, most of her co-workers have "softened."

"Generally, we're accepted but it's going to take them a while to get used to it, comfortably."

Her brother is also a police man, and she says she knew what she was getting into.

Constable Hulsam says that being a woman is not much of a disadvantage in police work, although her drivers told her that "because I was a woman I had no right giving them a ticket."

Saskatchewan Hit by VD, Steps Up Public Campaign

REGINA (CP) — At one time, just mentioning venereal disease was considered a faux pas, but nowadays a province can run a full-fledged advertising campaign on VD and nothing happens except the place gets a bad name.

Saskatchewan decided in the fall of 1973 to expand its VD operation after incidence of the disease hit what was termed "epidemic" proportions. The province budgeted $114,000 for 1973-74 and $140,000 in 1974-75 to try to ease the problem.

"Public acceptance of the whole program was extremely good," said Tony Cosgrove, director of health education and information.

The anticipated emotionalism about the subject didn't materialize but a nagging suspicion that the population was rather more sophisticated than expected did, he said.

That emerged as well was the image that Saskatchewan was a hotbed of the disease, said Dr. Hugh Grocott, the department's director of child health.

"The more successful our public service is, the worse it looks," Dr. Grocott said, referring to statistics which showed the department was being notified of more and more cases of VD and increasing the number itself by chasing down those who came in contact with infected residents.

"We're stacking the case against us."

He suggested it will take at least five years before the real success of the program is known and surveys will begin to show whether VD is being spread around as rapidly as it now is.

In 1965, 291 VD cases were reported for people between the ages of five and 19. That figure climbed to 1,168 in 1973. Meanwhile, the population of the province was dropping—a fall of 50,000 between 1969 and 1972.

The problem area exists for those between 15 and 19 with no differentiation between rural and urban dwellers and the advertising campaign was aimed at young people, Mr. Cosgrove said.

"The idea wasn't to be preachy," he explained, but simply to tell the facts so they were without moralizing.

"Not that morality doesn't have something to do with VD.

"It's social change that brings about increases in this disease and nothing else," Dr. Grocott said, adding that morality can't be legislated.

The initial point of the advertising, said Mr. Cosgrove, was to make people aware of the disease, through print and bus cards, drive-in movie filters (suspected of being a fruitful area) and posters, booklets and pamphlets.

The second period has been during the summer when young people watch less television and have more free time for social activity.

The ads were beamed at getting people to pick up the health department's booklet Everything You Wanted to Know about VD but Were Afraid to Ask.

A toll-free, 24-hour telephone number was also set up, giving those concerned a direct line to nurses and health professionals on duty. A peak of 154 calls a month was reached but use of the number dropped off and it has since been discontinued.

The second phase was education—getting the booklets out as well as a kit of pamphlets and technical information for doctors, health clinics and schools where they could be distributed.

For a while, the department made a do-it-yourself test kit available for women but found not enough of them were being used. Treatment kits for doctors and clinics, however, still are in use.

The program, said Dr. Grocott, identified the segment of the population in need of treatment and taught whose who are repeatedly infected (some as many as five times a year) where and how to get treatment.

The program made it easier for people to come forward for treatment, increased the number of contacts to be chased down and made it easier to treat them and so, in time, will limit the spread of the disease, or at least cut the days when people let it go untreated until it was harmful, the doctor said.

How Will You Feel When You're Old?

Like a lot of other people my age — (the 30s) — I'm starting to think about getting older. Something like Senior Citizens Week draws it even closer to attention.

We look at ourselves now, and we wonder — What will we look like after the next 30, 30-or 40 years have passed across our faces? What will it be like to be a "senior citizen"?

There's something kind of cold and clinical about being called a citizen, it seems to me. Especially since we'll have never been called one before, (like many middle-aged citizens do you know, eh?)

It's as if the term — and it's a recent one, not more than a decade or two old itself — has been invented to give some token social esteem to people who are otherwise ignored. It makes it easier to bunge them together for government pensions and cheaper movie tickets.

What will it feel like to one day turn 65 years old, and have a "label" I dislike categories now, but I think I will really hate that one. Will I start out my senior years being angry?

What about you? How will you feel as you watch the gulf widen between you and your youth?

Will you be resentful and annoyed at discounts and charities aimed at you and all other senior (impoverished) citizens? . . . Or will you be grateful, since you're on a fixed income, for any financial ease you can get?

And will you be relieved and delighted to retire from your job once you're 65? . . . Or will you be hurt and insulted that you're considered disposable?

Will you feel comfortable with persons who are much younger than you, whose ideas and jargon and dress and behavior are so different than yours? . . . Or will you find yourself seeking out folks of your generation, with whom you suffer fewer comprehension gaps?

Will you rail against the failings of your body as it ages, feeling your self-respect wane as your physique deteriorates? . . . Or will you accept the changes of hair color, skin texture, bone condition, and all the increasing frailties as simply part of the price of staying alive?

Will you spend more and more time dwelling on the fringes of memories, as your mind clears the past and fogs the present? . . . Or will you be as future-oriented as you are now, looking forward to tomorrows as if you could go on forever?

So much depends on what you're like now, I think. So much depends on what your expectations and preparations are. The more we know, the less we have to fear.

Perhaps some of you readers who have reached senior citizenship will write and tell us about your point of view. What's it like to grow old?

Doris Clark

Talking Books for the Blind

Did you know that the Canadian National Institute For The Blind could supply talking books? These are complete books, of popular and classical writers. They are a great blessing for blind and handicapped persons.

Also, the C.N.I.B. will provide tape players. If you want to find out more about this, enquire at your own library or write to the Canadian National Institute For The Blind, 1929 Bayview Avenue, Toronto, Ont. M4G 3E8.

Dear Doris: My mother, 75 and my brother, 35, lived in a house in town, in harmony, until three years ago. Then my brother Joe welcomed a neighbor's kid last 14 — in the house. He is destructive, steals change, talks back to my mother.

Joe also has a farm and lets this kid drive his tractor, which drives mother crazy, fearing he'll break the tractor or himself. He did have a bad spill a year ago and nearly lost his leg.

When I hewt the boy out for practically taking over, and giving my mother all the extra work of feeding him, keeping beds tidy and all the rest, Joe howls me out and says the kid is his guest.

His mother never says a word. Just let's him go. The father deserted his home years ago.

Maggie, Maggie: Surely the town home is your mother's own, to invite or exclude visitors from, isn't it?

Probably the boy needs a friend. A firm one, who will talk with him; teach him what is good manners, how he needs to look nice to be liked; how soon he will be a grown man who needs people to be friends with him. He has to learn now how to earn these things.

It seems to me he takes his cue from Joe, who makes the mistake of downright scorning someone who is growing old. His mother has much to give: it is a person in her own right and can make the rules and make them stick, in her home. She could refuse to go to the farm. Show her this column.

This Five-Year-Old Passed Night School

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Rosemarie Amaral has completed her adult continuing education class and now she's looking forward to starting primary grade in public school next fall.

The five-year-old daughter of Portuguese parents and her mother, Irene Amaral, are among the latest group of new Canadians who have studied English two nights a week for the last eight months.

All of them now have certificates indicating they have completed their second-language courses.

The Amaral family has been in Canada for 12 years but it was last fall before Mrs. Amaral could get time to learn English although her husband and two sons are proficient in English.

Little Rosemarie went along for the chance to become the latest member of the family to attain English-Portuguese bilingualism status.

The family uses both languages at home.

Alderman Jean Smith pulls the lucky ticket at the St. Michael's Summer Tea draw Wednesday, that raised $100 for the St. Thomas Anglican Church building fund. With her are draw convener Trudy Krock and tea convener Muriel Brennan.

St. Michael's Holds Summer Tea

A show of fashions from McIntosh Bros. was a highlight of the St. Michael's Catholic Women's League Summer Tea held Wednesday.

Commentator Sheila Nash pointed out to the audience that little day dresses — especially one new style called the "sentimental dress" — are becoming more popular. The fashions featured during the show were all easy-care fabrics, good for summer travel, relaxed and light enough shades were the most frequent colors in the show.

Modelling were Irene McGuiness, Arlene Dempsey, Sherley Woodcox, Nancy Soden, Sue O'Brien, Sue DiRocco, Evelyn Spinelli and Marcia Adding.

Convener of the event was Muriel Brennan, who arranged for six women, representing six different churches in the area, to pour tea during the afternoon.

Convener of the draw was Trudy Brock. The money raised by the draw will be given to the St. Thomas Anglican Church building fund.

Charlotte Hollfelder of the Belleville General Hospital Auxiliary presents a certificate of appreciation to Director of Nursing, Kerrs Marshall. Miss Marshall who will leave the hospital staff in September, was honored at the Auxiliary's annual dessert luncheon.

Auxiliary Farewell Tea For Nursing Director

Members of the Hospital Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital were guests of their executive at the annual June Dessert luncheon on Tuesday afternoon.

Special guest was Kerry Marshall, executive director of Nursing. Miss Marshall was presented with a certificate of appreciation by Charlotte Hollfelder, director of hospital volunteers. Miss Marshall will be leaving Belleville General Hospital to take up a new post of the new Quesnsway-Carlton Hospital in Ottawa.

Selma Bochnek was in charge of the business portion of the meeting which followed the luncheon. A moment's silence was observed in memory of Marleigh Hamilton, past-president of the Hospital Board of Governors, and Dorothy Dimond, a valued and long-time member of the Auxiliary.

Volunteers are needed for most services for the summer, the members learned. Anyone wishing to help should contact Mrs. Hollfelder at the Hospital volunteer office.

The Opportunity Shop will close for the summer on Saturday June 21st, at two o'clock. Large cheques were presented to the Auxiliary from both the Gift and Opportunity shops.

Something New For The Bathroom

I visited Belleview Glass and Mirror the other day to look over their wide range of mirrors. If you are looking for a mirror for that special gift, you'll be pleasantly surprised at the selection to be found at Belleview Glass and Mirror, 354 Pinnacle St. They have over seventy different styles in mirrors from which to choose, in varying prices and ranging from plain to elaborate. However I saw something truly unique which will be of interest to lovers of you who are building a new home or are renovating the bathroom in your present home. At least a bit of class is coming to the bathroom. Belleview Glass makes medicine cabinets which are concealed by the most beautiful, elegant mirrors you have ever seen. Finally, after all these years of having to put up with that little white box hanging on the wall, you'll be able to have your bathroom as elegant as the rest of your home. Now that's a purchase worth considering!

Take Note Of Summer Hours

Superior T.V., 103 Dundas Rd., will be staying their summer hours as of June 30. Take note, that during the summer they won't be open until 9 p.m. Mon. to Wed. Their summer hours will be Mon. to Wed. and Sat. 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thurs. and Fri. they'll be open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. The staff of Superior T.V. would like to apologize to you for any inconvenience you might have in trying to visit them at the present time. They are open for business but due to road repairs in front of their store, they are rather difficult to reach. However they are still selling and repairing television. Through a back laneway they are able to deliver new sets to your home or pick-up and bring your old set to their shop for repairs. Often, of course, a set can be repaired right in your home. For television repairs, call Superior T.V., at 962-6516.

Preserving Time Again

You'll find the clearance of boxed plants and shrubs is still on at the Sidney Inn if you still have some planting to do in the garden. Buy them now before the temperature becomes too warm. You'll find that you'll make quite a saving. Also in stock now at the Sidney Inn, 265 W. Moira St., are strawberries, freshly picked from local growers. They are just starting and there is a good supply. However, if you're planning on making jam or preserving strawberries, don't leave it until the last minute. Be sure to buy your strawberries and supplies from the Sidney Inn while you're there. They have a good supply of sweetener and merto and wax for making jam. For those of you who freeze fruit, you'll be able to purchase freezer bags when you're buying your strawberries. Visit the friendly people at the Sidney Inn today for all your shopping needs.

Take Your Guests Sight-Seeing

Summer holidays will start for most families next week, and many of us will be having friends or relatives come for a visit. Probably you'll take them for sight-seeing drives to see the scenic countryside. While you're visiting the spots of interest in Prince Edward County, don't forget the historic mansion which houses the Inn on the Bay Tavern in Picton. The century old building is fantastic and so is the food that is served for luncheon or for dinner. Your friends will enjoy dining in the cosy, relaxed atmosphere of the dining room, or having a drink in the tavern. For crafts or souvenirs, they might like to browse through the Inn's boutique. Make their vacation one they won't soon forget. Come to the Inn on the Bay soon.

Save On Small Pets

The Tropical Gardens Pet Shop, 381½ Front St., have some specials on this week for the family that's looking for a little pet. If you buy one white mouse, for 79c you'll get another one free. Hamsters are regularly priced at $1.79 but this week you can buy one for $1.25. But if you should prefer colored mice, you'll be able to purchase them for $1.00 each. Don't forget that these tiny animals need more water and a little less food in the summer. And the fish fans haven't been forgotten this week either. The Tropical Gardens have a limited supply of junior aquarium heaters on sale at $6.75. Another special is on male betas, reduced to $2.25 each, from $2.85. Contact the friendly people at the Tropical Garden Pet Shop if you need advice on caring for your pet.

Less Work In Owning Your Home

If you were thinking of moving into an apartment, because exterior work around your home is getting too much for you, here's an idea. You can own your own home in a condominium unit and be free of the problems of cutting grass or exterior up-keep. Goed Roblin Real Estate, 267 North Front St., have a unit they'd like to show you. It's on Prince of Wales Dr. and is priced reasonably at $23,900. The unit is two storey with two upstairs bedrooms. A large, eat-in kitchen has plenty of cupboards to suit any woman. You'll find a number of desirable features including: hardwood floors, electric heat which is individually controlled in each room, rooms which have recently been re-decorated and sliding patio doors to a large lawned area behind the units. This unit is really worth considering. Call Roblin Real Estate today at 968-6475 and make an appointment to see this condominium.

Holiday Time

Summer holidays may mean many things to you. Some people will be considering the purchase of a new or used car so that they will have dependable transportation for their vacation. Vader's Car Sales, 21 College St. W., have a good selection of economy cars on their lot right now. New or used, you'll find station wagons or sedans that will take you to and from your destination economically. For those who are looking for a trailer to take on their holidays, Vader's also have a good selection of Cardinal trailers which will sleep 4 to 6 people and have most of the conveniences of home. But perhaps you've bought a cottage lot and are planning to spend your whole summer building a cottage. Well, Vader's have the answer for you too! Buy a mobile cottage, put it on your lot and be able to enjoy the whole summer of leisure. Vader's really have the answer for holiday fun.

Trends In Furniture

The manager of Wrays Home Furnishers, 306 Front St., is off on a buying spree. He'll be purchasing the very latest in styles, colors, materials and ideas for late summer and early fall. That may sound like he's buying a new wardrobe, but home furnishings can be every bit as stylish as the latest fashion in clothes. Stop by Wray's today and notice the living room suite on display in their window. The whole effect of your room is coordinated as you would coordinate your wardrobe. The sofa and chairs by Serta, are upholstered in luxurious blue patterned velvet. The tables by Kroehler, have been designed to fit the sofa. And lamps of solid brass complete the picture. This is the forecast of furniture trends. While you're admiring the window display, drop into Wray's and view the newest paintings of Cole Bowman.

Summer Fashions

For all your summer fashion needs, visit Studio 211, 211 Front St. They have just received a shipment of beach cover-ups and sundresses. The cover-ups are by Jonathan Logan and come in sizes 5-12. These pretty cottons come in various colors and patterns and can be used not only at the beach, but as a sundress or housedress. Also new at Studio 211 are hipless sundresses in soft, flowing jersey which come in many pretty, pastel shades. To top your new outfit, buy a carefree, curly wig to protect your hair from the harmful rays of the sun while you're enjoying summer fun. Or buy a mod watch with a plastic band. These watches are great for summer, have a one year warranty and come in a range of colors. Let the staff at Studio 211 help you make your selection today.

'Old Folks Scene' Can Be Dismal in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — It is a common sight in supermarkets.

Certain shoppers moving at a particularly slow pace, pause at the meat display. Steaks are picked up one by one, hefted, priced, put back. Roasts — chops — same thing, clearly a familiar ritual.

These shoppers—single or in pairs — eventually drift to the hamburgers and weiners. They stop there.

Who are they?

They are the "tea and toasters," the senior citizens, the golden - agers — officialdom sometimes calls them the best-off old gaffers in the world.

"You'd be amazed what I can get out of pigs' knuckles," said one. "Stew, jelly, soup."

"They fill up on jam and toast and soup," said Violet Roy, assistant director of the Senior Citizens Forum of Montreal, which has a majority French-language 1,000 members.

Upset about the plight of the aged, Mrs. Roy once asked an official on a television program whether the government was perhaps looking to gas chambers as a final solution to the problem of "surplus senior citizens."

"He thought I was nuts," the unrepentant Mrs. Roy recalled.

While Quebec's old folks range from millionaires to paupers, a study indicates considerable misunderstanding exists about "le troisieme age—the third age"—an increasingly large sector of the population.

"One myth is that they're all living in old folks homes," Mrs. Roy said—a sentiment heard frequently by a reporter.

Figures provided by Quebec government officials show between five and six per cent of the 65-and-over population is accommodated in nursing homes and less than two per cent in long-term hospitals.

As of last Dec. 31, the province had licensed 483 publicly-owned and private "home care centres" with accommodation for 35,147 persons, said a spokesman of the social affairs department's permits division.

There were an additional 87 publicly-owned and private long term hospitals and convalescent institutions with places for 8,838 persons.

Particularly in Montreal, the homes and hospitals have long waiting lists. Speaking of the chronic-cases hospitals, Rene Augier, executive director of the Quebec Hospital Association, declared:

"We could easily fill 10,000 beds."

Mr. Augier estimated that 1,000 to 1,500 chronic cases, mostly elderly, were taking up beds in Montreal general hospitals, which should normally be reserved for acute and short-term cases.

The old-folks scene has changed drastically in the majority French-language province where traditionally—in the words of one veteran observer—"a son would rather lose an arm than see his parents go to an old folks' home."

Traditionally-large French-Canadian families took pride in caring for their own aged, though some elderly citizens of means—and only the destitute now—did go to homes operated by Roman Catholic orders.

In a bygone rural environment, oldsters could continue light work in their declining years. But families now are generally small and the birthrate declining while the upper-age population swells in an urban environment often bereft on the aged.

An 86-year-old woman applied for a place in a home.

"The wait is three years unless you are crippled," the woman was told.

"I almost wish I was crippled," she said with a sigh.

That incident was cited by Hubert de Ravinel, Montreal head of the non-denominational Little Brothers of the Poor (Petit Freres des Pauvres), to illustrate the despair of some old folks. He himself sees nursing homes only as a last resort.

"We need something to fight for to keep alive," Mr. de Ravinel emphasized. "An aged couple living alone may be hoping for a chance, buying their pension until he is ceased, hoping their kids will come to visit, wondering whether their kid will go up. But that is better than a nursing home, where the aged will like ever-protected flowers."

Mr. de Ravinel estimated Montreal's two-million population is aged 65 per cent and over to a proportion of nine per cent, only four per cent in nursing homes. He also estimated approximately 60,000 of Montreal's 180,000 men and women in that age group must get by only on the old-age security pension and supplement, $210 monthly.

"On the average I would say they have to spend 45 per cent of their pension for rent — an enormous percentage," Mr. de Ravinel said.

With increasing age, a higher proportion of income also must go for groceries because of special diet requirements, leaving a smaller and smaller portion for other living costs.

The government, said Mr. de Ravinel, tries to give the impression Canada is the wealthiest country in the world "for the aged and do think the financial position is better than in the United States."

"But even if we say the aged have adequate food and accommodation—it is not true: but let's say it for illustration—the real problem for them is that they have no money left for the things that are not indispensable.

"They cannot receive their children the way they would like. They have no money to travel, to buy a new dress, to do something foolish like everybody else. They have no joy in their declining years."

Canada will see something new if senior citizens organize their political wallop — and they are showing signs of doing so say some Quebec officials in the field. Increasing numbers and high educational level of senior citizens make them a potentially powerful group even these elderly ladies playing cards

Inspector Told Not to Be Cop

MONTREAL (CP) — A provincial meat inspector who uncovered tons of spoiled meat destined for human consumption — in Quebec — yesterday he was warned by a superior to "stop acting like a cop."

Jacques Boulet was testifying at the close of four weeks of public hearings by the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime.

Mr. Boulet said he and other inspector were told by the assistant director of the inspection service, identified as a "Dr. Sanscher," to "stay in our territory" and "not to insist on the policing aspects of our job."

He did not specify when the warning came.

He said he and a colleague, Roland Bélanger, submitted a brief in 1972 with recommendations on how to prevent the distribution of tainted meat in the province.

He said Agriculture Minister Normand Toupin later assigned Bélanger and himself to assist the commission in its probe into the affair.

In Quebec City Wednesday, Mr. Toupin told the Quebec national assembly he would consider jail terms for anyone convicted twice of selling tainted meat.

He was speaking before a legislature committee studying government regulations which would obligate meat salvaging firms to obtain operating permits.

He said fines up to $5,000 for individuals and $25,000 for corporations may be levied for infractions.

In further testimony at the inquiry, Antoine Durante, a federal health department inspector, said the federal government knew of the tainted meat scandal in Quebec in 1969.

Mr. Durante, who said he was given a mandate two years ago to determine the extent of sales of meat from dead or diseased animals to the public, testified his investigation was restricted because he could not place wiretaps or call witnesses to testify under oath.

In 1974, the RCMP was asked to investigate the problem of tainted meat sales which had become "so serious that it was frightening," he said.

Asked by inquiry Judge Jean Dutil if he knew the problem was so serious in 1974, why there had not been prosecutions of illicit meat dealers, Mr. Durante said federal inspectors "were not policemen" and they had trouble establishing proof that would stand up in court.

For this reason the RCMP was asked to intervene, he added.

Closing the proceedings, Judge Dutil announced the inquiry would submit its report to the provincial government in mid-September.

Jobs Must Be Attractive

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Robert Andras told a Senate committee examining federal manpower policy Wednesday that the government will not force workers to accept jobs they do not want. He said it is the duty of employers and industry to ensure that jobs are attractive in terms of pay and working conditions.

Pensioners' Spouses Get Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — A long with a government request for prompt passage of the bill to give monthly payments to old age pensioners' spouses aged 60 to 64.

Starting Oct. 1, it would give extra income to approximately 85,000 spouses. Old age security payments now are available only to persons 65 and older.

The bill, which now goes to the Senate, embodies a Liberal promise made during the 1974 election campaign. The opposition parties agreed to support the bill as "a step in the right direction" but objected to some provisions.

Dead-End Problem

Living on a dead end street can barely be blamed, city council learned this week.

Edwin E. Van Alstine, 32 Holden St. — just west of the West Dundas-Highway 14 bridge — wrote the committee that he lives at the end of the cul-de-sac.

His problem: When drivers discover they've hit a dead end they turn around outside his house, in backing up his flower wall and ornamental fence is threatened. It's been damaged several times.

The trouble, explained city engineer Joe Angelo is that the street is posted as having no exit. But the sign is not easily seen by drivers heading up from downtown.

The committee moved to help Mr. Van Alstine.

It decided to erect a second no-exit sign on the other side of the street, clearly visible to misguided motorists.

Damage Extensive

TWEED — A 20-year-old Ottawa man escaped injury R-6 p.m. Wednesday, when he swerved to miss another vehicle and sideswiped a rock-cut five miles north of here at the intersection of County Rd. 8 and 37.

Alone at the time, driver Frank Carwardin was west bound on Hwy 7 when the accident occurred.

Constable Al Bolger of the Madoc Detachment of the OPP estimated $1,000 damage to the Carwardin car.

Youth Faces Theft Charge

PLAINFIELD — A 15-year-old Belleville youth, Michael Wemeth, of Maple Drive, Belleville, has been charged with break, enter and theft Wednesday and will appear in county court today for a bail hearing.

Belleville OPP said two youths, the second a juvenile, entered the home of Gerald Fissal, RR 1, Plainfield late Wednesday afternoon. An antique gold watch, valued at $75 was missing, a police spokesman said.

Radio, Tapes Stolen

Two thefts were reported by police Wednesday.

A radio and tapedeck were taken from a locked car, owned by Fry Ford, from the lot approximately 7 p.m. Value of the deck was $250.

The second theft was reported by Jill Easterbrook of 41 Elgin St., when apparently $40 worth of tapes were taken from her car in front of her apartment.

Upswing in Traffic Worries Residents

A group of east-end Belleville suburban householders have petitioned city hall to reconsider opening their road onto a main traffic route because they fear pedestrian hazards — particularly to young children.

The request comes from residents of Edgehill Drive, which is linked to development of a new subdivision by their area.

The development — as presently planned — would open Edgehill to traffic from Victoria Ave., city council's traffic committee was told Tuesday.

Mrs. Jean Wilson, speaking for the petitioners, said the group did not oppose the subdivision — Bytarwood, planned by Maurice Rollins Construction.

What they are seeking is to have several lot frontages altered so the extension opening up Edgehill would be unnecessary.

This could be done by having the lots now fronting on the proposed Edgehill extension shifted to front on nearby Bradley Cres., proposed the petition.

Joining in the area road crisis, sited by the subdivision with Edgehill would create a Y-junction and hence a "very bad intersection," said Mrs. Wilson.

She suggested instead of opening Edgehill — on which there are no sidewalks — the city could retain a pedestrian and bicycle right-of-way.

The committee referred the petition to city council.

Labor Speaks

Ontario Anti-poverty Organization (OAPO) Vice-president Norman Beddy (left) and Ontario Federation of Labor Director Edward Waddell discuss remarks each made before an OAPO public meeting held in Trenton Wednesday. About 25 people heard Mr. Waddell criticize labor for lack of involvement in politics to gain social change.

Task Force May Recommend Calculator Use in Schools

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

An educational task force, looking into the use of electronic calculators in school, may recommend allowing senior high school students to use the small computers on a daily basis and during examinations.

However, the task force, which has yet to make its final recommendation, does not support the use of the electronic calculators in grades kindergarten to eight as a teaching aid except for "motivational and enrichment purposes".

A spokesman from the task force, Dave Snedden, a mathematics co-ordinator with the Hastings County Board of Education, said the task force does not want to discourage the use of calculators in the elementary schools but does wish the students of this county to be fluent in the basic operations of mathematics.

He said the force may support a recommendation that the schools provide suitable machines to those senior high school students who do not have their own, for examination purposes or on a daily basis.

The Task Force believes that Hastings senior students should be able to compete with the use of these machines with other students from other jurisdictions.

For grades 9 and 10 the task force has recommended use of the calculators at the direction of the teachers. "However, for instructional purposes in most subject areas, the use of calculators is not necessary at the grade 9 and 10 level," the recommendation further stated.

Mr. Snedden said the force has done much data collecting on the subject and has taken a realistic look at the advantages and disadvantages of calculator use in schools.

Ken Soden, mathematics head at Belleville Collegiate Institute and a member of the task force, will prepare all the relevant material on the task force's study and prepare a booklet on the subject. The task force will meet June 20 to discuss their final recommendations which will probably go before the board of education for a policy statement.

The task force has been made up of teachers, principals, and administrators from both the elementary and secondary school levels.

Two Hurt In Crash

FRANKFORD — A two-car collision near here Wednesday has left a Trenton man and a Stirling youth in Belleville General Hospital with broken ribs and both in fair condition.

Injured are Russell White, 18, of RR 4, Stirling, and Carmen Cooper, of Trenton, a passenger in the second car. Belleville OPP said the accident occurred at 3.30 p.m. about one-half mile north of here on Highway 33.

Taken to hospital but later released were Michael Carman Cooper, 18, of 217 West St., Trenton, and his mother Margaret Cooper, 44, both passengers in the vehicle. Police estimated the total damage to be $1,500.

Belleville OPP are still investigating the accident.

Seniors View Free Film

Acting mayor Ald. Ben Corke welcomed 474 senior citizens to a special free matinee performance at the Quinte Mall cinema, Wednesday.

Speaking to the group, on hand to see The Sound of Music, he expressed special greetings to the celebrants of Senior Citizen's Week.

"We only expected about 250 to turn out," said assistant managerress Pearl Archer, "but we were really pleased with the showing."

The audience was comprised of people over 65 from all over the Quinte area with contingents from Picton, Bloomfield, Belleville.

Picton sent about 70 senior citizens to the show, Bloomfield almost 50, with the rest of the viewers from the Recreation Department's senior citizens club, local nursing home and Belleville proper.

Donuts, cookies and orange drinks were served during a 30-minute intermission in the theatre's lobby by volunteers while the less ambulatory people were served in their seats.

Gift bags of assorted notions, donated by local merchants, were distributed to the senior citizens as they left the theatre after the show.

Fun Fair Nets $30.10 For Heart Foundation

For the youngsters of King George So, fund-raising has to be fun.

For instance: Last year they held a fun fair and raised $30 — despite hot and humid weather — for the Heart Foundation.

Recently, on the other side of the street, another band of young people got together, held a penny carnival and raised around $40 to help rebuild the fire-ruined St. Thomas Church.

Wednesday the scene had shifted back to the opposite side of the street with another fun fair for the Heart Foundation.

The youngsters paid to play games, buy donated toys, soft drinks, homemade cookies and popcorn.

Gail Hadley, westend Belleville chairman for the Foundation's fund drive this year later reported the event had raised $9.10. It will be added to the $15,000 raised in the city area earlier — $1,000 more than the foundation's objective.

"Every little bit helps," commented Ken Yorke, chairman of the fund-raising committee, among the adults attracted to the event.

Head Start Program Prepares Tots for Class

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Contemporary education, like the society it serves, has become very complex.

This means more preschool preparation, says Mary Fleming.

In fact, there's a "desperate need" for more nursery schools, she believes.

Hence a venture like Hillcrest's Head Start, a summer project for preschoolers — which Mrs. Fleming is a partaker.

Head Start's aim is to prepare youngsters for that first step into the school system — kindergarten.

Alanna Watson mother of the five organizers running the nursery school from a basement room in Hillcrest public school, also believes the project is filling a vacuum.

The organizers want doors-to-door to register youngsters and the "response from families was terrific," says Mrs Watson, a graduate of Loyalist College's Early childhood education program.

Right now the school for tots has an enrolment of 46 — divided equally into morning and afternoon classes — and a waiting list of 3, she says.

Head Start has been mainly funded by a federal Opportunities for Youth grant. But the community at large has had a share in its organization.

The $6,200 OFY grant was insufficient to undertake the project. It paid only salaries with nothing left for supplies, explains Miss Watson.

An appeal for funds to city council was unsuccessful. However, Bridge St. United Church Foundation gave $1,000 ;the Belleville Yardmen $100; Grocery stores have also donated supplies, says Miss Watson.

It didn't solve transportation problems. Mrs Fleming makes several trips daily around town to pick up and return the fledgling students in her own car.

But "if it wasn't for the doors we wouldn't have able to function," claims Mrs. Fleming ;now entering her fin at year at the Loyalist children hood education program.

Educational authorities also voted rent to the Hillcrest school room where the youngsters — some with special needs — can learn basic lessons. They're taught color, shapes, letters — most of all to socialize with their peers.

But activities aren't confined to the school-room. Head Start aims at getting the youngsters out into the community.

The tots are taken to nearby East Riverside Park; they've been on trips to Corby public library, a mini-zoo at Harry Clarke public school. Other excursions are planned to various places of interest around town.

'Money Class Running Province:' Labor Chief

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Ontario Federation of Labor director Edward Waddell termed it "a lot of hogwash" Wednesday the contention by some people that politics and unionism don't mix.

"Working people have to realize that only though political action they will get what is rightfully theirs," Mr. Waddell told a meeting of the Ontario Anti-Poverty Organization.

The public meeting was sponsored by the United Citizens Organization in Trenton and was attended by about 25 people.

Mr. Waddell called the working classis own worst enemy for not taking a more active role in politics. How, he said, government at the provincial level is run by lawyers and doctors, representatives of the "money class."

"It's no secret that the Big Blue Machine gets money from big corporations," he said in an interview after the meeting.

To combat this, and also to loosen the worker hamstring by legislation, he advocated the rank and file workers become less complacent and more involved politically.

Mr. Waddell said the 80,000 card-carrying union members of the OFL have considerable political clout, but OFL affiliated unions have not been active enough.

Both the OFL and the Canadian Labor Congress have supported the NDP, he said, but "affiliated unions should all get involved."

"We should make no bones about contributing to political parties," he said during the meeting.

He called labor the backbone of the movement to gain greater social justice for those hurt by inflation and unemployment.

But labor, he said, has "fallen down badly" and he is not satisfied with its attempts to help the unemployed and those drawing welfare.

The director of social services re-iterated OFL calls for full employment and the end to "back passing", between Queen's Park and Ottawa over jurisdiction and the housing construction slowdown.

Complaints over welfare and unemployment insurance procedures by audience members met with suggestions from Mr. Waddell and Norman Prudy, vice-president of OAPO, that citizens band together to do something about it.

Mr. Brody told the meeting people should go in a group to town hall and the provincial government and "raise hell". With a provincial election in the offing, "now is the time to commit candidates publicly to changes in social assistance programs.

People who need social assistance, such as unemployment insurance, are entitled to a decent standard of living, he said.

Massassaga School Marks 50th Birthday

Massassaga public school has changed some in a half-century.

For one thing it's tripled in size.

But school traditions don't change that much.

Refuelling A First

TRENTON — The North Pole flyover completed Wednesday by a Boeing 707 from CFB Trenton and four CF-5 fighter jet aircraft from the Cold Lake, Alta., was not the first over flight of the pole by Canadian planes as earlier reported. Rather, it is the first time Canadian aircraft from participated in a re-fuelling exercise over the pole.

Backstage Bustle

Classrooms at Massassaga public school became scene of backstage bustle Wednesday as young students prepared for a concert marking school's 50th year. Teacher Cathy Goemans makes last minute adjustments to costume of six-year-old Lynne Green, one of the concert players.

Friendship Flight Back At CFB Trenton Friday

TRENTON — Shortly before 5 p.m. Friday, a plane carrying 200 people of the Belleville-Lahr Friendship flight will be touching down at CFB Trenton after two weeks in West Germany.

A spokesman at CFB Trenton said today an Air Canada DC 8 is scheduled to land at the base at 4.55 p.m. tomorrow.

Aboard the flight are Belleville mayor Robin Jeffrey and several members of city council. They left on the two week holiday from Trenton June 6.

Lahr is Belleville's twin city.

It's Drinks All 'Round

The day was hot so the soft-drink stand at neighborhood fun fair at King George Sq. did brisk business Wednesday. Local youngsters staged the event to raise funds for Belleville area branch of the Heart Foundation.

Some Basic Lessons

Funded by federal government and community grants, nursery school project is being run by Belleville women out of Hillcrest public school this summer. Mary Fleming assists Roxanne Belanger, 3, and John Ferguson, 5, with some basic lessons about color and shapes. An aim of the program is to prepare youngsters for entry into school system.

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund catcher, Carol McFarlane, was just one step short of beating the forceout at third base in Wednesday night's action at Alemite Park. Madoc Purinaettes, Darlene Bedore, holds the ball in her glove and tags the bag just as McFarlane begins to slide. Madoc shortstop, Marg Bateman, covers on the play. BYBF came back with two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to earn a 3-2 drag in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League game.

Purinaettes, BYBF Tie

In Belleville and District Ladies Softball League action on Wednesday night at the Alemite, two of the league's top teams met.

If either of the teams, Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund and the Purinaettes, was looking for a decision as to who is the better team, they will have to wait until the next time they play. After the regulation seven innings, the score ended in a 3-2 tie with the two teams having to settle for a point each. In the second game, Ellis Construction defeated Lakeside Oxygen 13-0.

The pitching duties for BYBF went to Shirley Gulliver, who gave up eight hits while walking no one and striking out two Purinaette batters.

Sandra Fleming threw for the Purinaettes, also allowing eight hits, she walked two and had no strikeouts.

The Purinaettes took an early lead in the top of the second with a run, and added it with another run in the top of the fifth.

The Yardmen tied it up with two clutch runs in the bottom of the sixth to tie the score, and that's the way things stayed.

The Purinaettes got two hits from Jane Bailey, and Sandra Fleming, along with doubles from Penny Graham and Bonnie Jones.

Offensively for the Yardmen, Sheila Smith and Carol McFarlane had a couple of hits, while Nancy Birch doubled.

In the second game of the twin bill, Ellis Construction took its second win of the season, over Lakeside Oxygen, 13-0.

Winning pitcher was Sandra Class, chalking up the shutout, giving up nine hits, no walks and striking out four Lakeside batters.

Norma MacQuarrie took the loss, allowing 17 hits, walking one and striking out one.

Top hitters for Ellis Construction were Evylena Hill with a triple which scored three runs, Sharon Francis with two singles, Judy Rapelli with the same and Clayton contributed three singles to her own cause.

Leslie Best had a couple of singles for the losers while Norma MacQuarrie contributed a double.

Ladies' League Tourney Set

On the weekend of June 27, 28 and 29, the Belleville Yardmen are holding their first annual Ladies Softball Tournament in Belleville.

There will be 10 teams participating in the tournament, played both at the Alemite Park and at the Centennial Secondary School diamond.

Among the teams participating are Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund and the Purinaettes, along with Belleville Broadloom, North Bendale, Newmarket-Oshawa McDonald's, Oshawa, Brighton, Kingston and Oakville.

This is one of the big women's tournaments of the year, and at the opening ceremonies on Friday, the 27th, at the Alemite, will be Her Worship Mayor Robin Jeffrey, Alderman George Zegouras and the Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps.

Among the trophies to be won are the Championship Trophy, awarded by the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund and the Runners-Up Award, contributed by Don Bell Sports.

Individual awards will include the Most Valuable Pitcher Award, donated by Rays Signs, the Top Hitter Award, from Howard and Robert Printing, and for the Most Valuable Player, it will be an award from the Red Barn Restaurant.

The Most Sportsmanlike Player award will be given by Bob Blaind of Bob's Sports.

If you'd like to get in on the Opening Ceremonies, tickets Friday will be $1. On Saturday for a full day of softball, the cost will be $2; on Sunday the price will go back down to $1 again. A weekend pass costs $3 and these tickets are available from all players on Belleville and District Ladies teams.

Here's how things shape up for the weekend. On Friday night at 7 p.m., the Purinaettes will take on the Belleville Yardmen, while in the second game of the first round Brighton will play Belleville Broadloom.

Saturday morning in game three, Newmarket takes on Oshawa, while Kingston and Oakville meet. In the fifth game of round one, Ottawa and North Bendale will compete.

This is the first major ladies' tournament to be held in Belleville, and the results are expected to be quite interesting.

Parsons Squad On the Move

In Bay of Quinte Soccer Association action on Wednesday night Parsons upset the Italo Canadians 4-3, for their second win as the road in succession.

Italo took a quick lead, on two goals by Nick DelCrosso in the first 10 minutes of play. The Parsons team fought back throughout the first half, collecting two goals to tie the score before the half was over.

In the second half Parsons came out like gangbusters and polled two more goals to gain a 4-3 lead. Nick DelCrosso scored again later in the second half for Italo but it wasn't enough to give them a tie.

Earlier in the week Parsons defeated Wartworth at the penitentiary 4-1 and seems to have put everything together. Captain Phil McSherry polled a couple of goals in the 4-1 win while David Langille and Ross Macleod were the other goal scorers.

Quinte Hellenic took on the Trenton Citizens at Centennial Park, and defeated them 4-0. The man for the Hellenics was Undi Nelson who opened the goalfest scoring with a couple of goals. Later Ted Adams put in a marker and Nelson scored his third goal to complete his hat trick.

Tight Fits in BISL

Andy Prudden smacked a home run, structuck five and scattered seven hits, but even that wasn't enough to give Canadian Tire a win in Belleville Industrial League action. The CTU hurler found himself on the bottom half of a 24 count with Brooks Bond.

In the other Industrial League game Wednesday night, Independents kept their hold on third place in the East Division with a 4-3 victory over CNRA.

Tom St. Jules went the distance for Brooks Bond as he fanned seven, walked one and allowed six hits. The difference in the game was three errors by CTU. Brooks Bond was errorless.

Don Goodfellow and Dave Middleton each doubled for the winner and Tom Young added a pair of singles.

Besides Prudden's circuit blast, John French and Larry Colindyke each doubled for Canadian Tire.

After scoring one in the first, the Independents put four runs across the plate in the fifth and one in the sixth to earn a victory over CNRA.

The trainbend rallied with a pair of runs in the bottom of the seventh, but fell short of tying the game as closing pitcher Earl Colten snuffed out the comeback attempt.

Colten fanned five and gave up eight hits, while Jerry Soule, the loser, struckout seven and was touched for eight hits. He also walked three.

George Foote doubled, Hubie Fournier doubled and singled and Doug Roombower punched a pair of singles for the winners. Soule had a triple and a single and Gil Nesbit a double and a single for the losers.

Rangers Acquire St. Louis Goalie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The trade market, quiet during the first two days of the National Hockey League meetings in Montreal, staged a minor flurry of activity Wednesday, with the major deal involving New York Rangers and St. Louis Blues.

The Rangers acquired 29-year-old goaltender John Davidson, who has shown great potential in his two years with the Blues, and veteran right winger Billy Collins, for left wingers Ted Irvine and Brett Wilson and right winger Jerry Butler.

The deal was reported to be predicated on the Blues' acquisition of young goalie Gilles Gratton, released from his contract with Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association, who appeared on the verge of signing with St. Louis. The Blues also announced the signing of their top draft choice, goalie Ed Staniowski, making Davidson available.

Staniowski, a member of Regina Pats of the Western Canada Hockey League, was selected as Canada's top junior hockey player during the Memorial Cup playoffs last month in Kitchener, Ont.

The Rangers picked up a WHA defector, right winger Pat Hickey, who also left the Toros. Reports have New York near an agreement for next season with Toros centre Wayne Dillon.

Davidson had a 2.86 goals-against average last season with the Blues. Collins, an eight-year veteran, also has played with Detroit Red Wings, Montreal Canadiens and Minnesota North Stars before joining the Blues. He scored 22 goals last season.

Irvine, 30, had a poor season for the Rangers, with 17 goals and 24 points in 79 games. Butler, 34, was 17-13-20 and the 26-year-old Wilson scored one goal and five assists in a utility role.

The Blues made another trade, sending forwards Denis Dupere, Craig Patrick and cash to Kansas City Scouts for forward Lynn Powis and a second-round choice in next year's draft.

Dupere, who started last season with Washington Capitals and represented them in the all-star game, scored 23 goals and had 21 assists. Patrick began his year with California Seals before being sent to the Blues and finished with eight goals. Powis had 11 goals and 20 assists.

Annual Meeting of the NHL

Not Much to Deal with Except Legalities

MONTREAL (CP) — Not long ago, many years ago the National Hockey League's annual meeting provided an opportunity for top North American hockey men to get together to discuss the on-ice aspects of the game.

But times have changed.

This year's meeting, which closed with a rush Wednesday night—one day ahead of schedule—was indicative of the trend which has overtaken pro sport during the last few years.

While sessions of previous years had highlighted player drafts, rules, player trades and club expansions, these public interest facets were almost completely lacking this year.

Instead the league governors spent the three days almost entirely behind closed doors attempting to thrash out a multitude of legal problems.

The meeting opened with two of the 18 franchises—Pittsburgh Penguins and California Seals—operating under a cloud of insolvency. When it closed there was hope that the league-operated Seals would soon have a new proprietor, but the situation surrounding the bankrupt Penguins remained unresolved.

Clarence Campbell, who received the unanimous support of the governors to continue his mandate as president for another years, said the owners had made the decision to do everything possible to stave off demise of the franchise in Pittsburgh, "short of buying it ourselves."

However, Campbell was more optimistic on the subject of the Seals. He said the league was making "fine progress" toward the sale of the league operated Seals to a group headed by San Francisco businessman Mel Swig.

The Penguins filed for bankruptcy last week and show debts of $6.5 million. However under a U.S. federal court agreement, none of the team's assets will be sold.

Campbell said the league would prefer to try to save the franchise by finding a new purchaser. But he said if finding a new buyer becomes "a bigger task than can be achieved, more meetings will be held."

The court appointed Pittsburgh general manager Jack Boileau, along with scouts Ken Schinkel, Jack Riley and Rudy Migay, paid their own way to attend the meetings.

Earlier in the week, the NHL was faced with another legal action, when the board of governors ruled that defenceman Greg Neeld, who lost his left eye two years ago as a member of Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series, could not play in the league.

Neeld who had a special mask produced to protect his good left eye used it last season as a member of Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League. He was drafted by Buffalo Sabres in the Amateur draft.

Roy McMurtry, lawyer for Neeld, said he would file suit on behalf of his client because of the rejection by the governors. But he refused to specify what form the action would take.

Earlier, Toronto lawyer Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association had threatened to sue the league on behalf of centre Marcel Dionne of Detroit Red Wings.

Eagleson said at the time he would sue if the NHL clubs failed to make satisfactory compensation in any deal he could make for his client, Dionne who became a free agent June 1 had refused to return to the Wings.

But the Dionne situation apparently has resolved itself. While the little centre denied he had signed a five-year, $1.5-million contract with Los Angeles Kings, it appeared the deal was all but set.

Apparently the only obstacle left for completion of the deal, is what players the Kings would give Detroit to compensate the Wings for the loss of Dionne.

Some indication how litigation dominated the meetings could be found in the fact that two of three scheduled drafts—the junior-league and the reverse—were cancelled. In the usually active inaugural draft, where the NHL teams select from each other, only two players changed hands.

Nykoluk Turns Down Offer from the Toros

MONTREAL (CP) — Mike Nykoluk, assistant coach of the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers, said Wednesday he has declined an offer to coach Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association next season.

Nykoluk said he had informed owner John Bassett, Jr., of the Toros of his decision earlier this week.

"I wasn't really anxious to leave the National Hockey League," said Nykoluk, assistant to Fred Shero with the Flyers. "We've won the Stanley Cup the last two seasons and we may have something new going next season again, so I decided I'd like to stay and be a part of it.

"The Flyers are a young team and I'm sure they are going to be contenders for the next few seasons and that makes things interesting."

Rookie Goes on Spree

Lynn Explodes for Red Sox

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fred Lynn had a 36-game hitting streak last year and one of the Boston Red Sox rookie centre fielder decided to "do something about it.

"I came to the ballpark early for extra batting practice," Lynn said Wednesday night after leading Boston to a 15-3 win over Detroit Tigers. "I wasn't satisfied with the record I'd been swinging."

He was satisfied after Wednesday's game.

"I'm kind of glad we've got a day off tomorrow," he said. "I'll have a day off to savor this."

He hit three home runs, a triple and a single, driving in 10 runs and tying the American League RBI record by one, a mark set by Tony Lazzeri of New York Yankees in 1936. The rookie leagues record is 12, set by James Bottomley of St. Louis Cardinals in 1928.

In other American League games, Baltimore Orioles beat Cleveland Indians 10-4, Kansas City Royals defeated California Angels 13-6, Texas Rangers beat Chicago White Sox 10-3, Milwaukee Brewers edged New York Yankees 5-3 and Oakland A's nipped Minnesota Twins 7-6.

Lynn moved into the league lead in runs with 42 and RBI's with 32. He increased his home run total to 14, only one behind the leaders, is third in batting with a .332 average and tied for fifth in doubles with 13.

The rookie took over the league lead in slugging percentage with .630 and total bases with 129.

Lynn began with a two-run homer in the first inning off starter Joe Coleman. He also tagged Coleman for a three-run homer in the second.

In the third, he hit a two-run triple off Bob Reynolds, beat out an infield single in the eighth off Dan Walker, then concluded the evening with a three-run homer off Walker in the ninth. His only out was a line drive to second baseman John Knox in the fifth.

Bench's Bank Shot Works

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Bench hit an umpire but it wasn't some personal thing.

"The Cincinnati Reds catcher rattled a weak hit off Jim Wewer's shoe at third base Wednesday night and it hurt Atlanta Braves more than the man in blue.

Two runs scored on the bizarre double in the third inning leading the Reds to a 4-1 decision over the Braves.

"It's just unbelievable," said Bench, thinking more about the runs-batted-in title than the ricochet his hit took into left field.

The two runs batted in gave Bench 37 for the season and the major-league lead in that department. That means that Bench is in good shape to pull off a baseball oddity—four RBI titles.

Only Rogers Hornsby and Hank Aaron have done it and Bench—at 25—says he has his sights set on it.

"I started off thinking it would even out after a while, but it hasn't so far," says Bench.

In the other National League games, Philadelphia 7 Phillies beat Chicago Cubs 9-7, San Francisco Giants defeated San Diego Padres 8-1, Pittsburgh Pirates beat St. Louis Cardinals 8-3, Montreal Expos nipped New York Mets 7-6 in 10 innings and Los Angeles Dodgers blanked Houston Astros 4-0.

Bench's latest binge gave him 19 runs batted in in the last 14 games, propelling him to a wide lead over his National League challengers. Both teammate Tony Perez and Greg Luzinski of Philadelphia are tied for second in the RBI race with 44.

URGE SUSPENSION

SARNIA Ont. (CP) — The Sarnia and District Soccer Association has recommended a three-year suspension for player Dan Hecomovic of the Marconia team for hitting a referee during a Tuesday game. The Ontario Soccer Association is expected to issue a decision within 14 days.

Move Pays Off for Expos

Colbert Runs A Stop Sign

MONTREAL (CP) — Nate Colbert had a better idea and Montreal Expos reaped the reward Wednesday night.

Colbert, on second base after hitting his second double of the night, raced home with the winning run on Pete Mackanin's single in the 10th inning as the Expos nipped New York Mets 7-6 in a National League baseball game.

Colbert reached third base while Mets right fielder Rusty Staub fielded Mackanin's hit, and third-base coach Dave Bristol gave Colbert the sign to hold. He did not.

"I think you know yourself better than anybody else," Colbert said. "I knew me well enough to know my own speed.

"It was a close play, but I thought it was going to take an awfully good, strong throw to get me."

NATE COLBERT

Colbert's hook slide evaded catcher Jerry Grote's attempted tag.

The Expos got Colbert from Detroit Tigers of the American League last Sunday, the deadline for player deals.

Lack of Interest Cans CFL All-star Game

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian Football League's annual all-star game scheduled for the Montreal Autostade next Tuesday was cancelled Wednesday due to lack of interest.

Only about 2,000 advance tickets were sold for the game pitting a CFL all-star team against Montreal Alouettes, the 1974 Grey Cup champions.

The cancellation was a blind blow for the CFL Players Association, who put on the game and originally wanted this year's game played in Edmonton. In 1971, about 8,000 fans were attracted by an all-star clash here.

"I am certain until the record improves in Montreal, future post-season games and pre-season games will avoid Montreal," said George Dixon, the former Alouettes running back who was selected as chairman of the game.

George Reed, president of the players association and Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the CFL, had little to say about the cancellation but are scheduled to appear together at a news conference today.

Gerry Petrie, executive director of the CFL players association, said earlier in the day that the risk of playing the game was unbelievable.

"It's strictly a business decision and not an emotional one. Business wise . . . we cannot afford to take a big loss. We took one last year in Ottawa.

"Our ticket sales were sparse to say the least. There was no indication of any big push. We wanted to play this game in Edmonton and we were told we had to play in Montreal."

The CFL players association had asked the league for control in determining the site of the game $40,000 from their pension fund had this year's game gone on.

When Montreal was named as the official site of the game, George Reed, president of the players group, said he was confident the game would be a success.

"With the right kind of promotion, I'm sure the game will be a success," he said. "There were rumors that we didn't want the game here.

"This should boost their position to have the right to have the game in the city of their choice," Dixon said. "And I think, at least in the foreseable future, it will not be Montreal."

Last season, the game drew 15,192 in Ottawa and the players association lost money. One report said the players association might have lost as much as

Jack Nicklaus Ready and Able In U.S. Open

MEDINAH Ill. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus threw down the gauntlet to his 149 rivals as he prepared to tee off today in the opening round of the 75th U.S. Open Golf Championship.

"I am as ready as I can be," he said.

"I feel I am playing as well as I was playing in the Masters". Jack added perhaps explaining the tension that has gripped old Medinah Country Club's No. 3 course because of tornado alerts.

In winning the Masters Nick gained the first leg on the four major championships which include the U.S. and British opens and the America PGA. No golfer has ever won the so-called Grand Slam in a single year and only one man Ben Hogan has won three.

Nicklaus said the recent heavy rains have increased the number of players with a chance of winning the tournament.

"Wet greens would raise the number from four or five to about 30" he said. "But I am not sure that the greens won't dry out for the week-end.

"No one can be certain of the conditions under which the tournament will be played."

Nicklaus is the 8-to-1 favorite. Chief threats are Lee Trevino Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf listed unofficially at around 8 to 1 and South Africa's Gary Player defending champion Hale Irwin and Tom Watson at 10 to 1.

Weiskopf and Miller, like Nicklaus are long hitters who fly a high trajectory to the greens. Under dry conditions they would be figured to hold most of the greens where the line drive hitters such as Trevino probably would be scrambling from the fringes.

Lamoureux Indicted

HAUPPAUGE, N.Y. (AP) — Leo Gerald Lamoureux, former treasurer of the North American Hockey League, was indicted Wednesday on charges of stealing more than $130,000 from the league's bank account. Lamoureux, 35, also served as general manager of the now-defunct Long Island Cougars, a farm team for Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Association. He could face a maximum seven years in prison if indicted on a grand larceny charge.

ENGLAND WINS

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (AP) — The England Rugby League team defeated North Island County 4-4 in an exhibition match Wednesday. Keith Fielding and Lee Dyl led England's attack with three tries each.

Kindness is Music

Senior citizens from the Quinte area were guests of the Theatre Players' Theatre at the Mall, Wednesday, for a matinee performance of The Sound of Music. Volunteer workers, refreshments and gift packages made the day a successful event in the celebration of Senior Citizens Week.

JAWS At Quinte Cinema

Jaws, a new motion picture based on the bestselling novel written by Peter Benchly, opens at the Quinte Mall Cinema Friday.

The film will be screened in major metropolitan centres across North America.

"It is the first time that I can remember Belleville has opened a film at the same time as New York and other large cities," says Pearl Archer, national manager of the theatres.

A suspense film, Jaws tells the story of a resort community on the island that is besieged by a killer shark near the opening of tourist season.

Immigration Decisions Not Yet Made

TORONTO (CP) — Martin O'Connell, chairman of the parliamentary committee on immigration, said Wednesday news reports of comments he made Tuesday in Winnipeg about the Ugandan Asians in Canada misinterpreted his remarks and left a false impression of what he said.

In a statement phoned to The Canadian Press from Regina, Mr. O'Connell said the news reports, distributed by CP, suggest that the committee has made up its mind on future control policies.

To Your Good Health

Allergy Treatment Requires Time

By G. C. THOFTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My grandson has an allergy and has had it for quite some time. It starts in the summer when the trees bud and the grass starts to grow.

The thing is that he has joined a Little League team and has to play in the outfield. His eyes get bloodshot and itchy, and he gets an awful hacking cough. Is there anything that would help him?—Mrs. W.A.

It may be late now to do anything about this season, but you might begin planning for next.

Your grandson can be helped by desensitization to offending pollen. There are hundreds of sources—from trees in early spring, grasses in summer and ragweed in the early fall. So for those who are afflicted by the fall pollen, now would not be too early to begin taking action, which is why I say that it is a bit late to help your grandson this summer. The extract is injected in increasing amounts so that by the time the particular pollen problem occurs, the patient's system can cope with it.

Some immediate help is available. Small pieces of gauze soaked (continous-like) drops are sometimes helpful. Anybody's cough might be an allergic bronchitis, which can be helped by appropriate desensitization.

An eye doctor could prescribe eye drops to help him over the worst of the problem, which is sun, which, unfortunately for him, appears to correspond to his baseball season.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are angina pectoris and coronary thrombosis one and the same?—Mrs. L.L.

Yes, they are the same, although there are other angina-like pains not related to the heart. Angina pectoris, the angina most commonly referred to, is caused by a deficiency of blood supply to the heart muscle with a resulting pain in the chest area or down the arm.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a gall bladder operation a year ago, and a keloid scar formed at the point of incision.

Sometimes it itches and hurts for days at a time. The doctor says it's okay, but it seems there should be something to do about it.

Also, I have bad breath. I had my teeth checked, and it is not coming from there. I also take laxatives to calm down my stomach.—A.M.

A keloid is an overgrowth of fibrous tissue that often forms at the site of an incision. Anyone who has had one can attest to how troublesome it can be.

One treatment is by X-ray, another by cryotherapy (freezing). It may be the injection of a steroid preparation into the tissue. Cosmetic surgery for removal of keloids has not been too successful. They tend to grow back. A dermatologist might be able to advise you which procedure is best in your case.

The keloid may bother you more at the end of a day when you are not so busy and have more time to dwell on the discomfort. A cold compress or a tranquilizer can give you temporary relief. The symptoms eventually disappear with time, but it can be a long period too, often years.

As to your bad breath. This can be related to your gall bladder condition and to your stomach upset. But I don't see how your laxatives could be "calm" your stomach. You should find out what is causing your bad breath, which often accompanies digestive disorders.

Charities Called Fraud

EDMONTON (CP)— Charity workers are bilking the public of "tens of thousands of dollars a year," said Keith Wass, secretary of the city's charitable appeals coordinator. He said a person can avoid getting stung by people acting illegally for charity by calling the Better Business Bureau before making a donation.

Dinadan Wins Dummy Slot Again

But Lancelot noticed it he could bring home five club tricks, he would have time to knock out the ace of diamonds and score the slam.

So Lancelot won the heart in dummy, led a low club and finessed his 10 spot. Then he played his ace of clubs. The queen dropped and Lancelot spread his hand to claim the slam.

As expected Lancelot had made the right play in clubs. His play was going to win if East held two or three clubs to the queen: a finesse against West would only work against a 1-3 break.

Opening lead — 7 ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

When Dinadan, the world's player and knight of King Arthur's court, cut the peerless Lancelot as his partner, he had one aim in bidding, which was to get to be dummy.

Hence, when Lancelot responded two notrumps to his opening club bid, Dinadan forgot he had opened and raised Lancelot right to six.

A spade lead would have beaten the slam quickly, but the unfortunate ray, who held the West cards, made the normally correct lead of the jack of hearts.

The kibitzer Merlin had brought when they saw the dummy, Dinadan laid down his ace and the king, West ducking. Dinadan cashed the ace of spades, East following with the 6, and then ruffed a heart in dummy, led a low club and finessed his 10 spot. Then he played his ace of clubs. The queen dropped and Lancelot spread his hand to claim the slam.

As expected Lancelot had made the right play in clubs. His play was going to win if East held two or three clubs to the queen: a finesse against West would only work against a 1-3 break.

New French Law Compels Recycling

PARIS (Reuter) — Like the age-old alchemist's dream of turning lead into gold, the French government is predicting it can transform garbage into wealth.

In the face of the growing energy crisis and successive oil-price increases, the government said last year that war on waste was a top priority.

It drafted a law ruling that tons refuse, scrap metals, waste paper and old rags should be reused where possible for the sake of the environment and industry.

Already approved by the senate, the bill probably will be passed by the National Assembly this month.

Up to now, the sight of mucous dumps spreading throughout France becoming intolerable. Authorities did little until the energy crisis came clong.

Then the growing price of oil and other raw materials prompted President Giscard d'Estaing's government to act swiftly against pollution and waste.

The bill defines a waste policy for the recycling of about four million tons of waste paper, one million tons of glass, 800,000 tons of old rags and 200,000 tons of metal that are discarded each year, Environment Minister Andre Jarrot says.

The bill, once passed, will force "waste producers" to abide by strict regulations concerning the disposal of garbage.

Refuse from plants will have to be sent to special centres for elimination and treatment, and producers, importers and distributors of products that eventually turn into waste could be asked to contribute to their destruction."

Under the new law, communities will have the responsibility of setting up a system of "collection and elimination" of refuse and other waste.

Local authorities will be empowered to collect refuse from private properties, even against objections by owners who would have to bear the costs of removal, according to the law.

French officials hope the new legislation will eliminate blight against many French landscapes: junked cars, scrapped household products, tin cans and miles of rusty barbed wire. In addition, they hope the millions of tons of waste can be recycled.

The bill provides for creation of a "national agency for soil recovery and elimination of waste materials" which will supervise research and operations.

The recycling policy is aimed at better production planning, efficient distribution and energy savings.

The government took a series of equivalent measures last year to curb energy consumption and the recycling plan will enable the country to produce more steel, more paper and even more petrochemical products.

Glass is expected to make a spectacular reappearance on the market at the expense of plastic bottles, which have been held responsible for wasteful pollution.

Drug Dealing Drives Hippies from Holland

AMSTERDAM (Reuter) — Drugs and crime have put an end to the four-year reign of Amsterdam's Vondel Park as the mecca for Europe's hippies.

After two years of agonizing debate and acrimony, the city council has banned the traditional speed-up sleeping at night for the tens of thousands of mainly foreign youngsters who came to Amsterdam in the summer as the city where "anything goes."

The closure marks the end of a unique experiment in liberal Holland, allowing young people to do their thing with a minimum of official interference or control.

When the experiment started, and "flower power" still was trendy, hippies and adventurous young tourists from all over the world flocked to the park.

"I hope to create a happy atmosphere," said youth leader Piet Rietveld when the city fathers lifted nearly all restrictions in 1971. At first, their hopes and good intentions seemed justified.

Hippies roamed the picturesque old heart of Amsterdam during the day, congregated around the monuments and squares and dossed down at night in the huge park just off the city centre.

They sang and strummed guitars, baked pancakes under a bridge and slept in tents or sleeping bags. Taxpayers complained about the noise but most Amsterdamers took an indulgent attitude and even a certain pride in their city's liberality. Last year 80,000 hippies slept there in three months alone.

Then it all went sour. Drug pedlars moved in, the number of addicts grew, pimps tried to turn penniless girls into prostitutes and gangs of petty vandals became active.

The police complained that the traffic in both hard and soft drugs was increasing alarmingly, theft was becoming rampant, more and more filth was accumulating in the park and adequate controls would put an intolerable strain on their limited resources.

After month and searching, the city council declared last March: "The Vondel Park project is over. . . . The citizens of Amsterdam expect their young visitors to observe city regulations and the Dutch laws, just like anyone else."

The council's alderman responsible for youth affairs, Rudi van der Velde, said the city has enough youth hostels, "sleep-ins", and camping facilities to take care of young tourists who would otherwise sleep in the park.

The council said that for the first year or two social workers in the park had succeeded, "in keeping the atmosphere pleasant both for the Amsterdam people and for tourists."

But it added, "The foreign hard-drug trade has discovered the Netherlands and Amsterdam and is trying to infiltrate into its social life. In the seemingly open, friendly situation of the Vondel Park, the risks for trusting inexperienced young tourists are unacceptable."

Holland, in the last two years, has become a major world drug-trafficking centre because of its liberal narcotics laws and major ports and airports which allow relatively easy access for pedlars from Hong Kong, Kuala Lumpur, Singapore and Djakarta.

Police and narcotics experts say that the trade, the so-called Dutch Connection, is based in Amsterdam.

The team of social workers who have looked after young stoned living in the park declared in an official report that the experiment had failed.

Many foreigners came to Holland "because of the image that Amsterdam still seems to have abroad, a paradise where everything is possible."

This, stressed Mayor Ivo Samkalden, was wrong.

Amsterdam was not a place of unlimited freedom despite its reputation for it.

Hans Bruggeman, co-ordinator of the special social service team, said a ban on living in the park is likely to mean sweeping Amsterdam's problems under the carpet.

"The problem in the Vondel Park wasn't the sleeping, but the daylight hours. You'll get young people who go to the park during the day and then you'll get all the problems again."

Payments Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance payments for the first four months of 1975 totalled $1.233 billion, up almost 59 per cent over the $830 million total for the same period of 1974, government officials reported to a Manpower committee.

Medicine Could End Crimes

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — A sociologist says medical manipulation could be used to make the United States almost crime-free by the year 2000. But he's worried about the "Big Brother" implications of the system.

Dr. Richard Moran, an assistant professor at Mount Holyoke College in Massachusetts, told the 32nd National Institute on Crime and Delinquency that criminal behavior could be controlled by manipulative medical and technological methods.

He said hospitals and prisons could blur into one institution, with society allowing medical treatment of criminals, who would be judged as persons who are defective and need treatment.

But he warned that when crime is seen merely as an illness and is treated medically, a government could impose treatment on those who won't co-operate.

He predicted an early warning screening system to weed out potential criminals, who theoretically would be treated by implanting electronic devices in the brain.

Nova Scotia Nurses Will Vote on Offer

HALIFAX (CP) — Nurses from 12 Nova Scotia hospitals will vote today on what Health Minister William MacDonald has termed the largest settlement offer ever made by the Nova Scotia government.

More than 1,000 nurses from Halifax and Cape Breton have been off the job since last week to back wage demands.

Theresa Murphy, president of the Staff Nurses' Association of Nova Scotia said in an interview she will recommend to her members they vote against the offer.

Legislation intended to force the nurses back to work will be shelved while the 38.4-per-cent offer is up for approval.

The new contract offer made Wednesday would give nurses an immediate increase of 22.5 per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, and an additional increase of 12 per cent Jan. 1, 1976.

Water Price Up

Prince Beheaded As Saudis Cheer

RIYADH (AP) — King Faisal's assassin has been buried in an unmarked grave in accordance with the tenets of Islam after his public beheading with a gold-handled sword.

Prince Faisal Ibn Musaed, the slain king's 27-year-old nephew, was executed Wednesday afternoon in the central square of the Saudi Arabia capital.

His head was displayed briefly on a wooden pole in the University of cheering Saudis who watched the execution.

The head and body were placed on a stretcher and carried away for burial in the same simple fashion used for the victim who had been the world's richest monarch.

The government radio announced two hours before the execution that a "religious court had found the prince guilty of shooting King Faisal last March 25 as he was receiving a Kuwait delegation during the feast of the birthday of the Prophet Mohammed.

Public beheading is the sentence prescribed for murder by Islamic law.

The prince was calm as he left his cell in a jail behind the government palace to the block in the centre of Dira Square. An official of the court read the sentence to the prince and invoked "Heaven's mercy" for him.

The prince's hands were tied behind his back but he wore no blindfold. As he knelt, a security man prodded him in the side with a stick and his head jerked upward.

The executioner, wearing a yellow robe, decapitated him with a single blow, and the crowd chanted "God is great" and "Justice is done."

The prince was the first member of the Saudi royal family ever executed in public. The only member of the family known to have witnessed the execution was Prince Salman, the governor of Riyadh, and a brother of King Faisal.

The prince's father, Prince Musaed, was here but it was not known whether he was present. One of King Faisal's brothers, he has a history of alcoholism and mental illness. The prince's mother also had a history of mental instability.

In Los Angeles, Christine Surma, 26, who said she lived with the prince for five years when he was studying in the United States, said he would eventually be honored as a liberator of the Saudi people.

Explanations that have circulated in Riyadh were that Prince Faisal was avenging the death of his brother, Prince Khaled, a religious zealot who was killed by the police nine years ago; that he was part of a power struggle within the royal family; and that he was angry because the king would not let him have a passport to travel abroad because he had been arrested in the U.S. for selling LSD.

Provincial Deficit Said $800 a Family

LAMBTON, Ont. (CP)—Ontario will spend $1.7 billion more than it takes in this year, Opposition Leader Robert Nixon said Wednesday.

Speaking to a dinner organized by the Lambton Liberal Association in this community northwest of Chatham, Mr. Nixon said the provincial deficit worked out to $800 a family.

"So on top of all the provincial taxes that you pay on gasoline, liquor, tobacco, income and retail sales, on top of your health insurance premiums and your car licence fees, (Premier) Bill Davis is spending $800 of your family's money—$800 that must some day be repaid," he said.

Mr. Nixon said in four years Mr. Davis "has more than tripled our provincial debt with recurring record-breaking deficits that total more than $3 billion."

Ontario taxpayers will pay $677 million in interest charges this year—the same amount as the stock market value of Ford Motor Co. of Canada, the Liberal leader said.

He said Mr. Davis "has mismanaged the financial affairs of this province."

"His dedication to big-spending government, both provincially and federal, is leading us further and further into debt.

Anglicans Approve Ordaining Women

QUEBEC (CP) — Ordination of women to the priesthood was accepted by the Anglican Church of Canada Wednesday night.

Bishops opposed to the principle were given the right to refuse to perform the ceremony.

The principle was accepted by the 1973 general synod in Regina. Acceptance had to pass two synods to become canonical and law.

In light of known opposition among clergy and laity throughout the church, acceptance of women's ordination was large.

A resolution recommending that all types of lay ministries be open to qualified persons without regard to sex was passed unanimously.

Canon Eugene Fairweather, a Toronto theologian, said the basic question was not whether women should be priests, "but whether they can be."

"Many people in the church think this is a radical and destructive change in the pattern of our concern," he said.

Canon Fairweather said a priesthood is a male prerogative. We are trying to include women in what essentially is a male model."

W. R. Shepherd of Toronto took another view: "If a properly trained woman feels the call of her Lord to serve in that way, she should have the right."

Million in Loot Recovered

Three Thugs Vanish Into Quebec Wilds

BAIE COMEAU, Que. (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police say said today they believe they have recovered $1.06 million stolen Thursday from a Bank Canadian National branch near here.

A QPP spokesman said police officers had found two large money bags taken by three armed men in the robbery at the Manic 3 hydroelectric generating site, 50 miles north of here.

The police spokesman said the money bags were found with the aid of tracking dogs alongside a road about 15 miles from the dam site.

After the bags were inspected for fingerprints, investigators began counting the money.

The masked bandits took two bank officers hostage for a short time after the holdup before releasing them about 10 miles from the bank.

A QPP spokesman said Thursday night police had recovered a black 1967 Chrysler, believed used as the getaway car, 30 miles from the scene of the crime.

Police believe the men escaped by helicopter or by light plane after they abandoned the car and police said if that is the case, it would be difficult to track them because of the dense forests in the area.

A QPP helicopter is doing aerial checks in the area while 35 to 40 men from QPP and municipal police forces are combing ground areas with dogs.

The men entered the bank by throwing large stones through the plate glass door as the time lock on the safe had opened and tellers were being given money.

No shots were fired and no one was injured.

Jacques Laforest, manager of the bank, and Louis Petitgrew, assistant manager, were taken hostage as the men left the bank with the money in a stolen car. The hostages were released unharmed 10 miles from the bank as the men continued in the car.

The stolen money was part of a payroll for more than 2,000 Hydro-Quebec employees working at the Manic site.

The hostages gave descriptions of the three men which indicated the thieves were about 20 years old, with one having long hair and the others having short beards.

Police sealed off roads within a 50-mile radius and searched cars at roadblocks to no avail.

Payoff Charge Vicious Lie - - Kerr

HAMILTON (CP) — Former Ontario solicitor-general George Kerr told reporters Thursday he expects to return to the cabinet once his name, smeared by allegations in connection with the harbor dredging trial, is cleared.

Mr. Kerr had just finished testifying at the trial where he told the Ontario Supreme Court jury that allegations of misdealings in connection with his 1971 election campaign fund are "lies."

The politician, who resigned from the cabinet in February when his name was first linked to the trial, denied any wrongdoing.

His testimony centred around evidence heard earlier at the trial. A witness testified former Hamilton harbor commissioner Kenneth Elliott as saying Mr. Kerr demanded a $10,000 campaign contribution in 1971 in return for his influence as environment minister at the time.

"It's a vicious lie," Mr. Kerr said. "Any man who would say that is a scoundrel."

Other testimony had, Elliott alleging the minister pocketed $20,000 surplus in his campaign fund, after the October, 1971, vote.

"Again, that is also absolutely untrue," Mr. Kerr said.

Elliott and Reginald Fisher, a local businessman, are charged with 10 counts of conspiracy, fraud and uttering forged documents in connection with dredging and construction jobs in Hamilton harbor, in 1970-72.

During the seven-week trial, Mr. Kerr's name was raised several times. But each time, the allegations against him were attributed only to Elliott.

A dredging company official testified to giving Elliott $19,000 which was supposed to have gone to Mr. Kerr.

Turner Must Cure Opposing Ailments

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner's fifth federal budget due Monday must treat two contradictory ailments—a worsening recession, with the highest jobless rate in 14 years, and persisting inflation.

The situation, as usual a delayed result of the economic and financial tides generated mainly in the United States, gives Mr. Turner his toughest dilemma yet in the finance portfolio he assumed early in 1972.

The events foreshadowed in his Nov. 18 budget have come to pass, verified by Statistics Canada figures showing people still are spending although earnings on international markets have dwindled for this trade-dependent country.

Federal austerity, including reduced government employment, are in the wind. The climate makes the Monday night budget delivery one of more general interest than usual. But forecasts of Mr. Turner's answers are well-hedged.

As background, May unemployment totalled more than 700,000 and more than seven per cent of the job force has been unemployed since March.

Mr. Turner appears to have little option but to bring in spending measures in an attempt to cope partly with both recession and inflation. Broad programs of countering one or the other might be self-defeating.

For example, an all-out fight against recession through tax reductions or other measures would add to price inflation, a factor when the inflation rate shows some signs of moderating from levels of a year ago.

However, fighting inflation through restrictive budget measures, such as higher taxes, might further dampen economic activity and lead to more unemployment.

The budget is expected to contain pledges to restrain the growth of federal spending, incentives to spur employment in most depressed regions, some tax relief to encourage job-creating business investment and aid for housing.

Economic conditions have deteriorated since the last budget in November, as Mr. Turner has acknowledged. The slide in the United States—the major trade partner for Canada—has lasted longer than finance officials anticipated.

Exports have dropped, prices for Canadian export commodities as minerals and wheat have declined and wage settlements in Canada have exceeded many U.S. agreements.

There is little sign of any early relief.

Zaire Orders Expulsion Of United States Envoy

KINSHASA (AP) — The Zaire government has ordered the United States ambassador to leave the country and also is reported hampering efforts to reach two American students and a young Dutch woman held by guerrillas in the eastern part of the country.

The expulsion order for Ambassador Dean Hinton was disclosed in Washington Thursday and confirmed by the Zaire government that night.

It came in the wake of charges in a government-controlled newspapers that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency conspired with six high-ranking army officers to overthrow President Mobutu Sese Seko.

Hinton, who has been in Zaire for four years, had no comment on his expulsion. The state department denied the charge of a U.S.' plot against Mobutu.

The newspaper Elima says "If the United States is making an attempt on the life of President Mobutu, let it be known none of its citizens will leave Zaire alive."

But the government newspaper Salongo reassures Americans of the "friendship of the Zaire people" and asks them to continue working in the country.

Salongo has reported the arrest of the six officers accused of plotting against Mobutu and a number of other persons, but no individual Americans have been accused.

Meanwhile, a source in Dar-Es-Salaam, the capital of Tanzania, said today troops in eastern Zaire are stopping the normal flow of people into the area controlled by the guerrillas who a month ago kidnapped Carrie Jane Hunter of Atherton, Calif., Kenneth Smith of Garden Grove, Calif., and Emilie Bergman of the Netherlands from a game reserve on the Tanzanian side of Lake Tanganyika.

The source said the blockade by the Zaire army was hampering attempts by the U.S. and Dutch government to make contact with the guerrillas, members of an anti-Mobutu organization called the Popular Revolution Party of the Congo (PRP).

Other sources reported previously that U.S. efforts to enlist the Zaire government's aid in securing the release of the trio got nowhere because Mobutu refused to admit that the PRP existed.

Later, the Zaire government gave the Dutch and Americans permission to try to make contact with the kidnappers, sources in the Tanzanian capital said.

"Now co-operation has been worked out," Dutch Ambassador Jan Van Dan Berg said today. But there was no indication that any intermediaries had been able to get through.

The Dutch ambassador said there was no indication that the expulsion of Hinton would interfere with the effort to free the three.

Laberge Sentenced To 3 Years

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP) — Louis Laberge, president of the 200,000 member Quebec Federation of Labor, was sentenced today to three years in prison for criminal conduct in connection with an outbreak of vandalism at a factory in 1974. Laberge had been found guilty by a Quebec Superior Court jury of nine men and three women May 30 of inciting workers to sabotage appliances at Hupp Canada Ltd. in nearby L'Assomption, Que., during a wage dispute. Handing down the sentence today, Superior Court Justice Marcel Nichols said he had decided on a prison term to set an example in light of the violence that has marked labor disputes in the province. Laberge is free on bail pending an appeal initiated following his conviction. Mr. Justice Nichols noted that Laberge had served three months in prison on a contempt of court charge in 1972 and said that jailing also led him to decide that an example was necessary to instil respect for law and order.

Davis Again Talks To Trudeau on Oil

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis advised Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and the provincial premiers Thursday that any increase in the price of oil and gas at this time would be "premature."

Meanwhile, opposition leaders in the Ontario legislature challenged Mr. Davis to take a stand against an Ontario Hydro proposal to increase its rates by 28 per cent.

Mr. Davis told the legislature he talked by telephone with Mr. Trudeau Thursday and was told that the federal cabinet has not yet made a decision.

In his conversation with Mr. Trudeau, Mr. Davis said he made it clear "that Ontario opposes any increase in the prices of crude oil or natural gas until such time as inflation is brought under control" and unemployment is substantially reduced.

He said the prime minister assured him that he understands Ontario's arguments.

The federal budget to be brought down Monday "will be designed to counteract inflation and expand employment," he said.

"In the current economic circumstances, increases in oil or natural gas prices would be wrong."

Thousands of Blacks Fleeing from Angola

LUANDA (CP) — Thousands, blacks as well as whites, are fleeing from Angola as the threat of civil war looms over this Portuguese territory on Africa's west coast.

Potentially one of the richest countries in Africa, Angola has been plunged into turmoil by three rival African groups. Although an end may be in sight with the formation of a united army, the groups have been fighting each other for military supremacy before independence comes to the country of 6.2 million people Nov. 11.

Perhaps 5,000 persons—a conservative estimate, say local officials—have been killed in clashes since mid-1974. Most of the victims have been Africans.

Most of the deaths have occurred in gun battles in the streets of Luanda, the capital.

The clashes usually erupt in the crowded black townships that ring the central business area of this tense port city. There is little black-white tension in Luanda.

The worst violence occurred between April 28 and May 1. An estimated 1,200 persons were killed in a showdown between two of the three rival groups.

There was more fighting in early June, but a general calm has been restored in Luanda. However, reports persist of sporadic fighting in the hinterland.

OPP Trains Two TRU Teams With Ban on Photos of Faces

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

CFB KINGSTON — Secrecy surrounds the training of the first 10-member squad of the new Tactics and Rescue Unit (TRU) of the Ontario Provincial Police.

So far only three photographers — representing The Intelligencer, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and Weekend Magazine — have gained entry to the training sessions, which have been in progress this week.

Photographers who did manage to witness the training were warned not to get "too close" to the team (TRU) members and that "no photos of faces are to be taken".

"We don't want to make it easy for anyone to identify team members," said OPP Staff Superintendent John McKendry.

Superintendant McKendry told The Intelligencer: "Looking at the situation's blackest side, if guerrillas are going to try anything at the Olympics, we don't will be an integral piece of the security network at the Kingston venue of the Olympics sailing event next summer.

This week the team practised the use of a variety of firearms including pistol, rifles and shot guns — spent hours in the classroom and exercised in physically through calesthetics.

Two weeks ago we learned the provincial police were beginning screening procedures to bring together two, five-man teams called the Tactics and Rescue Unit (TRU) that would be specially trained to handle "emergency" situations. The 10 chosen men this week are in the hands of Canadian Armed Forces Base Kingston training officers.

"If all goes well, we'll be increasing the number of teams to 17 — one for each of the major provincial police districts across the province," said Superintendent McKendry.

The 10 men currently training are divided into two teams — one a standby, the other the main team.

Members of the primary team are its leader, Picton corporal Bert Kea, Al Armstrong of Belleville, Wayne Pickett of Napanee and Gary Coleman and Paul Grinton both of Perth.

On Saturday, these five will leave for further intensive training at an FBI academy in Virginia.

"Out will be a decided factor in the number of teams the provincial police will be able to field," said the superintendent. "The cost of equipment alone is pretty fantastic."

He said one rifle scope for one air sight that is being considered for the special team will cost in the area of $5,000.

He said definitely the Olympics were in the minds of team organizers because, "anywhere there are large crowds there is the danger of sensitive situations."

"The danger signals are out," he said. "Hostage taking and sniper occurrences are on the upswing." These and similar chores would be the responsibility of the special team.

Fond Memories

The proprietor of Belleville's first nursing home, made it a home for the fond memories of work that went into the organizing and opening of Belcrest. We feel sure that Mrs. Smith, the people and not an institution."

First Nursing Home Catered to Elderly

The first nursing home in the Belleville area was a home not an institution for the elderly says the former cook and operator.
Ethel Smith, 74 years old and still active nursing her invalid husband, is proud of the difference.
It was 1949 when she opened the home with the encouragement of local doctors in an attempt to ease overcrowding of the hospital, she had worked hard to give the residents an environment similar to the one they lived in, she said.
The original Belcrest Nursing home,now called Belcrest Manor, was located on on Marshall Rd. from the time it was opened until 1956 when it was moved to Trent Rd., just down the street from its current site.
"We gave the elderly the 24-hour care they needed without taking valuable beds away from those seriously ill," she said.

When they opened, there were three nurses and an orderly on each shift, she said, and the staff cost for room and board was $3.
"It was impossible to just coodine the residents to the buildings," said Mrs. Smith, "so we had day-trips every week."
Sometimes the ambulatory patients would attend church functions and Tuesday was the day for the local garden clubs and nurseries for walks among the flowers and shrubs, she said.
"On Friday, everyone who would come out to the cottage my husband and I owned for an afternoon was located on the river."
"It was a home," she stressed," people used to wander in and out of the kitchen to watch the cook prepare meals and to ask, "Where else can you do that today?" she asked.
Mrs. Smith said she thinks that the talents of senior citizens are not utilized enough and this helps to add to the elderly persons loss of self-respect.
"There are many qualities older people have," she said, "That are wasted because they have few places to direct their energies."

Policewoman Tells All

Belleville policewoman Linda Smith tells a group of girls what its like to be a law enforcement officer.

The seminar, delivered as part of Career's Awareness day for Quinte area Grade 8 girls, was the most popular of the 18 offered with people crowding the room and overflowing into the hall.

Computer Offers Challenge For Hastings Students

If you've got a building that needs an elevator Moira Secondary school math teacher Peter Boulston has a student who could give you a detailed computer analysis of your problem.
And if that won't help, the computer science centre at Moira can find a budding programmer to help solve any other problems encountered.
The computer centre, which is now an after-school math club of 10 students in grades 11 and 12, now handles three computer math courses for Grades 11 and 12, and one data processing course for Grade 12 commercial students, a total of about 80 students.
Mr. Roulston, acting-head of the math department at Moira, said Grade 11 student Alan Stewart recently completed a rather comprehensive computer study of a hypothetical building that needed elevator service.
He said Alan spent about two-and-half months on the project which he said would probably be at a university course level. Alan was given a series of hypothetical variable and instructed to come up with a good elevator service.
"We've got many top notch student who use this centre," said Mr. Roulston, who described the school's computer equipment as one that stands alone and can hold about 17,000 computer words.
For computer buffs the equipment has a disc storage of about two-and-one-half million words A computer word is equivalent to one number or two letters.
The computer centre, which was funded by a grant, is designed solely for course study. "We are not trying to produce programers," said Mr. Roulston, "but we are trying to produce students who can use logic".
In trying to set up a course for his students Mr. Roulston attempts to use the computer in realistic problems. "Computers are really used for solving very practical problems in burry and without expense," he added.

Officials Question Project Changes

Developers of Belleville's first waterfront-living project have been told to come up with more detailed assurance on their proposed project before it goes to city council Monday.
The scheme — to create a 13-floor crescent with 104 apartments on South Front St. waterfronage — came under close scrutiny for the second time in two days this week as it went before city hall's traffic committee.
Monday night the project was a proposal of Belleville businessmen grouped as Lamplighter Realty Ltd. — obtained qualified approval after it also came under close survey from the city's subordinate planning advisory committee. (SPAC).
The committee examinations were requested by city council after Lamplighter two weeks ago sought a change in its original 1973 developer's agreement with city hall. The move stems from discovery that economics now demand a bigger building than originally proposed — and approved — by council.
Tuesday's session with the traffic committee produced results similar to the SPAC discussion as Wolfram Tussendfrand, Lamplighter's lawyer, explained results of the bigger development.
Faced with a revised blueprint of the project several committee members voiced concern they had not been presented with a new site plan clearly detailing the changes making a decision.
The committee's concern centres on four new — expanded parking arrangements, pedestrian crossing, the need for turning lanes and access to the development.
Police Chief Douglas Crosbie sought information on traffic flow patterns around the building's main entrance and access for emergency vehicles on a parking ramp in front of the building.
He also wanted assurances that the ramp— twin-level parking is among plans for the project — was designed to support heavy fire trucks.
Mr. Tussendfrand said he would try to supply the chief with such plan.
Ald. Jim Morgan recommended the plan be forwarded city council for discussion Monday — provided Chief Crosbie is furnished with the answers to his requests.

Fashions Important

There were many topics covered by the questions and comments of Grade 8 students attending Career Awareness day at Belleville Collegiate Institution, Thursday.
Among the more interesting were those posed by girls visiting the lecture by a policewoman.
Some examples were:
"Are policemen allowed to do the same jobs as men?" and the more fashion conscious among the group asked "Do you always wear a skirt to work?"
A tombstone engraver was asked what happens to the stones after they leave the cutting plant.
One girl wanted to know where the children who modeled underwear were found.
Two girls attending the session offered by an intelligencer woman reporter, when asked what their favorite articles were in newspaper and reread "anything about death."

checks a computer program by Grade 11 student Alan Stewart. Moira is the only secondary school in the county to have its own computer centre. The centre now handles about four classes a year.

BCI Career Day Draws 200 Interested Girls

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

When 13-year-old boys are asked what they want to be when they grow up, you might expect them to answer policeman, or fireman.
But even in International Women's Year it still surprising to learn the most popular speaker at Career Awareness Day for Grade 8 girls was a Belleville policewoman.
The series of seminars on careers open to women with talks delivered by women, was organized, by the Canadian Federation of University Women, Belleville and district branch, and held at Belleville Collegiate Institute, Thursday.
Nearly 200 Grade 8 girls from schools all around the Quinte area heard guest speakers lecture on careers ranging from lawyers and reporters to unusual jobs as a common sheet metal cutter for a tombstone company, sous-chef and a woman's prison worker.
After introduction of the speakers and a welcoming address, delivered by Linda Hutchinson, chairwoman of the Quinte County Board of Education, the students left for the first of three 20-minute seminars.
In all there were 18 different careers discussed, offering but the most popular, the one packed to overflow with girls standing in the hall, were the policewoman's talk and the only seminar given during one hour was the interior decorating.
The presentations of the speakers differed, with some delivering short speeches while others immediately began asking for, and answering, questions.
The session by Linda Smith, of the Belleville police department appeared the most lively.
The girls questions not only covered various aspects of the job but also the more personal reasons of why a woman would want to enter an apparently "man's domain".
"I always looked for the unusual jobs that didn't bore me," Constable Smith told the audience when asked why she had chosen her career.
The policewoman told the girls how there is a limited number of positions open for women and applicants with the most education were frequently chosen even though only a Grade 12 education was needed to be eligible to apply.
"Have you ever had to beat someone up while making an arrest," one girl asked.
The policewoman replied to her interested listener the responsibilities of an arresting officer and told the group only enough force to complete the arrest is used.
The interior decorating session, run by Mary Jean Row was more of a talk rather than a question and answer session.
Mrs. Row told her group about her life and the various activities she was interested in and how she limited her interior designing to private jobs.
The career awareness day was a success for many of the girls but there were two complaints heard after it was over.
One from a contingent of visiting high school girls, was about the absence of sports program from the schools they attended.
The other was there were only three seminars and many of the girls could not get to visit and explore all of the centres they were interested in.
The organizers said they are making plans to rectify both situations.

Trenton Community Centre Gets New Lighting System

TRENTON — Hockey games in Trenton's arena may be no better or worse than in previous years, but, good or bad, we'll be able to see them far better this winter.

Workers began the installation of a new lighting system in Trenton Community Gardens Thursday that will improve the lighting o the ice surface by 30 per cent.

Recreation and community gardens committee director Deno Gettas said Thursday the new system will be three times as bright as the one now in use.

New lights with metal halite bulbs, and ribbed spun-aluminum reflectors should provide a more even spread of light and eliminate dark spots experienced now with the existing system.

Mr. Gettas said replacement of the old system was recommended to council last fall and was okayed for this year.

It will take about two weeks to install the 45 fixtures at a total cost of $9,500.

He said the old system was becoming too costing to replace and presented a fire hazard in the wooden arena.

"We ended up with a possible fire hazard," said the director "the old fixtures are not adequate for high intensity bulbs."

Heat eminating from the lamps, hung on wooden roof support beams, scarred the wood. In some places, he said, carbon can be scraped from beams.

The rise in maintenance costs is partly due to the scarcity of parts for the old system. Officials were forced to call in an electrician, with resulting high labor costs, to make repairs. Bulbs for the system, at $60 to $70 as opposed to $15 to $20 for the new bulbs, are also more costly.

Funds for the new system, said the director, have come from a $6,000 surplus in the 1974 budget. Savings were made by cutting administrative costs and increased revenues from canteen sales and ice surface rentals.

Seeing the Light

Trenton recreation director Deno Gettas checks one of the 45 light assemblies that now are being installed in Trenton Community Gardens. The new system will mean a 30 per cent improvement in the lighting for hockey games in the arena.

Trent River Racers Use Inner Tubes

TRENTON — Well, they'll be trying not to drown themselves again this year.

And that should be simple. With an inner tube underneath and a federal government approved life jacket encircling the midriff, participants in the second annual Inner Tube Race stand little chance of approaching the briny deep of the Trent River.

CFB Trenton Flying Frogmen Scuba Club co-ordinator Cpl. Earl Lemaire said Thursday the club will be co-sponsoring the race this year with the Rotary Club and the Canada Day, July 1st, festivities at Centennial Park.

Regulations call for participants to be 18 years or older, and use tire inner tubes at least 14 inches in inside diameter. All must wear life jackets.

Registration forms for the one-mile race ending at Centennial Park are available at Darling's Stationary and Spotless Cleaners in Trenton. The race starts on west bank of the Trent River at the foot of the railway trestle north of the D.J. MacDonald bridge.

Air Base Opens Gates To Public Saturday

TRENTON — Shirt-sleeve temperatures and clear skies are predicted for Saturday for the annual armed forces open house and mini-airshow at CFB Trenton.

And should the weatherman's crystal ball prove correct, it will be a welcome change for the Trenton base, beset by rain that drove planes from the skies and crowds under cover the past three years.

Armed forces personnel have been gearing up for the annual event for several weeks now, and will present an elaborate show of their work in the air and on the ground.

Gates to the base will open at 1 p.m. and close at 5 p.m. Saturday.

Base information officer Capt. Wayne Cross said this week that the day is set aside to "acquaint the public with the armed forces".

"It's a chance for people to come out and see what we do."

Displays of various aspects of armed forces work will be housed in Number 10 hanger, just off Highway 2. However, the public is requested to park cars in the air Maintenance Development Unit section of the base off 6ED Road.

Buses will be provided to take people to the tarmac where six aircraft used in the air arm of the forces will be open for inspection.

As always, the highlight of the day will be the airshow, complete with a para-rescue drop, an unusual rocket assisted take-off by a Hercules, and flypasts by various aircraft of Air Transport Command.

Cheque for Fireworks

TRENTON — The CFB Trenton women's auxiliary presented a cheque to the Trenton firemen today that will go toward the firemen's fireworks display Canada Day, July 1. The fireworks will be lit in Centennial Park, the centre of all Canada Day festivities.

Archery Season Draws Negative Views

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — An archery season for deer has been proposed in Prince Edward County this fall, by the ministry of natural resources but without public support it will not be held.

James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward — Lennox, recently observed the hunting season will not be forced on Prince Edward residents unless it wins general approval. A questionnaire distributed several months ago indicated that many would support a season for local hunters only.

When interviewed Thursday, four Picton and Prince Edward residents opposed the proposal, while one supported it.

Fred Hope of Sophiasburg, weed inspector for Prince Edward County, said farmers are not complaining about the deer population here. He said if the deer were hunted with bows and arrows, many would be wounded, not killed.

"Those bow and arrow boys would come in from all over the province. There are very few archers here," he commented.

A non-hunter, Mr. Hope predicted an archery season would lead to trespassing complaints and force farmers to the expense of posting signs.

Robert Tolley, an employee with the Picton Public Utilities Company said an archery season could prove hazardous in farm areas where children might be playing.

He said the hunting season is justifiable only if farmers' crops are destroyed by deer. If it is necessary to reduce the deer population strict rules would be needed to prevent trespassing.

Mr. Tolley said he does not think that out-of-county hunters should be allowed to participate in the archery season if it is held here.

A hunter himself, he said the deer should be hunted only in open areas, not over farm properties.

An employee of the Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. Tom Mulholland said he disagrees with an archery season in Prince Edward.

He predicted there would be a number of deer "running around with arrows in them".

"Bows and arrows should be kept on the target range," he commented.

Mr. Mulholland who enjoys duck hunting, said there appears to be a growing deer population in the county but does not feel an archery season is needed.

James McConnell, a Picton market gardener, supports a deer season in Prince Edward, although he is not an avid hunter.

He noted there are few archers in the Quinte area with the skills required to successfully hunt the deer. For this reason he does not feel the deer population will be substantially reduced or many deer wounded.

'Sock it to 'em'

PICTON — Organizers of this year's Gold Cup Races featuring the Belvedere Challenge Cup Race plan to "sock it to 'em" in a publicity campaign.

Invitations sent out recently to advertise a press reception to discuss plans for the Belvedere Challenge Cup Race included one left sock.

An attached note stated, "We've sent the other one left foot only; get on the right foot by accepting our invitation. Find out who "puts their foot in it".

No Plaudits from the Environmentalists as Zero-Growth Turner Eyes Budget

By F.W. GROVER

OTTAWA —What happened to all the environmentalists? here it was in big bold type on all the financial pages: "Zero Growth in GNP."

Wasn't that what they had been urging for years? Wasn't that the best-bet-for solution to all these terrible problems of exponential growth that the Club of Rome has been warning us about?

The millennium had arrived. Why weren't all those would-be saviours of the globe up there on Parliament Hill shaking John Turner's hand?

Well, the environmentalists have to earn their living the same as the rest of the population. They have families to feed, mortgages to pay off, clothes to buy. So even to them, when zero growth in the GNP is finally achieved, it looked more like a serious problem than a solution.

And it will be as a problem that Finance Minister John Turner looks at it when he presents his budget to the Commons next week. He won't be taking any bows for having presided over the decline in the gross national product for three quarters in a row. He won't consider it a compliment when the Opposition remind him that inflation is still running in two-digit figures and that unemployment is the highest in 14 years.

Whatever Mr. Turner has in his budget on Monday, it will be his concept of what is needed to stimulate the economy, to get the GNP on the upward spiral again.

Once that is said, the options open to Mr. Turner are almost as numerous as the economists he has people like Treasury Board, the government departments, the opposition Tories, the industries and the union halls. So whatever he does will bring praise from some quarters and blame from some others.

The Chamber of Commerce has called for what it calls a neutral budget. On the one hand they want the government to slow down the growth of the public service and to reduce federal spending. On the other they want grants to unnicle allies in the stimulation housebuilding and corporate tax cuts to spur industrial investment. They also want the government to educate the public to accept a lower standard of living.

It is not hard to predict organized labor's response to that approach.

Politically, Mr. Turner has to juggle the pros and cons of either dampening the economy and increasing unemployment or stimulating the economy and risking re-firing the inflationary spiral. He will probably try to come up with something that does a bit of both, but since an election is several years away and the Liberals have a safe majority, he will lean more towards the former.

The unknown factor in the whole economic muddle is just how close the cabinet is to trying wage and price controls. While it is hard to contemplate Mr. Turner making that dramatic an about-face, the steps has been set.

Throughout the early months of this year the whole cabinet went through an elaborate process of trying to win provincial government, industrial and labor support for a program of voluntary restraints. It was big talk, but it had about the same effect as Dr. John Young's efforts along the same lines in the late sixties.

The Privy Council Office prepared notes on the "consensus" plan that was to be used by all cabinet ministers in their speeches. They directed the importance the cabinet placed on "co-operation" and "voluntary restraints, they praised Mr. Turner's efforts to win all sectors of the economy to a united attack on inflation and they warned about the serious consequences of a failure of the voluntary restraint plan. A footnote at the end advised the ministers that the notes might be out of date by the end of May . . .

It is difficult to picture Mr. Turner announcing wage and price controls with a straight face. But the will for political survival is strong. He lifted the income-tax indexing plank from the Tory election platform and presented it as his own without batting an eye.

A City's Pros and Cons

If 86 per cent of Bellevillians enjoy living here, as revealed by an unofficial survey taken by BCI geography students, what of the remaining 14 per cent?

Denison's Legacy

One of Canada's great men of letters, Merrill Denison, was both at home and a long way from home at the time of his death last week.

A native of Detroit and an American citizen who was once known as Canada's leading dramatist, Mr. Denison died while on a visit to San Diego. He had lived in Montreal in recent years and spent summers at Bon Echo, his property 70 miles northeast of here which he turned over to the Ontario government for a provincial park.

A writer who turned out his first article at the age of 10 and produced 15 books and 10 plays, in addition to numerous radio documentaries and newspaper articles, Mr. Denison was an internationalist — son of an American father and a Canadian mother.

He was a man too who thought of others, as witness the transfer of his Bon Echo property, and in his will, a request that in lieu of flowers, donations be sent to the Canadian Writers' Foundation in Ottawa.

His books reflected a strong Canadian flavor, such as those dealing with the evolution of Ontario Hydro, and the story of the Montreal Molson family, as well as other corporate histories. In different vein, his Klondike Mike was a hit in 1943.

Well, the answer apparently did not go into that, but there are sure to be any number of reasons for not liking a place, and related to much perhaps the individual outlook as to local circumstances.

It would be safe enough to say though that if a person is gainfully employed and living in a place such as Belleville, with its well-developed work and recreational facilities, then that person is as happy a person as he would be anywhere else.

Probably the most serious lack of any community, Belleville included, in the present circumstances, is jobs. For the young people out of school and college this is an important consideration. If you have a job and it is congenial enough then Belleville is a good spot to be.

Meanwhile, it would be interesting to hear from the approximately 14 per cent of people dissatisfied with the community. There have already been one or two letters from young people unable to find work, but what of the others? Is it the work scene, availability of recreation and/or entertainment, or lack of it, that irks them? Or is it something else unrelated to these categories?

Most of us know what is right about Belleville, but being specific about what is wrong should count for more if the community is to remedy them and make the home or adopted town even more desirable.

If readers have any thoughts in this connection, it should make interesting reading.

'Expo' Soldiers On

Expo 67 . . . very much an event of the past, right?

Its successor, Man and his World, something of a Canadian anachronism too, isn't it? Indeed some might have thought it had had the biscuit.

Especially with the Olympics absorbing so much time and effort and, for a time, with labor problems, threatening to go down the drain.

But the word is that Man and his World is still with us, in fact is opening this week for the eighth consecutive season. Remember too that last year it was hit by strikes as well, that time when there was no subway service.

Anyway here it is again, not Expo 67 for it was a unique, a fresh and incomparable thing, but at least there is the magic of the old site, to go with the ghosts of the past and there will be some new attractions including two new entrants in the national pavilion category: Greece and Colombia.

And the theme this time — as unattainable perhaps as ever, but still worth striving for: Peace and Brotherhood.

Viewpoints

Ottawa Journal

Bad economic news, like bad news generally, inevitably travels faster and farther than the good. Thus the report of the closing of the RCA plant in Renfrew has cast a shadow over that community and perhaps sent some shivers throughout Eastern Ontario. But if an industry closes, others open or expand, and that too should be recognized.

Consider Beach Industries Ltd. of Smiths Falls. In a business climate which many consider unpropitious, Russell J. Beach goes full speed ahead. Last Friday the second $1.5 million addition to his plant in eight years was officially opened.

A Teacher's View of Ratification

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

At the Thursday (June 12) ratification meeting of the Hastings Elementary Teachers a magnificent "60" brought a fresh breath of professionalism to the meeting.

These "60" voted to reject the Economic Policy Committee's proposal regarding salary, fringe benefits, and working conditions.

The salary grid proposed at that meeting left the classroom teachers and guidance-counselors scene 21.1 per cent behind the leading edge of settlements already ratified. Absent also were signing bonuses or the magnificent alleged to teachers in other areas. Some of these signing bonuses being as high as $1,000.

Although more than 95 per cent of Hastings teachers had indicated at least twice that they wanted a Cost of Living Clause (COLA), this item also was strangely absent from the "package". In fact some were heard to remark that more items were missing than were present. However, although the salary proposal is likely to have a shortfall by April 1976, is 21.1 per cent behind salary schedule already negotiated, and makes no adequate provision for a signing bonus the magnificent "60" did not quite carry the day. Nor were they able to stem the tide which sold its professionalism cheaply by not taking advantage of the soon to be implemented Qualifications Evaluation Council of Ontario's (Q.E.C.O.) Program 3 which would satisfy many unmet needs At Hasting's Teachers. The fringe benefits sector of the proposal would have been appropriate two years ago but now represents too little catch-up too late.

The working conditions sector of the proposal deserved nothing more than a prolonged donkey laugh. But when the words were counted it was no laughing matter — the proposal was accepted. The willingness of Hastings teachers to allow themselves to be either uninformed or misinformed had once again proved the boast of the Economic Policy Committee that it could bring any proposal back to the teachers and get it ratified.

Royal Idiosyncrasies

The Cobourg Sentinel-Star

There is some Royal gossip in a recent column in the irreverent Punch which notes that Princess Anne's husband "nearly teethed Captain Mark Phillips" has learned to walk with his hands behind his back. (How has Mark learned to be a Royal? Punch reports "he has not done too badly; nonetheless, he has run up against quite a few of the regal foibles."

Then comes the line. The Queen has "an apparent lack of enthusiasm" for one of Mark's" fellow officers who happened to be his best man.

Also Mark, it is said, has "courted some disapproval — mostly from Prince Philip — by tending to find some of Royal Snowdon's more outrageous jokes and solto voice obscenities a shade too hilarious. (Alas, Prince Philip's thigh-thwacking, sailor's sense of humor and Lord Snowdon's camp and sophisticated sense of the ridiculous have never quite met in the middle.")

All in all, Punch gives Mark a good passing mark in a tough job.

Investment Slump, Inflation Hit Retirement Programs

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

If you are enrolled in a private pension plan, you could be in for an unpleasant surprise.

A one-two punch—super-inflation combined with a sagging investment market—has badly weakened the value of the typical Canadian's post-retirement financial plans.

A recent analysis by Statistics Canada of all Canadian trusteed pension funds illustrates the problem.

The investment return on those funds, including dividends, and both realized and unrealized capital gains and losses, was only 1.2 per cent in 1973.

Canada's inflation rate in the same year was 9.1 per cent.

Figures for 1974 are not yet available, but the investment results are probably worse—and the inflation rate rose to 10.9 per cent.

"The public would not be so complacent about inflation if workers realized how much their retirement-income plans were being eroded," says Laurence E. Kavanagh, actuary and vice-president of William M. Mercer Ltd., employee-benefit consultants.

"The disastrous investment results of 1973 and 1974 have caused many trustees to change their investment policy."

Two out of every five Canadians have tied their retirement plans to private pension schemes.

Even at the best of times, such schemes are far from perfect. Anyone who changes jobs soon discovers his pension contributions have done nothing but subsidize those who spend a lifetime with one employer.

But in an inflation, a deferred-profit-sharing plan is tolerated or even encouraged by government. The benefits promised in the typical private pension plan lose half their purchasing power in seven or eight years.

To protect pension plans against the erosion of the dollar would be far too expensive for most private employers and employees.

The federal government does manage to provide that kind of protection for its civil servants and, especially, for members of Parliament.

But little or no attempt is made to meet these future shortfalls out of current budgets in any actuarial sense.

In the private sector, however, pension plans have to be operated more responsibly and realistically.

And those plans were originally based on assumptions that don't hold true today—such as a reasonable degree of steady economic growth and price stability.

Despite the disappointing performance of private pension plans in recent years, the Mercer firm sees some grounds for optimism.

The inflation rate has moderated slightly, notes Mr. Coward, while stock prices have recovered somewhat in spite of depressing business news.

"Another encouraging sign may be the recent inclination of the federal government to admit the serious nature of inflation and to initiate discussions with labor and industry," he adds.

Others might be less optimistic. They question the ability of the private sector to help provide adequate retirement incomes, and contend that only government can handle the task.

Unfortunately, the Canada Pension Plan-Quebec Pension Plan and the arrangements for civil servants and parliamentarians also have the influence of the politician rather than the actuary.

The federal government's mania for indexing is a simple matter of legislation, and is extremely expensive one in terms of current costs and of future inflation.

The Bell Telephone Company has recently been taking rapid strides in the improvement of what is known as direct toll service. In some areas the necessity of placing station-to-station calls through a long distance operator has been eliminated. Commencing June 23, a person wishing to call an area will give the operator the name of the place and the number, and the call will be completed without the caller having to hang up the receiver. Included in the Belleville direct toll service area are Trenton, Picton and Stirling. Also the Frankford, Marmora, View, Thurlow and Trenton 1 rm cents for the exchanges, and to Deseronto, Picton and Stirling, 15 cents for three minutes.

Shadow of Portugal's Leftist Turn Hangs Over Leadership Crisis in Spain

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco still is alive, if not very well, even though the post-Franco era in Spain has already begun.

Take the unprecedented statement of a former Franco cabinet minister a few days ago, that the Spanish chief of state should step down and let Prince Juan Carlos assume power.

In 36 years of unbroken power, Franco had never heard such a statement. The speaker was Fio Cabanillas, until last year the minister of information and tourism, a cabinet member committed to limited restrictions over the state-controlled media of Spain.

Then the other day, too, left-wing Don Juan de Borbon, father of Prince Juan Carlos, Franco's choice for successor, spoke out against his son. The father said he should be the successor to Franco since his son would try to perpetuate Franco's long authoritarian rule.

In 1969 Juan Carlos publicly pledged himself to do just that, maintain Franco's now shaky alliance of church, army and Falange Party, called the National Movement.

But some say Juan Carlos would revert to liberalism as soon as he succeeds Franco. Franco is gone. The reasons for this are the very disturbing events in Portugal next door which has gone from a right-wing authoritarian state like the present Spanish one, to a near-Communist system.

In addition, several of Juan Carlos' closest advisers are believers in the constitutional monarchical experiment. They would like to see Spain follow a British-style monarchy with all Spain's parties represented in a truly elective Cortes or Spanish Parliament.

This is a pipedream since the British mix of representative government and democratic monarchy took nine centuries to evolve. The pre-Franco Spanish monarchy never did so.

Yet the increasing amount of information about these behind-the-scenes discussions appears to the still-severely censored Spanish press, another sign that the post-Franco era has begun.

In the years of the enabling full strength and energies, any hint of press criticism of him and his regime would have resulted in arrests and fines for editors and publishers.

A case in point from the early 70s was the closing, fining and then the demise of Madrid, an evening newspaper in the same city which was finally destroyed by state action and its staff dispersed.

The big question mark now, as in the past, is the Spanish army. Like Franco, the Spanish army under dictators Salazar and Caetano, the Spanish army appears remarkably conservative and totally committed to the Franco regime. Its younger officers apparently docile as recipients of the benefits of a military career.

But we now know the junior officers of the Portuguese army were basically leftist, even Maoist and that it is young majors and captains who are now the Communist-leaning ruling council in Lisbon.

Admittedly the Portuguese officer corps has been weakened from the long, debilitating colonial war in Africa, which more and more of them in it knew they could not win.

This is not true in Spain where a colonial war has been fought with the intensity of the Portuguese experience in Africa since the equally drawn-out Moroccan wars of the Far-off 1920s.

But the fear remains among Spain's liberal and left-wing parties that another general could emerge from the ranks of Franco with yet another military-based "solution" for power in Spain.

200,000-acre Park Suggested for North

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — The idea of turning 200,000 acres of rough bush into a prime recreational area doesn't frighten Vera MacMurray Gilmour.

"I know that it's a huge area," said Mr. MacMurray, as he explained his dream for a recreational area that would offer every form of outdoor sport and entertainment possible. "However, there's no reason at all why it can't be set up on the lines of Mount Tremblant and geared for year round use."

In a plan which calls for the utilization of the huge tract of Crown land, Mr. MacMurray sees 60,000 acres of Cashel Township, 6,000 acres of Tudour, 50,000 acres of Grimsthorpe, 45,000 acres of Effingham, 45,000 acres of Anglesea and 40,000 acres of Dungannon combined to form the Hastings-Lennox and Addington Recreational area.

"It would not be a park like Algonquin," said Mr. MacMurray. "This area features lakes, rivers, mountains, untouches forest, cut and strip farming forest and a multitude of Crown-owned roads. I can't see any interference with the things that go on in that area now — like hunting trapping and fishing."

Mr. MacMurray presented his proposed plan to the provincial cabinet during a meeting in Belleville in April and, Mr. Bernier, minister of natural resources has said it will be looked at. "I know that Claude Bennett (minister of industry and tourism) has been looking for this type of development in eastern Ontario," said Mr. MacMurray.

Currently there are no timber rights out on the Crown land in the proposed area.

The rights for the cutting are awarded on bidding by a number of local operators.

The area would be suitable for skiing (the hills vary in height up to 1500 feet) for snowmobiling, cross-country skiing, fishing, swimming, canoeing (it ties into three established routes) and just plain relaxation as well as the existing sports activities, he said.

There are, said Mr. MacMurray more than 125 lakes contained within the limits of the proposed area.

Not only is the area enormous, the financing of the project is high.

"I guess that a conservative estimate would be about $400 million to develop the area," said Mr. MacMurray," but it would provide between 700 and 900 yearround jobs."

Mr. MacMurray said he feels that the project will become a reality but not within the next year.

"The government was prepared to spend this kind of money on the Maple Mountain project near Coibalt," said Mr. MacMurray." Here we're within a one day drive of 40,000,000 people who are potential p...

Will we let Canada lose at its own game?

The pulp and paper industry, and the skilled people who work in it, have always been proud of their products. The sales of these, in Canada and abroad are essential to our economy. In 1974, pulp and paper exports brought almost 4 billion dollars into Canada.

Today, however, others are beating us at our own game. They are developing a competitive edge that is making it more and more difficult for Canada to hold its own in world markets, as well as right here at home.

Why? One of the major—and frankly, touchy—reasons is labour costs.

Canadian pulp and paper workers earn 15% more than American. This fact surprises many people who work for our pulp and paper companies. But fact it is. The average hourly wage in Canadian pulp and paper mills is over 15% higher than in the U.S. and the gap is still widening. This surprising difference has grown up since 1969, even though productivity is generally lower in Canada.

Average Hourly Earnings Pulp and Paper Mills

	October 1969	October 1974	Increase
Canada	$3.66	$6.07	$2.41
United States	$3.67	$5.25	$1.58

Source: Statistics Canada; U.S. Bureau of Labour, Statistics.

These figures are averages. They do not pertain to any one particular job, mill or area. But they do reflect how well Canadian pulp and paper workers have done for themselves in recent years.

There's nothing wrong in that. After all, our economic system is based on ambition and self-improvement. And nobody is suggesting that pulp and paper workers suddenly stop trying to advance themselves. That would be unreasonable and unfair.

But there is a limit. Recent wage settlements in the United States pulp and paper industry amount to approximately a 10% annual increase in each of the next 3 years. Current wage requests in Canada are much higher. If the trend in Canadian settlements since 1969 was to continue, our hourly labour rates would be some 30% higher than those in the U.S. by 1977. That would cripple the industry's ability to grow in its biggest markets, both in Canada and around the world. Since there are no offsetting savings in taxation, or in the costs of Canadian wood, transportation, machinery, and materials.

Think for a minute. You don't have to be an expert in world economics to realize that if you can't sell a product, you can't pay people to make it. If customers disappear, so do jobs. That's not a threat—it's a fact of life.

Canadians make good pulp and paper. We've got an enviable combination of traditional skill and modern technology. We have an important natural resource: our forests. We make good products, and we can supply a growing world demand for them. We have a pulp and paper industry with great potential, but only if it can match the toughest competition in the world.

The Pulp and Paper Industry of Canada.

Law Reform Body Opposes Life Term

OTTAWA (CP) — The Law Reform Commission of Canada has suggested abolition of life imprisonment for any offence and says no sentence should be longer than 20 years.

"No sentence of imprisonment should deep hope to the offender," the commission says in a working paper released Thursday.

Currently non-capital murder, manslaughter, rape, break and entry of a dwelling, and some drug offences carry a possible life sentence.

The commission rejects rehabilitation or deterrence as grounds for imprisonment. It says imprisonment can be justified only on three grounds:

—Separation of offenders who represent a serious threat to the life or personal security of others. The maximum should be 6 years, with progressive release procedures tied to conduct.

—Denunciation of behavior regarded as reprehensible because of its violation of fundamental values. Sentences should be no longer than three years. Offenders in this category would include, for example, those who abused trust or public office, or persons convicted of murder or other serious crimes who are unlikely to hurt other persons.

—Wilful refusal to pay a fine or pay restitution to a victim, or to meet terms of probation. Six months should be the maximum in these cases.

The commission notes that one Canadian in 1,000 is in jail today—20,000. About 75,000 are incarcerated each year in federal, provincial or municipal jails.

About one-half the 4,600 persons sent to federal prisons each year have committed non-violent offences. Fewer than 20 per cent of those in federal or provincial prisons are there as a result of violence.

"Almost 50 per cent of prisoners in some provincial institutions were imprisoned because they could not pay fines," the commission notes.

One first offender in seven charged with non-violent offences goes to jail. Almost 50 per cent of second offenders in this category are jailed.

The commission describes prison as costly, not only to the prisoners but also to guards, prison officials and society.

WHAT RESULT?

"What does imprisonment do not only to the captive but to the captor?" the commission asks. "What social and psychological forces press upon his personality? Are these sufficiently recognized as a cost society passes on to the prisoner and his family."

Keeping a person in prison costs up to $14,000 a year. In addition there are often welfare costs to keep his family.

Fewer than 17 per cent of federal prisoners are engaged in industrial work. Wages rarely exceed $13.50 a month. Taxes, restitution, family obligations aren't met.

The cost to the prisoner himself is sometimes suicide, often "a lessening of respect for the administration of justice" as he tries to cope with the court, then the prison officials, then the parole officials.

"The problem is that the agents' stations do not reflect a common or coherent philosophy," the commission notes.

Within the prison itself, the prisoners have their own system of justice.

"It is at least partially true that large security prisons can only be run with the co-operation and tacit consent of the prisoners," the commission notes. "There are unspoken limits beyond which the administration may go, only at its peril.

"Yet the almost invisible and non-accountable nature of the prisoners' power results in tension, coercion and injustice within the institutions."

(Killings of prisoners, often sex offenders regarded with contempt by others, aren't uncommon in Canadian prisons.

(Prisoners also are beaten by other prisoners, or forced to submit to homosexual acts.)

"Perhaps these costs are inevitable as long as imprisonment means a place—putting people in boxes and keeping them there," the commission says.

The commission also recommends that:

—The habitual offender law, by which a person may be imprisoned indefinitely, be abolished. It says the law is applied unevenly across Canada and often to petty offenders rather than to dangerous or professional criminals. The commission says "crime's upper management" is rarely touched.

—The 1948 dangerous sexual offender law be abolished and such offenders be dealt with under ordinary sentencing law. Furthermore, a judge should be appointed to look into the cases of those now in prison with the object of establishing a release program, periodic review of their cases, and an end to these life sentences—only "after a period of successful living in the community."

CLC Hopes Budget Easy on Workers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Labor Congress president Joe Morris said Thursday he hopes next Monday's federal budget will not place all the burden of economic recovery on wage and salary earners.

He said he was concerned Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister John Turner were sitting up organized workers as the scapegoat for economic stagnation and inflation.

He said strike and wage statistics had been used for international comparisons which were not valid because methods of collecting data were different.

Both Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Turner have said Canada has the second worst strike record after Italy, but the congress says other figures show Canada is seventh.

Mr. Turner has also referred to high wage settlements being a major cause of inflation, and said Canadian wages were rising twice as fast as American wages.

Mr. Morris said some settlements have exceeded the average but were justified because the work had been undervalued.

He added that American wage statistics did not show cost-of-living allowances and higher fringe benefits.

He said the congress would like to see lower taxes, especially for those in lower-income brackets, policies to promote economic growth and provide more jobs and efforts to increase housing.

A brief from the CLC urged Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde not to merge social insurance programs such as unemployment insurance, Canada Pension Plan and workmen's compensation with a proposed guaranteed annual income.

The congress said it would like to see a guaranteed income soon but it should be applied only to income support programs.

The congress also asked for an immediate increase in the federal minimum wage to $3 an hour, with further raises tied to increases in the Consumer Price Index. The federal minimum now is $2.30 and is to increase to $2.60 on July 23.

More Jobless Predicted

PARIS (Reuter) — An international survey forecast Thursday a further increase in Canada's "unemployment rate to 800,000 or eight per cent of the labor force by the middle of next year.

The rise in unemployment, which started last July, became pronounced in the last quarter of 1974 and stood around 7.2 per cent in March this year, the survey said.

It predicted consumer prices in Canada will rise at a rate of 11.8 per cent this year, slowing in the last quarter and the first half of next year.

Foreign Fleets Rape Fisheries

OTTAWA (CP) — Government and opposition agreed Canada's fisheries that some foreign fleets are poaching on coastal fisheries but disagreed on measures to stop the assault.

Psychoanalyst, a Progressive Conservatives took the hardest line, with Walter Carter (St. John's West) moving that Canada declare a 200-mile territorial limit without international agreement.

Jack Marshall (Humber-St. George's-St. Barbe) said "fishermen are not going to listen much longer" and they might go after foreign vessels themselves.

External Affairs Minister Alastair MacEachen said, however, that declaring a 200-mile limit would involve us in serious confrontation" with other countries.

Newfoundland and Nova Scotia have urged Ottawa to impose a 200-mile limit.

Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said Canada is on the verge of gaining international agreement on such a limit, plus more control over its coastal fishery.

As he spoke, however, a conference of the 14-nation International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries was about end in Scotland without acceptance of Canadian pleas for a 40-per-cent reduction in foreign fishing off the East Coast. Another meeting on the issue will be held in the autumn.

Mr. MacEachen had described the proposal as a bold one that would reduce, initially the foreign catch. Mr. Carter called it ridiculous and impossible to enforce because Canada is having trouble enforcing current agreements on fishing quotas.

Mr. LeBlanc, whose New Brunswick riding includes many fishermen, said coastal air and sea patrols had revealed that some foreign fleets are violating existing agreements on fishing quotas.

"We will use every means available to stop it," he said.

He mentioned specifically closing ports to violators, an unpopular measure in Atlantic ports that do a bustling business providing for foreign fleets.

The Carter motion was defeated 65 to 55 after a five-hour debate.

Mr. Carter said Russia, Poland and East and West Germany were "major plunderers of our marine resources."

Mr. LeBlanc said unilateral action at this stage would turn allies against Canada. Such action would not solve fishermen's problems, many of which resulted from mismanagement and overfishing by Canadians.

Donald Munro (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) said "strong provisions have to be supported with an adequate arsenal."

"We must be able to track, pursue and arrest those who are breaking the law," he said.

New Democrats and Social Credit members supported the Conservative motion. Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) said a unilateral limit would show "that Canada means business."

Nova Scotian Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore) said that unless Canada takes action, there will be no fish for anyone."

Trustees See Loss Of Power to Manage

TORONTO (CP) — Giving teachers the right to strike and negotiate any conditions of employment removes the power of boards of education to manage school systems, the Ontario School Trustees' Council said Thursday.

The council's 17-page brief was presented to a legislature committee studying Bill 100 on teacher-board relations.

The bill, which received second reading Tuesday, gives teachers the right to strike and allows collective bargaining of work conditions, including selection of teachers, class size, subjects taught, hours of school, school year and number of teachers.

The council said that under the legislation, educational policies would be dictated by collective bargaining and not by trustees and the community.

It urged that every collective agreement provide that boards have the exclusive right of management, including setting of educational policies.

Peter Bargen, council executive director, told the committee that principals and vice-principals should be prohibited from taking part in strike votes and strikes or joining teacher organizations because they are essential employees and part of management.

The bill would allow principals and vice-principals to belong to teacher organizations but not to take part in strike votes or action.

FAVOR REMOVAL

Mr. Bargen said a survey of Ontario school boards indicated that 78 per cent favored removing principals and vice-principals from teacher organizations.

J. J. Linscott, chairman of the Secondary School Headmasters' Council, said it opposes any legislation that gives principals and vice-principals less than full membership, including rights, responsibilities and privileges, in teacher organizations.

"The principal, while undertaken certain administrative duties, is primarily the principal teacher and recognized as in the Education Act," he said.

Scarce Mortgage Money Blamed for Housing Slump

OTTAWA (CP) — A shortage of mortgage money rather than failure of government housing policies is responsible for the slump in housing starts this year, says Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson.

"There is a very serious problem of a shortage of mortgage funds," he told John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) in the Commons Thursday. "This is the difficulty with which we are dealing."

Some financial institutions have said they no longer have mortgage funds available and others have indicated their mortgage money supply is tight.

Mr. Gilbert said government policies failed because they did not attract sufficient money to meet the government's target of 210,000 housing starts this year.

Mr. Danson said "it will be difficult to meet that target, but I am still keeping my sights high."

The most recent Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. figures, released June 9, show housing starts in May down 15 per cent at 16,897 from May last year and the five-month total of 67,193 this year compared with 71,698 in 1974.

Dieting Together

Plumpness plagues a growing number of Canadians.

Our reasons are as varied as we are: Inactivity, depression, affluent living and habit-forming gluttony.

And our reasons for wanting to rid ourselves of useless fat are just as varied: health problems, social embarrassment, premature deaths and the self-esteem that comes from victory of spirit over flesh.

In the optimistic — and seemingly secure-state — belief that growing greater than personal strength, weight-losing clubs have been springing up for the past decade or two. In the Belleville area they have a steadily increasing membership, still largely female, but with more men and children joining each year.

Everbody's Thin Under The Fat!

"Meal plans are great. But there's no magic without the help of people."

That's why Lorna Malcolm, lecturer for Counterweight, says she's part of that international organization.

Mrs. Malcolm joined Weight Watchers — now known as Counterweight — four years ago. "And I lost 38½ pounds. That "½ pound" indicates just how serious the matter of weight loss — or gain — is for dedicated dieters."

Now she's in charge of a Wednesday night "class" that meets at the Provincial Court building. There are 85 enrolled and another 90 hopeful losers in three other weekly classes. Membership includes men, women and children — some as young as eight years old.

"My job is to keep morale — up," explains Mrs. McQuoun, "to help people go away each time really motivated to keep trying."

Using a positive-thinking approach, she gives brief lectures designed to raise spirits after the obligatory weigh-in.

"We have to learn to laugh when we're down," she says. "And we learn that it's good to laugh at ourselves. I make jokes like 'happiness is being able to cross your legs'. And I remind them that when they look at someone thin, they must bear in mind that's the best that person's ever going to look.

"They, on the other hand, have a good chance of improving!"

Laughter and kindly reassurance are also part of the program for over 100 women who belong to Trimettes. Founded by Ella Young in Trenton 10 years ago, the organization now branches in the area, attended by women from "all walks of life".

Bernadette Butcher leads the Belleville group of 30 members, who meet Tuesdays at 7 p.m. at Queen Elizabeth School. Mrs. Young's group meets Monday evenings at the CFB Trenton Recreation Centre.

"We began as just a few women who got together to help each other lose weight," says Mrs. Young. "Then as others heard about what we were doing, it grew and grew.

"The major problem may be their own night out, especially if their weight problem has made them withdrawn. So the friendships formed through Trimettes are important in many ways.

"We have speakers to talk to us about diet, fashion, health or yoga, and we also divide into smaller groups to talk about our experiences. That's where the understanding and support of the group plays a crucial part in helping individuals keep dieting."

Mrs. Young admits that her group has gone up and down during the past 19 years, adding that re-gain after loss is a common problem.

"I'm on my way down again now," she says. "Because I'm on a struggle-path I can relate to others for whom dieting doesn't come easily.

"The emotional aspects of weight gain — the depression and compulsive eating that form an interlocking cycle — have been experienced by both Mrs. Malcolm and Mrs. Young, who can give advice, based on their own mistakes and successes.

"I have had as much as 90 pounds and gained it back," says Mrs. Young, "because I didn't know how to cope with all that weight gone. It was overwhelming.

"You get all these compliments coming in, but it becomes such a burden you start eating again to relieve that emotional tension."

June Cann, co-leader of the Belleville branch of TOPS (Take Pounds Off Sensibly), says that like many women she has been battling excess pounds ever since bearing children. A slow loser, she too has a great deal of empathy for the 30 women who attended the two groups at the Recreation Centre Thursday evenings.

With leader Vicki Nosewurthy, Mrs. Cann is guiding other women toward the club goal — graduation to another level: KOPS (Keeping Pounds Off Sensibly). This standard is achieved after a three-month period as a "KOPS-in-waiting", while the new lost weight is maintained.

This program is similar to the Counterweight program of Lorna Wood Ouston for a 10-week stretch during which the dieter learns to deal with a wider range of foods again.

Neither TOPS or Trimettes have a "meal plan" as Counterweight does.

"Our diets are all individual from our own doctors," says Mrs. Cann. "We do have a low-calorie cookbook and magazine from TOPS but office gives suggestions. But mainly our meetings are for fun, weight-loss and the togetherness and guest speakers."

As in the other clubs weighing is a private affair observed only by the weigher-in and weighee. At Counterweight when the members divulge their weekly loss — or gain — they are met by applause either in signify praise or the "you'll-do-it-next-week" support so essential to group losing.

Crowning this year's Trimette Queen, Gail VanWert is president and founder of the Trenton club, Ella Young. The ceremony marked the end of the annual Graduation Banquet held by the group, attended by members and their husbands and guests. Mrs. VanWert's loss was 36 pounds.

Not Being Heavy Is' Heaven'

In the last 14 months, Hilda Tripp has lost 100 pounds, her reason for doing it was simple.

"I just wanted to find out what it's like being one of the majority," she says. "I never all about being in the minority."

At 249½ pounds, Mrs. Tripp knew too much about being the one who didn't fit in . . . and how clothes wouldn't fit her.

"I was always overweight," she recalls. Even at 11 years old she wore a size 18, and she was only five feet, four inches tall.

"But my whole family was overweight, so they didn't look down on me for being too fat. It wasn't until I got older that I felt the social pressures," she says.

"And don't let anyone fool you. I'm sure 90 per cent of overweight people suffer remarks as much as I did. Comments about your size really hurt.

"In the end it wasn't anything to do with my health that made me diet, it was the social aspect. My sister joined Weight Watchers, and I saw her losing and thought, if she can do it this way, maybe I can. The fact that losing that extra weight is also good for my health is just a bonus."

Before she joined the Counterweight program, Hilda Tripp had tried at least 10 diets. "Since the first one I tried when I was 17 at BCI, I swear I tried them all," she says. "The grapefruit, the eggs, the high protein, the appetite depressant candies, the total starvation . . . and the most I ever lost was 32 pounds on the low-carbohydrate diet. I always gained it back and I was always hungry.

"But on the Counterweight plan, I'm never hungry. I couldn't even eat all the food I'm allowed daily."

Her husband and eight-year-old daughter are delighted with Hilda's results, and have been a constant source of encouragement.

"My daughter was looking at an old photo of me recently," says Mrs. Tripp, "and she said she didn't like the old mommy! She's very conscious of my eating habits, and before she'll give me so much as a stick of gum she asks if I'm allowed it."

The whole business of being allowed or not allowed some foods is rather like being on probation, she agrees, but adds that it is not oppressive having these rules.

"Only once did I break down," she admits. "After I'd lost 37 pounds I got the most terrible craving for peanut butter and jam on toast. And I'd never even liked peanut butter.

"Anyway, I got it ready, took one bite, and couldn't eat any more. I just felt too guilty.

"Partly it was knowing I'd have to confess that I'd slipped at the next week's meeting. But mostly it was feeling that the lecturer had been trying so hard to help me lose, how could I let her down?"

The Counterweight plan has done a great deal to help Mrs. Tripp — "The months have flown by, I really look forward to meetings," she says — but she has had help from other areas too.

"The girls at the Royal Bank where I work have been wonderful," she says happily. "They've seen the whole thing happen, and have given me flowers and a charm bracelet along the way."

Like others who have lost large amounts, Hilda has funny stories to tell about what happens when people discover the "new" smaller person who'd been lurking under the layers of fat.

"After I lost 77½ pounds, I went dancing with my husband in Trenton. Someone who saw us together phoned his mother to find out what had happened. She thought we must have broken up since he was dancing with someone else.

"It's tremendous not being recognized!"

Mrs. Tripp is now on a maintenance plan, not losing any more weight on doctor's orders.

"My gall bladder and my heart are still operating as if I were 100 pounds heavier," she says. "I've got to wait for them to catch up before I lose again."

Feeling secure and confident in her self-acquired good looks, Mrs. Tripp is still amazed at "how much better I feel. I can move so much more easily. When I drive, I don't need to push back the seat all the way, I'm not afraid to stand up for myself, I don't worry what someone might say about me.

"I'll tell you what it's like being one of the majority.

"It's absolute heaven."

Try to imagine Hilda Tripp, now a size 13, as a solid size 38½, confined to shapeless, dark-colored clothes that made her look older than her years. Now she is happily able to pick out any fashions she likes.

Modelling their "sad-sack" old clothes that fit — snugly — before they joined the Trimettes are Lynn Eleanor Johnson and Ann McConnel show just how much weight they have lost. Later, they modelled their pretty, attractive outfits, illustrating how their appearance and self-confidence — has changed for the better.

Here's How To Be a Loser

How do they do it?

How do members of weight-losing clubs finally Take It Off?

"You've got to be ready to deny yourself," says Hilda Tripp. In other words those who join are already motivated to go along with new eating rules.

"You've also got to be ready to adjust your schedule and make quick meals," says Mrs. Tripp whose efforts under Counterweight guidance have lost her 100 pounds.

June Cann of TOPS suggests her method of preparing less. "Potatoes are my downfall so when I cook them for the family I don't cook enough. I dish out everyone else's plate first and there's none left for me!"

Mrs. Cann also recommends using a smaller plate than usual so that meals look bigger.

Another TOPS feature is phonegad support, a kind of buddy system in which a dieter may call another for help. "We just talk each other out of eating," says Mrs. Cann.

TOPS offers monthly incentive contests, with prizes for those who lose weight.

Trimettes hold an annual banquet — there's even ice cream for dessert — at which members are presented with trophies and awards for their efforts during the year. Even perfect attendance gets recognition as does each year that's passed with weight loss maintained.

At this year's Graduation Dinner held at the CFB Trenton Yacht Club, Dorothy Patrick and Ann Brown Hutchison received awards for having held off 22 and 45 pounds respectively for nine years. In the eyes of their sister Trimettes, they have achieved the ultimate victory.

Lorna Malcolm of Counterweight says that facing facts is the best way to start. "Stand naked in front of a full-length mirror and look at yourself," she says.

"Don't think you're any better than an alcoholic" she tells her members. "You've got to prove you can live with food."

The Counterweight philosophy has changed slightly during the past year, she says, so that there's more control over cravings.

"Under the old system you could eat as much as you liked of free foods such as lettuce. So people could continue their fat habits of gorging," she says. "Then once they'd lost weight they'd go right back to eating too much of the wrong foods.

"You've got to change your habits.

"We have a diary sheet we give our members that is a self-analysis of eating habits.

You can be your own psychiatrist with this sheet after a week. You can see where your eating problems lie.

"Where, when, with whom what, why, how and what time you eat are all important. And you don't realize how much you eat till you write it down."

Weighing regularly is an essential part of each club's program but home weighing is discouraged above scales that vary. Hopes can be falsely raised by shifting one's position on scales so they read a pound or two less, a cheating measure practised by even the most honest of dieters now and again.

Perhaps the key to weight loss is Mrs. Malcolm's observation that you "need to be a little bit selfish and be totally concerned about yourself."

But for so many housewives whose lives have long revolved around their families, their homes and their meal-makers, that's a hard thing to begin.

And that's where group support is useful.

Counterweight costs $7 for membership which includes the diet cookbook and $3 thereafter. Senior citizens and teen-agers pay $5 and $2. TOPS has an initial $7 fee and costs 30 cents a week and Trimettes charges $2 for the first visit and 50 cents weekly but with small fines for weight gain.

Lorna Malcolm promotes the group for which she is weekly lecturer, adviser and morale-builder. The Counterweight organization promotes a specific meal plan, and has its own brands of food as well.

Female Muggers Terrorize Elderly

NEW YORK (Reuter) — To be old and poor in New York is frequently to be prey to the young and the strong and now, according to police, the female.

New York City housing department detectives, working from documents provided from a hospital bed by a brave but beaten-up 72-year-old man, say they have cracked a ring of young women who have terrorized the elderly in the Queens Island section of Brooklyn for four months.

The police say the all-female gang, numbering five including at least one non-gun girl and one young mother, were responsible for robbing and beating 25 elderly people living in public housing projects that dot the once-fashionable amusement park area of the city.

The gang is not the only one operating in the city, where muggers and more elderly people in poor and near-poor areas find themselves afraid to leave their homes even in broad daylight, even in their own tenant's lounge.

But, according to police, it is the only one composed exclusively of women.

"They are thin, small black women who blend into the crowd. They are people you would not suspect of being muggers by looking at them," says Det. Lucia Tolano, one of two housing department detectives directly involved in the case.

In a recent interview with Reuter, he added, "Their modus operandi is to follow old people from the supermarket or the bank where they have just cashed their pension or social security cheque to the door of their apartment.

"Then they just push the victim through his or her own door, rob them and beat them up."

He said the beatings, sometimes very severe, were at times with iron pipes, were meant to shake up and to instill a sense of fear in the victim.

But the 25 muggings, all over 70 and some in their 80s, that Det. Telano and his partner, Det. Jerry Bell, collected, two died of heart attacks shortly after they were robbed.

Housing department Detective Commander Thomas McAndrew says: "It is not unusual in cases where an old person has been robbed for him or her to suffer a heart attack afterwards."

Two members of the gang have been apprehended, Det. Telano said. The other three are being hunted.

The detective and his partner have given the girls a "T-and-A" and the Lone Ranger," because of the wide number of arrests they have made and the ruses they have used in tracking their suspects.

In their latest case, Det. Telano said they posed as rubbish collectors and set a telephone repair men. But their most important break came from a 80-year old woman, who had been robbed three times in the last three months.

The man, Herbert Feldman, a retired plumber, was taken to hospital with a heart attack suffered after his last robbery. Unlike the other victims of the gang, who refused to identify their assailants for fear of reprisal, he gave police a complete description.

Det. Sgte told a newspaper interviewer, Jerry Nolan, of a scrapper all his life and in the old days he would go to someone man to man. But now he is too old and he can no longer fight for it to identify them and go to court."

Women Picking Pockets on Trains

BOMBAY (CP) — Dozens of additional plainclothesmen were posted on Bombay's crowded suburban trains last year following complaints that several women had been robbed of their valuables.

But what intrigued the police most, most of the thefts took place in women's compartments.

The idea that the thieves could be women did not appeal to the Bombay police department. In fact, senior police officers were quoted in the press as saying that "we know women don't make good pickpockets or robbers, not at any rate in India."

Now this flattering opinion has been revised with the arrest of what Bombay Evening News called "a gang of well-dressed women pickpockets and chain-snatchers."

The names of three of the gang members is given as Nisa, 20, Hasna Shaikh, 23 and Rehana Mahomed, 20. They were described by the police as "the brains behind a well-organized group of train thieves".

Nisa, a dark-haired beauty dressed in a green silk sari and wearing diamond ear-rings, was caught as she tried to sell costly necklace of a middle aged housewife from behind in a crowded suburban coach.

It is said that the alleged women thieves usually operate in crowded trains. Once a neck-lace was detached, it used to be passed on to another member of the gang who would then quickly hand it over to the third member.

"The whole thing took only a few seconds," explained a policeman. "Often, the victim didn't realize that anything had been robbed."

Bombay shopkeepers have also complained of having been cheated by "fashionable ladies."

In one case, beautiful Rehana, aged about 25, went to a department store and selected a dress costing about $20. She then asked the attendant to fetch her a couple of Angora tablets as she was not feeling well.

Ann Landers

Wedding Customs Degrade Women

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that when a man marries for the second time—or the third or fourth—he can wear anything he wants, but when a woman has had one previous wedding she is told that a white gown and veil is in "poor taste"? How come? Who dreams up those cockeyed rules? Other women, no doubt. Men couldn't care less.

Does the pastel dress you recommend have an image that the bride is tainted? Why can't she look like a brand new bride on her wedding day even though she has been married before?

This is just one of the crude insults we have kept silent about. We women subservient. Moreover, it's the brand of narrow thinking that will keep women down forever. You, Ann Landers, with your archaic advice don't help much.—Irate In Illinois

Dear Ill.: Scoty dear, but only just doesn't. It's a continued tradition in the teeth. The bridal veil and the white gown are the hell-bent-for-leather. If a divorcee (or widow) wants to wear the ceremonial garb, no one will arrest her, but it is the accepted thing to tout 'ide, I don't recommend it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a Baptist. My fiance is Lutheran. Mike's parents have money. My mother is a widow and lives on a limited income. Mike's folks are putting on the wedding and reception. Both will be in their church.

As the time grows near, I become more and more depressed. Mike means a lot to me. Mike says his religion means a lot to him. He has been raised it over several times but it always ends up the same way — at a stalemate.

We are both 22 and very much in love at least I thought we were. Now I'm not sure. What does this sound like to you? — Wavering

Dear W.: Trouble. The kind that gets worse with time — unless you make up your mind.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 18 and have a good job. My boy friend is 20 and works for his father. We have been engaged for two years and have been "semi-engaged" for 11 months. By "semi-engaged" I mean I don't have my ring yet but we've been having sexual relationship.

Neither of us has taken any precautions against pregnancy but nothing has happened. It just occurred to me that maybe one or both of us might be sterile.

Is this possible? How do we find out for sure? — HH And Worried

Dear H and M: It's possible, but unlikely. My guess is that you aren't sterile, just lucky. Buy all means go to a Planned Parenthood Chapter (look in the telephone book) and tell them your story. They will "educate" you and tell you and your boy friend what to do. Do it immediately.

Dear Ann Landers: You've straightened out a few of our problems. Now I need your help for me when I NEEDED IT. Now I ANY TO DO SOMETHING for your readers.

Please tell them that the minute they finish reading this column they should take a long drink of water to clear the throat. Voyeuver

Dear Voyeuver: Why might have to take down an important number. Trusting to memory is risky. A person doesn't get a number right it can cause considerable trouble. If it's for someone else, I know because I'm not supposed to tell you.

Dear Hap: Thanks for the reminder. And now, may I add a clincher? Tilt the pen on end prior to the phone. People have a way of walking away with the derned things.

Dear Ann: Last night my husband and I went to a dinner party in the home of people we know casually through Jim's work. After dinner the hostess asked her "hubby" — a collection of low-down personality. He was the same kind of every type and I was mortified.

I'm a big girl and I like myself and couldn't get enough of it. Jim, by the way home I told him I never wanted to see those people again. He said I was "square" and added, "When in Rome you do as the Romans do."Am I wrong?—Alice

Dear Alice: It depends on what the Romans are doing. It doesn't happen to be your cup of tea, you don't do it. I'm with you desirie.

Doris Clark

Boyfriend Needs Freedom

Dear Doris: My boy friend and I have been having arguments ever since we started going steady. I really like him, but I never know where I'm at like great and in the smallest things.

I don't think I can stand it much longer, but I don't want to lose him because it's fantastic when we are getting along. We are 16 years old.

Confused.

Dear Confused: Learning to cope with disagreements with people is one reason why dating is a valuable experience.

Your boy friend is one of those who must be handled with a great deal of care and tact. You have to baby him along, all the while keeping your sense of humor. It's good to know how to co-exist peacefully with this sort of person, but you always have to give more than you receive in return.

Dear Doris: Decide whether or not it's worth it. He may make a nice husband. Maybe he'd be a terrible husband at this stage.

Dear Doris: Too much church seems to be threatening to the spirit of our home. My husband is out — at church meetings most of the time. I am beginning to think of him as a star boarder. The average is five nights a week.

I'm not sure I'm worried whether I am jealous of his ability to cope with other people and so on, but honestly I'm not. I'm beginning to feel I have a grievance. But if I ask for the slightest help with an errand or a chore, he never has time.

I am beginning to lose the interest I have in my home and myself.

Green Pastures Widow.

Dear Green: It happens in the best of families. And when a church chores home is Just A Guy Who Can't Say No, who in the church will call a halt? He is the one who must maintain a balance.

It hasn't occurred to him that marriage is for better or worse. That if he and his children are to become good pals, they need his gift of time and love. And so do you.

My minister suggests your minister be your counselor; perhaps after one sermon 'ry at getting your husband's ear. Confidential Or Best Friend: When they ask what sort of thing might you give a church collaneous, for a shower gift, don't go all out! It is the thought and goodwill that matters, not the cost.

A shower gift could be one or two pieces such as a pantyhose box, jewellery bag for travell, or cosmetic box (also for travell). Or a bath bag, shoe bag, full of pockets, that can be strellized and tacked inside closet door, would help you find things keep her apartment tidy.

Singer More Expressive' After Huge Weight Loss

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opera singer Dani Cole has learned how to express herself more fully in the past two years, and she did it by losing weight.

"Now I can really express myself," with my whole body," she says. "I am interested in being a complete performer, not acting as well as singing. Two years ago, all the energy I had was used up by my hindered me."

The 38-year-old mezzo-soprano weighed 310 pounds two years ago.

"It was insidious. I was so big I could carry it well. I even developed a style as a fat person—were hands, lots of energy, there was a flow to my clothes."

It wasn't until 1971 when she lost her second baby that she realized "that what I was doing might be affecting other people."

Miss Cole said her weight increased by 40 lbs. with her baby and had brought on high blood pressure and diabetes.

After the baby's death, she returned to singing. She had given it up more than two years before. The "return was very difficult, working from day to day."

"But I was learning discipline."

She finally decided to lose weight when she lost 30 pounds following a series operations.

"I realized my body had total control of me," she said.

She went on a diabetic diet, "which is very evenly balanced."

Two years later, she discovered that diabetic diet became an unexpected side-effect.

"I've got a new personality. When you lose weight you have to reckon with yourself.

"Sometimes I feel that all my inhibitions are gone, like a wolf in a windstorm, emotionally and physically. I was covered before. When I was fat I was easy to get along with.

"But now I look out for myself more than I did; God, I like myself more than I used to."

Miss Cole, born in Waukegan, Ill., was here to sing the role of Fricka in Wagner's Die Walkure.

Too Many Tonsillectomies?

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A pediatric specialist here suggests that while more tonsillectomy and adenoidectomy operations are performed in Canada than in any other western country, there is only the "flimsiest" of valid scientific evidence to support use of the technique.

Dr. William Feldman, associate professor of pediatrics at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ont., told a meeting of the Canadian Society of Allergy and Clinical Immunology that "Canada is probably the most tonsillectomized nation in the western world."

About 200 operations for every 10,000 Canadians are performed annually, twice the rate in the United States and nearly three times that of the United Kingdom, he said.

He declined to go into the reasons for such a high rate but said literature suggests the number of ear, nose and throat specialists is something to do with it as do referral patterns and the method of payment.

Dr. Feldman said the surgical procedure also is one of the most expensive, costing about $25 million a year in Canada.

Besides the risk of post-operative hemorrhages and emotional upset for the child involved, but are having allergic reactions.

death in each 16,000 to 20,000 operations.

In Canada in 1965, the latest year for which he had figures, there were 14 deaths but he was unable to give figures for the number of operations done.

"My feeling is that it probably is a worthwhile procedure for a certain select group of patients," he said, adding he hopes some one will do a study to support his belief.

Dr. Feldman said there is no scientific evidence that the procedure benefits children with recurrent respiratory problems.

He said a "substantial number of these kids are not infected, but are having allergic reactions."

International Hardware May Sue Workers over Strike Timing

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

International Hardware Company of Canada Ltd., is claiming "damages, reimbursement and full compensation" to cover losses it is sustaining as a result of its striking 220 workers.

In a telegram to the union, the company states that because the union did not give 96 days notice of its intended action, the collective agreement is still in effect.

The telegram is signed by Howard Hanton, vice president of manufacturing at the Coleman St. plant.

Workers left their jobs to man the picket lines last Thursday demanding a 75-percent increase in pay and unlimited cost of living allowances in both years of a two-year agreement.

Ted Whitthames, district representative for the International Union of Moulders and Allied Workers said in a telephone interview from his Toronto home Thursday:"I'm not talking to the company's threat to sue very seriously."

"Officially, I have received the telegram and have filed it," he said. "I filed it with the thought that Mr. Hanton should take another look at the labor act."

When The Intelligencer visited Mr. Hanton's office Thursday for clarification of the telegram, the company receptionist said all inquiries about the strike must be directed to company president D.C. Boyd. In the past, all statements had come from Mr. Hanton personally.

Mr. Boyd said he knew nothing of a threatened suit and that "the company's official statement is no comment."

In the meantime picket line spirits are high — duly noted Thursday by a weiner roast at the park across the street from the plant.

"They've just adding fuel to the fire spending us a telegram like that," said local president Ray Ryan.

The company's last offer came as a total package including salary and fringe benefit increase giving workers a combined increase of approximately 37 per cent.

Gas Prices To Rise

Although gasoline prices have remained stable for the last while, city dealers are bracing themselves for a barage of customer complaints when the next increase is announced — expected any day.

"Our customers have pretty well accepted current prices", said Cliff Broadbridge of Cliff's Texaco. "But well hear from them when the next increase comes through."

Most service station operators are selling gas at about seven cents a gallon more now than it sold for at this time last year. Oil is up about 10 cent a quart.

Operators made a point of mentioning they don't set their own prices. They are set by the oil companies that supply them.

Dealers for the major oil companies and so-called discount and self-serve spokesmen agreed there is always a negative reaction right after a price rise, but drivers settle down.

Today a gallon of regular gas is selling from between 62.9 and 69.9 cents a gallon, but a further boost is expected when Prime Minister Trudeau makes a statement on national oil prices and policy.

Mattress Set Ablaze

A Brasilford man was taken to Belleville General Hospital Thursday suffering with smoke inhalation after a smoke room fire at the Quinte Hotel.

Don Nosworthy was admitted to hospital approximately 4 p.m. and signed himself out at 7 a.m. in satisfactory condition.

Deputy Fire Chief Bob Emerson said the fire was reported at 3:31 p.m.when a heat detector was triggered on the third floor. The fire was located by Captain Helm and Fireman Bruce Hall in room 351.

Firemen kicked in the door and extinguished the smoldering fire.

The firemen removed Mr. Nosworthy who was semi-conscious, and was taken to hospital.

Deputy Fire Chief Emerson said he believes the fire was caused by a lit cigarette.

The firemen had to use smoke ejectors and airpaks to combat the smoke.

A firetruck returned to the hotel at 5:30 p.m. when the mattress was discovered to be still smoldering.

Food Store Robbed

A west Belleville food store was entered early Tuesday and merchandise valued at $28 stolen.

Scene of the break-in was Sidney Jim near the Sidney St. bridge where cigarets, candy and other articles were stolen after entry was gained by a window, city police reported today.

Tires Slashed

An overnight act of vandalism saw tires slashed on two cars owned by Sidney St. family, city police said today.

Three tires on each of the vehicles were slashed at the residence of Alex Glover, 398 Sidney, police said.

Strike Up a Party

With strike captain Louis Rufo doing the honors at the barbecue, striking members of the International Union of Moulders and Allied Workers made themselves a wiener roast in front of International Hardware. The company has charged workers with holding an illegal strike and is claiming damages. A union representative said: "I'm not taking their action very seriously."

Travelling Van to Assist Reading Skill Improvement

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

If you can't bring teachers to professional development you may be able to take professional development to them.

At least that's the bunch a group of county educators have in proposing a new alternative to reading labs and reading centres for both students and teachers.

Some have dubbed it the "Sylabus" or the "read-mobile" but whatever they call it there will be a van used to set up a portable and mobile reading centre that can travel to any group of students or teachers in Hastings County.

It's one of the projects being developed by the educational task force, Alternatives in Education, and is currently being recommended to the administration council as one of the possible projects for next fall.

The committee members who worked on the concept are Eric Haughton, a psychologist with the Hastings County Board of Education, Jill Smeeta, a special education teacher, Marnie Tufts, a teacher at Bayside Secondary School and Ernie Shipton, principal of Moira Secondary School.

Mr. Shipton, a spokesman for the committee, said the group believe that a major thrust should be made to improve the reading skills of students from kindergarten of Grade 3.

"An initial feature of such a thrust would be a concentrated effort to upgrade the awareness and teaching skills of teacher in respects to reading," he added.

The proposal calls for trained personnel already available in Hastings County who would form a nucleus of a team assigned to this task of upgrading and professional development.

The committee feels that many teachers, who live in centres other than Belleville, often find it difficult and expensive coming to a central point for professional development.

"The team, in the van, could move out from the main centre in each school in the county — initially these would be schools with classes from kindergarten to Grade 3.

"Officially, I have received the telegram and have filed it."

"Ideally, the mobile reading lab may be developed as a pilot project for several years and then judged on its own merit as a permanent or temporary project.

Two Hurt In Crash

A small hand of Bellevillians these days are drumming, a interest in music among the city's small fry.

Simultaneously, they' plan involvement with the other end of the age spectrum — the city's elderly.

What it all means is that Fun 'N' Music is back for another year.

The project was first launched in 1974 with a federal Opportunities For Youth (OFY) grant.

It apparently proved so successful, OFY decided to fund the project for a second year and gave Fun 'N' Music II a $3,150 grant.

Grant Enables Teen-agers To Continue Musical Program

Fun 'N' Music II is run by four teen-age high school students.

Its main objective is to seed a basic appreciation of music among younger people who otherwise might not have such a chance.

The most interest, the quartet of young musicians now is playing concerts in city public schools.

The project works this way: Youngsters from eight to 11 years are asked to register with the group. For one hour daily for four week the students then introduce them to musical instruments, how they're used, and some basic knowledge of music.

This year the instruments are guitar, piano, drums and accordion.

Fun 'N' Music II rents both the instruments and studio for use by the students.

Last year the project attracted 300 students.

Fun 'N' Music II — the numeral distinguishes the venture for the initial, 1974 project — should attract even more, predicts Lance Jeffery, 19-year-old spokesman for his fellow musicians. The expectation is based on the fact that this year there's more public awareness of the project all about.

The program's individual impact is difficult to determine when such numbers are involved, indicates Lance.

"Basically it's so a lot of kids who don't have an opportunity to play musical instruments get a chance to do so," he says.

A "few" may be inspired to carry studies further, more seriously.

"With the others at least you can say they had the experience and know a little bit more about music."

There's one slight difference with this year's project — a $1 registration fee.

Although "delighted" OFY approved funding for a second successive year —something he believes it rarely does, says Lance — the grant is insufficient to cover all expenses — including rentals and transportation.

The transportation costs enter the scene with the Fun 'N' Music II other objective — entertaining senior citizens.

The musicians — who've played together several years — have laid on a program of entertainment visits to local nursing homes and institutions for the aged.

Because of this they've also received some supplementary donations from nursing homes, says Lance.

Fun 'N' Music II gets into swing July 11 and runs to Aug. 15.

Experience '75 Employs 150 Area Students

Ontario government summer employment programs will cost, but 150 young people to work in various community jobs in the Quinte district this year.

The work assignments cover a broad spectrum of community agencies and include jobs with conservation authorities, police departments, museums and libraries.

It's all part of Ontario Experience '75 — the overall title this year for $10-million in work programs which in previous summers were identified by separate names — like Opportunity Ontario.

In all 27 programs, operated through various government ministries, will employ more than 7,500 young people across the province this year.

More than 70 jobs will be found in the Belleville, Trenton and Hastings County areas — many of them involved with outdoors work.

The natural resources ministry will employ 35 in environment programs directed from its Napanee district office, which includes the Belleville — Trenton area.

Another 17 will be engaged on similar projects out of the ministry's Tweed district office.

There will be 15 jobs allotted to the Moira River Conservation Authority and another 15 to the Lower Trent Conservation Authority.

In Prince Edward County 16 young people will be hired for conservation work.

Natural area social programs also will absorb smaller numbers.

The parks and recreation ministry has hired three people for cataloguing procedures at Hastings County Museum and the same number for North Marysburgh Museum at Picton area.

The health ministry has hired three for work with nursing home residents in the communities of Madoc, Deloro and Warkworth.

Young people also will gain first-hand experience in law enforcement by working on a daily basis with local police forces — three in Belleville and two in Trenton.

Bands Combine Talent

Trial amalgamation of the Yarrows Drum and Bugle Corps and the Kingston Grenadiers will give the group a much better chance in competition, says drum major and director Hugh Bondy.

The combined corps — 80 strong, with 35 from the yard-men band — is meeting forward competition in the Red Carpet Association international competion in Hamilton, August 23. This is the largest competition Canada has.

"With the combined bands, we'll be able to make a much more impressive showing on the field," Mr. Bondy said.

Officers of the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund, sponsors of the Belleville corps who were available for comment, said they were unaware of the trial amalgamation of the Belleville and Kingston corps.

Hillcrest Residents Protest Sharp Property Tax Increase

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hillcrest's new sewer system has wrought a wave of protest that will crest at city hall Monday.

A large sector of the northend neighborhood — which for years petitioned for sanitary services now had had them installed — and is jarred by the result.

The sewer system' Local taxes have soared for about half of Hillcrest homeowners who now are being serviced by the sanitary sewer.

In one instance, costs of paying for the installation is said to have more than tripled one home-owner's tax bill.

The general jolt was vocalized Thursday night when a meeting of the Hillcrest Ratepayers Association (HRA) decided to lodge a protest before city council Monday. It will seek council's support for senior government action to ease a burden that has householders thinking of selling up and skipping out.

says HRA president Ken Brooks.

The problem has blossomed from a combination of roots, he said. Chief among them:

— Annexation. When Hillcrest was annexed by the city, in 1969, it was a rural suburb. Hence many homes had long frontages.

— Zoning: Sometime after annexation city hall slapped restricted zoning on its new suburb, freezing development. This meant property owners couldn't reduce their frontages by selling off land. A city bylaw lifting the restrictin still has to receive Ontario Municipal Board approval.

— Inflation: Since annexation, Hillcrest dwellers have been seeking sanitary services. But the city did not act until 1971, when sewers first started going in north of Byron St. Now roughly half Hillcrest is serviced.

All this has resulted in costly services for the charges they can't afford, the affected Hillcrest householders say. Local improvement costs now are running $17 a foot, said Mr. Brooks, which has resulted in rendering tax bills on long frontages.

Mr. Brooks, one Joe Cox, a native political son of the area called to Thursday night's meeting said he'd heard of one tax bill that had jumped from $323 to $1,200 with local improvements.

There's a further fear, said Mr. Brooks: "If sanitary sewers are installed, so much how high will tax bills go with other local improvements — sidewalks, pavements, lights?

This could see Hillcrest residents paying the highest taxes in the city, he claimed.

The city's plan to plate the sewer was not being laid at the door of the present city council.

The city originally was ordered by the OMB in 1958 — when it approved annexation — to begin work on a sanitary sewer system.

Petitions repeatedly were sent to city hall, but because of technicalities stemming from city hall administration, were never officially filed with council the meeting was told by Mr. Brooks.

Homeowners Question Installation Charges

A protest meeting of Hillcrest Ratepayers Association (HRA) on the cost of sanitary sewer services aired some other price side effects of the issue.

Some householders pondered the cost of work done to run lateral connections from their properties to the sewer line.

— now laid down in a sector of the neighborhood north of Byron St.

The queries centred on the geological conditions in various parts of Hillcrest, which has rocky ground conditions.

Archie Ward, 78 McFarland Dr., said he'd been billed $649 for taxes for a lateral. In annual installments of $23 the bill would reach $1,265 over 15 years. But, he pointed out, was little rock to excavate on his property. He believed the work could have been completed in less than three hours with two men using a back hoe for about $250.

Gordon Lance, 35 McFarland Dr., said he had dug out his entire basement for less than it cost to install his lateral connection.

The comments set Ken Brooks, HRA president wondering how much the installation bills would run when the second phase of sewer installation begins south of Byron.

Ground in the home in that area the rock is only 18 inches from the surface, he said.

Protest meeting was prompted by the fact homeowners already serviced are paying $17 a foot for the new installations along their frontages north of Byron.

New Equipment Tested

Belleville firefighter Wally Istead perches atop a 50-foot ladder testing a Tele Squirt pumper-ladder truck which will be on the ground inspect the vehicle's complement of controls. Belleville Fire department is considering purchase of the truck which King Seagrave has priced at approximately $36,000.

Booze a Bargain

There are some bargains at your local LCBO outlet.

All across the province, the Liquor Control Board will be lowering prices on slow moving brands, starting next month.

At the two outlets in Belleville, there will be a few specials.

Jim Matthews, manager of the LCBO outlet on Station St., says there are a lot of loose bottles of rye, vodka and wine which, he says, he expects "will be sold 10 minutes after we open on Monday".

"Some of these are just slow movers and we have to get rid of them," Mr. Matthews says.

Careful not to mention any brand names, Mr. Matthews says he doesn't mind people asking for the reduced price before the sale starts.

At the Bellevile Plaza outlet, manager Bob Bailey says he might have a few bottles.

"What they (the main outlet display, but we won't know how much we'll have until we take stock Monday morning," Mr.Bailey said.

"We have a few bottles of wine and some vodka," Mr. Bailey said.

"What they the main outlet in Toronto did, was ship a small stock to stores across Ontario instead of having it all in Toronto," Mr. Bailey remarked.

The sale will last until they are all sold. Special orders then will be taken.

In Belleville,the special brands also will be marked by a purple 'X' on the listing board.

A Project Tunes Up

A group of young Belleville musicians these days are tuning up a program to bring music appreciation to masses of youngsters and entertainment to senior citizens. It's Fun 'N' Music II, now playing concerts for young-city students, Thursday, at Prince of Wales' public school musicians Gord Spafford (left) and Clyde Dawson, both 17, gave a musical close-up to Dranl Raghubir, 8 and Steven Lake, 7.

Bucs Post 5-0 Shutout

Reuss Diet Starves Cards

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jerry Reuss nibbled at the plate with his pitches, giving St. Louis Cardinals little to hit Thursday night.

The starvation diet left the Redbirds with a bad taste in their mouths and just a bunch of eggs on the scoreboard.

"I've been able to control my pitches and just the ball pretty much where I want to," the Pittsburgh Pirates pitcher said, explaining his 5-0 shutout over the Cardinals and other recent successes.

Reuss' six-hitter, his second shutout over the Cardinals this season and his eighth victory, is a bitter pill for St. Louis to swallow. Only a couple of nights ago, Cardinals pitcher Lynn McGlothen branded the Pirate staff as "mediocre."

But Jim Rooker, with a six-hitter on Wednesday night, and Reuss answered that charge.

Coupled with the New York Mets', 3-2 loss to Montreal Expos in 13 innings, the Pirates improved their lead in the National League East to 3½ games.

JERRY REUSS

Elsewhere in the NL, Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Diego Padres 6-1 and Philadelphia Phillies defeated Chicago Cubs 6-3 in 14 innings.

Bill Robinson, Willie Stargell and Dave Parker hit home runs for all the Pirates scoring. Rob inson struck a sole homer in the first inning to give the Pirates a 1-0 lead. Then he singled in the fourth before Stargell unloaded one into the right field seats.

In the sixth, John Curtis had Stargell pinned out, but the ball got away from catcher Ted Simmons and Willie reached safe at first. One out later, Parker lined a Curtis fastball over the right field wall.

Gary Carter's infield single drove home the winning run in the 12th inning to lead Montreal's victory over New York. Pitcher Dale Murray began the four pitches from Rick Baldwin and was sacrificed to second. After an intentional walk to Mike Jorgensen, Tony Scott singled to load the bases and set the stage for Carter's dramatic hit.

Ron Cey and Steve Yeager singled home runs to break a scoreless tie in the sixth inning as Los Angeles beat San Diego. Philadelphia's Jay Johnstone and Ollie Brown hit run-scoring doubles in the 14th inning, leading a three-run rally against Chicago.

Prepare for Kansas City

Bench Strength Pays for A's

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball's world champion Oakland A's have shown their bench strength is capable of holding off any title aspirations of challengers in the American League West.

"We've won four of five and put Minnesota back a ways," said Oakland manager Al Dark. "Now we've got to prepare for Kansas City."

The makeshift A's capitalized on strong pitching by Jim Ho bert, Glenn Abbott and Paul Lindblad and some daring base running for a 5-2 victory over Minnesota Twins in 10 innings Thursday.

Oakland won the final four games of the five-game set, which left the Twins eight games behind.

"We've got to be thankful we could win this game resting some of our guys," said Dark, who rested Bert Campaneris, Gene Tenace and Billy Williams and used Reggie Jackson as the designated hitter. However, Ted Martinez, Ray Fosse and Angel Mangual filled in capably.

In other American League games Thursday night, New York Yankees beat Detroit Tigers 9-2 and Texas Rangers defeated Chicago White Sox 5-4.

Minnesota's only runs were scored in the second inning when outfielders Bill Sedeno and Claudell Washington allowed Steve Brye's lazy fly ball to left-centre field fall between them as they stared at each other. John Briggs then walked and both baserunners scored on Glenn Borgmann's double.

A throwing error by losing pitcher Jim Hughes in the first inning set up Oakland's first two runs and his wild pitch in the 10th let in the winning run.

Joe Rudi hit his ninth home run of the year to cap Oakland's three-run 10th inning.

Pitcher Jim (Catfish) Hunter retired the first 17 batters and finished with an eight-hitter while Roy White drove in five runs with a home run and triple to lead New York over Detroit.

The Tigers' first baserunner got Thursday was Tom Veryzer, who homered with two out in the sixth.

Foote – Blasts Two Homers

Carter's Hit Game-Winner

MONTREAL (CP) — Gary Carter's game-winning single ended a 12-inning contest Thursday night as Montreal Expos edged New York Mets 3-2 in a National League baseball game.

"This game was going on much too long," Carter said after slapping his fourth hit of the night and third in extra innings.

Both teams flirted with victory throughout the extra innings, but Carter ended it when his base-loaded single handcuffed Mets shortstop Mike Phillips, who managed to keep the ball in the infield but could not get the putout at the plate.

Reliever Dale Murray scored the winning run. He had drawn a lead-off walk and advanced on Pepe Mangual's sacrifice Mike Jorgensen then drew an intentional walk before Tony Scott singled to load the bases for Carter.

The 21-year-old Carter walked once to reach base five times in seven plate appearances. He has reached base 19 times in the last five games and is 12-for-18 with nine runs driven home in that span.

Expos battled back from a 2-0 deficit as Mets starter Jerry Koosman tired for the third time for his 10th major-league victory. He lost the two previous attempts but escaped this decision this time as Rick Baldwin, the third New York pitcher, took the loss.

Dave Kingman walloped his ninth home run of the season to give the Mets a 1-0 lead in the fifth, and Koosman skipped home on Felix Millan's single to stake himself to a 2-0 lead in the sixth.

Barry Foote lofted his second home run into the left-field bleachers in the sixth to start the Expos on the road back. Pete Mackanin walked with two out in the eighth, raced to second on a wild pitch by Koosman and scored on Larry Parrish's double to tie the score.

Now, Coggins Gone

MONTREAL (CP) — The New York Yankees of the American League for an undisclosed amount after 13 games with the Expos since being acquired from Baltimore Orioles with pitchers Dave McNally and Bill Singleton and pitcher Mike Torrez.

McNally, who had four straight 20-win seasons with Baltimore from 1968-71, retired June 5, saying his 3-6 record with Montreal amounted to "stealing money." Kirkpatrick is toiling with Memphis Blues, the Expos' affiliate in the Class AAA International League.

Coggins had a .270 batting average this year after spending the early season in hospital in California receiving treatment for a thyroid disorder. He was assigned to Memphis last Sunday when the Expos made room on their roster for Nate Colbert, bought from Detroit Tigers.

"I try not to think about it," said Expos manager Gene Mauch of the deal that saw his club give up Singleton, a .292 hitter in 1973, and Torrez, a 15-game winner last year, for nothing.

RICH COGGINS

Lynn's Efforts In Record Book

DETROIT (AP) — Fred Lynn spent Thursday getting sunweil-deserved rest as men with pencils scribbled his name in record books.

The Boston Red Sox rookie couldn't sleep Wednesday, so he got up early and took an extra two hours' batting practice.

The result? Lynn slammed three home runs, a triple, a single and drove in 10 runs, matching the best offensive performance of any player in six years.

His RBI total in the Red Sox 15-1 slaughter of Detroit Tigers came within one of the American League record of 11 set by Tony Lazzeri of New York Yankees in 1936. Jim Bottomley of St. Louis Cardinals has the major league record of 12, set in 1924.

Lynn's 14 total bases set a record for a rookie and tied the American League record held by Ty Cobb, Lou Gehrig and Rocky Colavito.

His 10 RBI tied the most ever by a rookie, matching a 1935 performance by Boston's Mel Ott.

Oakland A's Reggie Jackson was the last person to drive in 10 runs in a game, in 1968. Only four persons had more than 14 total bases—Gil Hodge of the old Brooklyn Dodgers in 1950, Ed Delahanty of Philadelphia Phillies in 1896 and Robert Lowe of Boston in 1894 with 17 each, and Milwaukee Braves' Joe Adcock in 1954 with a record 18.

Lynn, 22, tried to take it all in his stride as he chatted with newsmen who thronged about his locker after the game.

"You can't get too excited about a night like this. You can't live on the memories of the game you just played, but rather you have to look ahead to the next one."

The five-for-six performance brought Lynn's batting average to .352 while he took over the American League RBI lead with 50 and has 14 home runs—one behind such sluggers as Willie Horton, Bobby Bonds, Jeff Burroughs and Reggie Jackson.

Macs Will Have Work Cut Out

Saturday the Belleville Macs will take on the Toronto Dukes in an Ontario Fastball League doubleheader at Alemite Park.

The Macs will have to do their best, because they'll be playing the first place team in the league standings. The Dukes are 5-3 and lead St. Catharines by one and a half games. Sunday night the Macs will be at Kitchener in a single game at the Alemite.

The Macs are in last place in the East Division, but the consensus is that the East is a stronger division than the West and that the Dukes can be taken for at least a game in the scheduled twin-bill.

One thing the Dukes have: that the Macs can't lay claim to is a pair of star pitchers who have been among the best for a number of years. One is Metro Gyrick and many say he rates with Ray Judd, Pete Landers and Ed Feigner.

The other is Dick Haines.

Bill, the Macs can beat him, they almost did on their last trip to London, but the game was rained out in the fourth.

What is necessary is a quick lead on Gyrick, with the hit and run strategy being put into play to shake his defence up. Also, a good game must come from either Bob Fisher of Ted Walte, both of whom are capable of silencing Lou-Cats bombardment.

The two Belleville checkers have proven they can pitch with the best in the league and if they put it together on the weekend, anything can happen.

Another necessity for the Macs on the weekend will be hitting, something that's been on and off this season. If Frank Robinson comes out of his slump and Larry Mayby continues to hit the long ball, Sayrick and company may find themselves in trouble.

Bob Ethier will probably start against Gyrick, while Ted Walte or Scott Reid will take the second start, against Dick Haines.

Kinsmen Shaded

NAPANEE (Special) — The Belleville Kinsmen Ontario Sports lost a squeaker to Napanee Thursday 6-5.

Pitching for Napanee was Mike Finn, giving up 10 hits and a walk while striking out six batters.

Angelo Lentini and Allan Thompson took the loss for Belleville, combining to give up 12 hits, two walks and strikeout six opposing batsmen.

For Belleville, Peter Wood and Bill Lewis hit safely twice and Stephen Smith doubled.

Napanee's Keith Bartlett singled three times to lead the winning attack.

The Belleville squad plays again Saturday June 21, in the North York Sportsman Tournament. The first game will be played at Stanley Park, with the locals taking on Willowdale at 10 a.m. the tourney will feature 16 Squirt teams from across Ontario.

Springbrook In Tight Fit

In Stirling and District Softball League play in Stirling on Thursday night Springbrook beat R.D. Cooke by a very close margin, at 2-1.

Reid Meaton and Glenn Acorn shared the win for Springbrook, giving up seven hits combined, with two walks and three strikeouts.

David Jeffs took the loss for R. D. Cooke, giving up 16 hits and walking two, He struck no batters out.

Jerry Reid, Dale Acorn and Art Reid all collected three hits for Springbrook, while Dave Fenwick, Ed Mullins and Ron Mumby came through with two hits.

For the losers, Glen Detor managed two hits, while the rest of the markers were spread out among the other R. D. Cooke batters.

In the second game of the Stirling doubleheader, Holloway A and P took out Franklin Coach, with both teams coming out of the game with a point, the final score being 6-6.

Dave Marvin gave up 11 hits and a walk while striking out four Holloway A and P's batters and pitching a single.

For Franklin Coach Ralph Dafoe singled twice along with Paul Gerstenz, David Langstaff and Dan Bovey.

Mobil Plastics On the Way Up

Mobil Plastics moved up a notch in Belleville and District Ladies Softball last night by defeating Ellis Construction 5-4 in a closely played game.

Jeanne Garvin pitched steadily to gain the win for Mobil, giving up four runs on 12 hits, two walks and three strikeouts.

Sandra Clause was the loser for Ellis Construction, giving up five runs on eight hits, two walks and striking out four Mobil batters.

It was a team effort in the hitting department for Mobil, with Lynn Wood leading the way for a pair of hits. Garvin helped her own cause with a hit, while Ginny Irwin, Audrey Castillo, Beverly McKeown, Carmel McCrindle and Jan Donnan all contributed to the winning cause with single hits.

For the losers, Verna Hill smacked a couple of triples, while her hits came from Anna Van Beek, Sally Barbastock, Eve Hill and Sandra Clause.

Bardon Romps to QFL Win

Ellis Juniors Upset Printers

The race continues to tighten for playoff spots in the Quinte Football League, as the Ellis Juniors downed Howard and Robert 7-4 and Bardon Supplies trounced Bronkes Real Estate 21-0.

The Juniors wasted no time taking a lead in the first game, leading off with three runs in the first inning. That was sufficient to knock starter Ron Hill out of the box and bring in H and R pitcher Bob Richardson.

Howard and Robert tied it up in the bottom of the first and looked on their way to moving in front.

The Printers took the lead in the sixth, scoring on a hit by Dave Shelton and some heads-up ball by Dwight Radwell.

A Howard and Robert win was not to be, though, as the Juniors scored four times in the top of the seventh on singles from Ken Vos, Eric Powell, Steve Campbell and Bob Campbell.

John Sprackett held the H and R squad in the bottom of the seventh to chalk up the win. He pitched all seven innings, allowing eight hits, no walks and striking out five Printers.

For Howard and Robert, Ron Hill started, but only went to bat once in the game. Bob Richardson came in to pitch six innings, giving up four hits and walking only one, he set down nine Hornbeck batters on third strikes.

For Bronkes, Gary Kleinsteuber, Wayne Casselman and Doug McFee pitched but were unable to halt the Bardon assault.

Harold Foster had a perfect night at the plate, with a triple and three singles to drive in three Bardon runs, while Earl Foster came up with three singles for three RBI.

Ron Weese contributed two singles for three RBI, while Ken Denslile singled twice.

The only Horsbeck hit came from Casselman with a single in the game.

The win moves Bardon into first place, ahead in the Quinte Football League, putting Revelle Motors and Howard and Robert in a tie for second. Angers holds the second position, but the Ellis Juniors could still make it interesting.

Posties Tighten Grip On First in the West

In Belleville Industrial Softball League play Thursday evening Post Office tightened their lead on first place in the West by defeating UIC 11-3.

Norm Lockhart threw the win for the Posties, giving up his two runs on seven hits, four walks and he struck out four UIC batters.

UIC pitching duties were shared by Rick Sullivan and Joe Scanlon, neither of whom could stymie the Post Office attack.

For the Post Office, Lockhart helped himself with a couple of doubles, while Tom Wood singled three times, Ron Marriot and Bob Whelpka both had two singles.

Clai Halladay and Ron Jury both hit twice for UIC but they weren't enough to give Lockhart trouble.

The Post Office now has 16 points to UIC's 12, and has played the same amount of games. The win Thursday stymied the UIC drive to tie the Posties for first.

All-star Selections Popularity Contests

NEW YORK (AP) — It may be time to take baseball's all-star voting privileges away from the fans.

Based on early balloting, the fans seem to be conducting a popularity contest. Any similiarities between the best players and those with the most votes in the all-star races seem coincidental.

Of the top 10 hitters in the National League going into Tuesday's action, only two—Cincinnati Reds second baseman Joe Morgan and New York Mets outfielder Del Unser—are leading in the all-star balloting.

The same is true in the American League. Only Minnesota Twins second baseman Rod Carew and catcher Thurman Munson of New York Yankees are among the top 10 hitters leading their positions in the all-star ballots.

Behind Munson, the No. 2 and 3 candidates for American League catcher are Ray Fosse of Oakland A's and Carlton Fisk of Boston Red Sox.

Munson has earned his 271,263 votes with his batting average that is fourth best in the American League. Fosse, however, has attracted 172,221 votes although he has only one hit in 26 times at bat this season. Another 118,508 fans have voted for Fisk, even though the Boston catcher hasn't played all year because of a spring training injury.

GEARS SIGN PERRY

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Saginaw Gears of the International Hockey League announced Thursday that Don Perry has been signed as goaltender for two years. Perry, 43, helped the Gears to the league final the last two seasons.

Former Leaf to Coach

Toros Get a Tough Competitor in Baun

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association literally reached into the farm system Thursday for their new coach.

Bobby Baun, a defenceman in the National Hockey League for 17 seasons before retiring to his 250-acre farm two years ago, was chosen to succeed Bob Leduc who filed fit after Billy Harris was released mid-way in the 1974-75 season. He was given a one-year contract for an undisclosed sum.

Baun, 39-year old native of Lasalgas, Sask., played all but three of his NHL seasons with Toronto Maple Leafs—one with Detroit Red Wings.

Noting he has been accused of having a maple leaf stamped on his rear, he said it always was a presence he had been out with the bells for the last two years and doesn't have any trouble transferring allegiance to the Toros.

Baun, who farms sorrelback geldings, said he coached experience apart from a minor hockey game in the Northwest Territories some years ago.

But he says he is counting on his remarkable competitive spirit to rub off on a team that never seemed to live up to its promise.

"As a player, he was a winner," said A. J. (Buck)-Houle, the Toros general manager. He tasted championships from the Memorial Cup as a junior (with Toronto Marlboros) and from the Stanley Cup as a professional on four different occasions.

"We look forward to him coaching our team the way he played—as a great competitor."

An example of that way was the 1964 Stanley Cup final against Detroit Red Wings. Carried from the ice with a broken bone in his leg in the third period of the sixth game, he came back to score the winning goal for Toronto in overtime.

"I stayed away from hockey for two years for a number of reasons," Baun said. "For one thing, I wanted to expand my farm operations. But very importantly, I really wanted to get a better perspective of the hockey business . . .

"I look forward to some interesting year ahead, whereby the WHA, NHL and European hockey nations will ultimately compete for a true world championship.

"I look forward, as coach of the Toros, to doing my share to help regain the proud traditions of North American professional hockey."

Players on Auction Block

TORONTO (CP) — The saga of the Los Angeles Sharks, Michigan Stags, Baltimore Blades and Chicago Cougars finally came to an end Thursday as a World Hockey Association special draft.

The Sharks, Stags and Blades were actually one team which changed its name twice as it stumbled through the WHA's first three seasons before winding up in Baltimore where it finally died.

Also dead are the Cougars who, like the Blades, ran out of money in the course another season.

The special draft Thursday saw the 14 other clubs pick up all but three or four of the Baltimore and Chicago players, thus relieving the league of the need to pay their salaries.

The league also staged an in-its-league draft while Toronto Toros took the opportunity to announce they have signed Bob Baun, former all-star National Hockey League defenceman, to a one-year coaching contract.

Denver Spurs, the franchise to the league, had earlier picked 14 players from the Chicago roster but it could only take 10 names from the two dead clubs in Thursday's draft.

However, several players, such as Gil Perreault, an under contract to NHL clubs and were only assigned to the Baltimore and Chicago projected rosters, have signed for Soviet Russian players, such as Boris Mikhailov.

Perreault, a star with the NHL Buffalo Sabres, was picked by Cleveland from the Baltimore list. Mikhailov was picked from the Baltimore list by Edmonton Oilers.

Denver had first choice in the special draft and took defenceman Barry Legge from Baltimore. Denver dropped this name in exchange for Gilles Villemure, Denver goalie Dave Dryden, was picked by Cleveland from the Baltimore list. Villemure, who makes their league debut this year along with Denver, chose NHL player Jim Pappin from the Baltimore list. Pappin recently moved from Chicago Black Hawks to California Seals in an NHL trade.

After three rounds of draft-picking, Baltimore officials were put up for auction with the league agreeing to pay the difference between the auction and contract figures.

Only 24 players were selected in the intra-league draft. Each club was allowed to select 12 skaters and two goaltenders. Toronto was the only club not drafted from the two dead franchises were existing.

Among players drafted were defenceman Larry Hillman, by Winnipeg Jets from Cleveland Crusaders, and Gerry Meehan, by Minnesota Fighting Saints from Phoenix Roadrunners.

The Toros contracted specialist Bob Baun would take over as head coach from Bobby Leduc who replaced Billy Harris midway through last season.

PAT STAPLETON

Another Chicago co-owner, goalie Dave Dryden, was picked by Edmonton Oilers who had announced they had signed him.

Cincinnati Stingers, which makes their league debut this year along with Denver, chose NHL player Jim Pappin from the Baltimore list. Pappin recently moved from Chicago Black Hawks to California Seals in an NHL trade.

Following players were also drafted or selected by assignment: Gary Veneruzzo, Cincinnati from Baltimore; Craig Reichmuth, Minnesota from Baltimore; Tom Serviss, Quebec from Baltimore; John Misenk, Calgary from Baltimore; Gerry Meehan, Minnesota from Baltimore; Bill Eve, Edmonton from Baltimore; Reg Thomas, Indianapolis from Baltimore; Gary Bredin, Denver from Baltimore; Jim Watson, Quebec from Chicago; Rod Falon, Toronto from Chicago; Ron Promethski, Quebec from Baltimore; Bill Reed, Calgary from Baltimore; Steve Richardson, New England from Baltimore; Jim Leblanc, Denver from Baltimore.

Jets Get Hillman; Odrowski to the Saints

TORONTO (CP) — Ten players, including veteran defencemen Larry Hillman and Gerry Odrowski, changed hands in The World Hockey Association's intra-league draft Thursday.

Winnipeg Jets grabbed Hillman from the Cleveland Crusaders and Minnesota Fighting Saints drafted Odrowski from Phoenix Roadrunners.

Hillman is the complete intraleague draft:

Denver Spurs: Bob Baun, Toronto Toros; to Indianapolis Racers, Bill Prowse from Houston Aeros; Cleveland Crusaders, Terry Ball from Minnesota; Calgary Cowboys, Francois Lacombe from Quebec; Los Northiques; Winnipeg Jets, Larry Hillman from Cleveland; Minnesota, Gerry Odrowski from Phoenix; San Diego Mariners, Mike McMahon from Minnesota, Indianapolis, Al Karlander from New England Whalers; Cleveland, Doug Brindley from Indianapolis; Calgary, Mike Laughlon, from San Diego.

Toronto general manager Buck Houle, said laughlon tried to draft one of his players (Mike Amodeo) and fill with another of his players (Steve Caddie) but was ruled out of order by Ben Hatskin, the WHA's chairman of the board and chief executive officer.

Houle protested, only mildly, before agreeing to the ruling.

Better Than Old Days Says Veteran Palmer

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — The United States open golf championship is off to a soggy, steaming and surprising start with a couple of newcomers and veteran Arnold Palmer among the leaders.

"It's as good as the good old days, even better," said Palmer, a rejuvenated veteran of 45 seeking last glories. "I felt I had charge of the golf course. I would like three more days just like it."

Palmer was the only one of golf's stars among the sub-par leaders after a 68 in Thursday's opening round over Medinah's rain-soaked 7,022 yards. Par is 71.

He was tied with three others, two local—behind Tom Watson and Pat Fitzsimons who led for the lead with 67s, and one stroke back of a 10-year two veteran, Jim Wiechers, who never has won a pro tournament.

Tied with Palmer at 68 were Peter Oosterhuis of Britain, Grier Jones and Lanny Wadkins, the only other long hitter shooter was Ben Crenshaw, 23, who was alone at 70.

Jack Nicklaus, a 6-to-1 favorite to make this his 10th major tournament victory, shot a 72.

Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller had 69 apiece in the 95-degree heat and high humidity.

Weiskopf did his damder, up when he received an unfavorable ruling on the eighth hole and seemed to become more incensed as his round progressed. After the round, he announced he was leaving but a couple of friends and his wife, Jeanie, intercepted him and cooled him down. Weiskopf agreed to continue—under personal supervision.

South Africa's Gary Player, a former winner and one of the favorites here, shot a 75. Defending champion Hale Irwin shot a 74 and was equally unhappy, but he found another source for discontent.

"The long waits, they were terrible," he said. "It took us 5½ hours to play the round."

Bob Fasanella of Windsor, Ont. the only Canadian entered, shot a 76.

Fitzsimons and Watson got out early and were sitting in the clubhouse with their 67s and a cause I was so pumped up."

Fitzsimons, who was the only one to make it through the round last year and made a big run at the Masters in April.

"I should have shot a 64 or 65," he said. "I over-clubbed on about five holes. That was because I was so pumped up."

CFL All-star Game New Formula Needed—Reed

MONTREAL (CP) — George Reed, president of the Canadian Football League Players Association, and league committee chairman Jake Gaudaur agreed Thursday that it's time to rethink the formula for league's annual all-star game.

Reed and Gaudaur both expressed disappointment in this year's event, scheduled here next Tuesday between a team of league all-stars and defending Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes, was cancelled because of lack of fan support.

Since 1970, the event has been staged by the players' association in the home of the defending Grey Cup champions. Proceeds go toward the players' pension fund.

But Reed, top rusher in pre-baseball football with Saskatchewan Roughriders, and Gaudaur, both spoke of further changes pitting all-stars from the Eastern Football Conference against counterpart from the Western Conference. Reed suggested the site be switched annually between Eastern and Western CFL cities crowd more rivalry.

The league had operated its annual all-star game on an East-West basis until 1968 when the games were cancelled. Under a 1969 agreement between the owners and players, the association began to run the games in 1970.

The association made a profit of more than $25,000 in its first venture in Ottawa, broke even in Montreal in 1971, were successful in 1972 and 1973 in Calgary and Hamilton but Ottawa last season, lost $24,000 or more.

George Dixon, a former running back with the Alouettes and one of the organizers of 1973 game, estimated if the game had taken place, another loss of $10,000 would have occurred.

Reed said only "a little over 1,000 tickets" had been sold by Wednesday and there was a "very great chance" it would be cancelled.

It was suggested that the all-star games of the future would have more success if they were staged in mid-season, but both Reed and Gaudaur said this would be difficult.

Reed said he felt the pre-season formal remained the best. He said it should be played after the exhibitions and before the start of the regular schedule as a "kickoff to the season."

He said he had already made a written request to CFL owners and general managers that the game should be changed to an East-West contest.

"This is the first year I have made a written request, but you can't do everything overnight. I intend to follow through with it until our agreement expires in 1976.

But the situation could change if the general managers and owners agree to it. There is a written agreement that forced us to come to Montreal."

GREENWOOD STAYS

PITTSBURGH (AP) — L. C. Greenwood, veteran defensive end, announced he is jumping to the World Football League from his signed a multi-year pact with the National Football League champion Pittsburgh Steelers. He became a free agent after playing out the option year of his contract in 1974.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Miss America Pageant has decided to abandon its Miss Congeniality award.

A pageant official said Wednesday that some past contestants have griped that the award, which carries a $1,000 scholarship, was "a fake."

"They feel that some of the contestants are putting on an act in order to gain votes for the award (and) that otherwise they wouldn't be as friendly," said Mildred Brick.

They also felt they were too busy during the pageant to become well enough acquainted "to vote any one girl Miss Congeniality," she said.

The 50 state queens voted for the award.

To your Good Health

Narcolepsy Not Laughing Matter

By G. C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had narcolepsy for years. Most people I know tend to laugh when you tell them about being so sleepy. I would like your opinion on this illness. Do you think it is caused by a tumor on the brain?—R.H.

You know better than your friends that it is not a laughing matter at all.

Narcolepsy is a rather rare disease. It exhibits itself as an irresistible urge to sleep at unpredictable times and in quite inedictable places. Its cause is not known, and it can be very, very erwise healthy individuals.

A word here on the mechanics of sleep itself may be helpful to an understanding of narcolepsy. In normal sleep, the "deep" phase is accompanied by rapid eye movements, referred to as REM. These are thought to be associated with dreaming. In one study, it was found that sleepers awakened shortly after REM tended to have recall of their dreams.

Ordinarily, in falling to sleep, we go through a preliminary phase called NREM (for non-rapid eye movement) before slipping into the REM phase. The narcoleptic, when he succumbs to the urge to sleep, goes directly into the deep REM phase.

He must struggle to resist these urges and attacks can occur while driving a car, for example, and this must always be guarded against.

Amphetamine can be used effectively for the narcoleptic. These drugs act by stimulating the central nervous system.

There is no physiological relationship between narcolepsy and epilepsy, which is a convulsive disorder. Epilepsy may, however, follow a head injury or a brain infection, as can epilepsy, but there are no other similarities.

A brain tumor is unlikely as a cause. Symptoms of this are headache and other neurologic disturbances. These symptoms would appear gradually, and would be rather obvious.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I use a heavy salt mouthwash. I have extremely high blood pressure, and my doctor has taken me off salt. Can my system absorb salt from the mouthwash?—C.H.R.

If held in the mouth some salt can be absorbed in the tissues, but this would be minimal. However, you might accidentally swallow some, and rinsing can mix with the saliva and enter your system that way.

All in all, it's suggest you switch to a milder wash if you feel you need to use it at all. A harsh salt mouthwash is liable to cause irritation—if not now, later on.

MORE ON RAW MILK—In a recent letter to a reader who was concerned about a family drinking raw milk, a warning against milk from cattle not checked for brucellosis or tuberculosis. In this connection it should be noted that a "negative" animal is one with breeding credentials but "certified" refers to a proper checking of the milk supply by the authorities.

It is important that anyone drinking raw milk have the milk and the animal tested continually to safeguard against contamination. Milk brucellosis or a variety of other organisms can be carried in the milk unless a drink. To be assured of this, the best protective is to get your milk supply through pasteurized channels or to be serpulous in the pasteurization of your own supply.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M.T.: Your recurrent cystitis is sometimes referred to as "honeymoon cystitis." It cannot be blamed on either you or your husband, but it is commonly among new brides. Since the cystitis disorder is often the colon bacillus, the woman, particularly the new bride, must pay attention to proper toilet hygiene. This is particularly true of the use of toilet tissue. The bacillus can be transferred easily to the genital area and result in infection. In the urinary tract. Some measures will avoid this possibility, and it is worthwhile to be well ashamed about.

Win at Bridge

The Unlucky Expert looked carefully at the opening lead. That eight of hearts appeared to be top of nothing. Our expert decided to tine with dummy's ace of hearts and followed with his queen.

Then he led a trump to his ace, a second trump back to the 10 and led the jack of hearts. East was pretty sure that his king of hearts would take the dust but he saw no reason to hold it back. So he rose with it.

He was surprised and delighted when it won the trick and even more delighted when the queen of clubs lead produced three club tricks for the defence.

"I sure tried," said the unlucky expert, "but nothing succeeds for me."

He had made a valiant effort in the play, but if he had bid a trifle better he would have won the rubber. All he had to do would have been to raise his partner to three notrump. With 10 honors in all suits, eight aspect trick and no singlton, he had reason to insist on his suit.

Hamlet Goes Rock

Kitchener—Waterloo Record (KWR) (CP) — Shakespeare's Hamlet probably has been the most coveted of stage roles by actors of all ages throughout the last 374 years.

It's no surprise, therefore, that 23-year-old Brent Carver would like the role "when I'm older, in six or seven years."

Meanwhile, the Cranbrook, B.C., native who has been acting professionally since he was a B.A. in Brandy bound as Hamlet in the Charlottetown Festival production of Kenborg: 1982.

But this Hamlet, Brent explained in an interview, is "really not Shakespeare's Hamlet."

"It's a man named Hamlet who has certain characteristics in common with the Shakespearean Hamlet, but not Shakespeare's Hamlet."

Kenborg: The brainchild of Canadian Cliff Jones, is basically a rock opera using Shakespeare's plot.

It had its debut on radio two years ago, was adapted for the home stage of the Charlottetown Festival last year and revised for a pre-season tour this year. Next October, after its second summer season at Charlottetown, it will cross canada the first Canadian musical ever to open on Broadway.

Brent Carver took over the role last year.

No stranger to rock operas, having performed in both Tommy and Jesus Christ Superstar, Brent's first reaction to the idea of putting Hamlet to music was "Great. My second one was: 'Hamlet.' To music!' And now it's back to 'terrific.'"

He said that when he first learned he was going to do the part, "I studied Shakespeare's Hamlet and tried to relate the two (characters) a lot."

"But I suddenly realized that Cliff Jones' Hamlet was Cliff Jones' Hamlet. It's more of an interpretation of Shakespeare's Hamlet as opposed to adapting his Hamlet to music."

The musical format carries with it a certain amount of rote, "in that in a big role like this you must pace yourself according to where things fall in the course of the performance," Brent said.

"The danger of doing it for a long time is becoming too technical. You have to try to make the form fresh every night."

With this part, I don't think I would want to go on for a long time because I want to be able to preserve the voice for when I'm 30, and it's just too long. You're singing the whole time you're on, and in a single performance you're ranging with almost three octaves."

The character of Hamlet sings twenty-five songs. It is what is generally a commercial sort-rock song, but the show is entirely contemporary everything from blues and boogie to satirical country and western.

For Brent, who has mined a few non-singing performances in his repertoire, it's tough. "a personal goal has been to do a role that would be recognized as a great show and that would lead to my go on Broadway or Cranbrook or Vancouver or anywhere."

"The idea of being the name Broadway attached to it is kind of romantic to think about and it's an indication of success, but it does not represent the epitome of my career."

Boys Rewarded

TORONTO (CP) — Four boys who played detective Wednesday and found $3,720 taken in a trust company robbery each received a $100 reward Thursday.

The boys found the loot in a outcast in a ravine behind a police station in the borough of North York after police had searched the area in vain.

Most Powerful Tug

Claimed by its Scottish shipbuilders to be the most powerful in the world, the ocean salvage tug 'SA Wulrach' Wollemode enters the sea for the first time at Leith in Scotland. The vessel's speed in service will be more than 20 knots and power is provided by two 16-cylinder four-stroke single acting marine diesel engines. The tug was built for the South African Marine Corporation and launched recently. (CP Photo)

Near-normal temperature readings are expected to cover most of the country for the last two weeks of June according to the long-range weather outlook of the United States weather bureau. The maritimes and portions of Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia, can expect below-normal temperatures. Precipitation is expected to be above-normal for most of the country, with below-normal for portions of the Prairies. This is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. (CP Newsmap)

Throughout a 49-year career ranging from the pinnacle of power in Kasmir to more than a decade as prisoner of the Indians, Sheik Mohammed Abdullah has been determined to get what he wants for his impoverished homeland.

The 69-year-old Lion of Kashmir has once more become an active political force, as he recently settled his 23-year-old dispute with New Delhi and regained power in his Himalayan country.

Sheik Abdullah had been deposed as ruler of Kashmir in 1953 and jailed for more than 12 years on charges of plotting secession. He has now dropped his long-standing demand for a plebiscite to determine the future of 86,000 square-mile Kashmir, three fifths of which is controlled by India and the rest by Pakistan.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi agreed to the sheiks return to power following his acceptance of the state's accession to India as final and irrevocable.

Callaghan's New Novel Seems Autobiographical

By JACK TRACY
The Canadian Press

Novelist Morley Callaghan told an interviewer in January that his new book would create a lot of attention. He described it then as "a simple novel that you can't put down."

Now, A Fine and Private Place, the 72-year-old novelist's 19th book since 1923, is a slim volume that shows he was right on both counts.

The attention will be created among the literati, the relatively few in Canada who know Callaghan and his works. They will easily detect something autobiographical in it.

Fr[illegible] obviously Toronto, although the name is never mentioned in the novel. But familiar scenes—to a Toronto[illegible]—abound.

There is the roof bar in the Park Plaza Hotel where hero Al Delaney first appears—and where Callaghan's publishers have planned a book launching party. There there is Lisa Tolen, one of any number of attractive Toronto girls doing research for TV producers. Lisa and Al become [illegible]

The protagonist is Eugene Shore, an aging writer who has much prestige abroad but is little known in his hometown. He is interested in the criminal mind, and he lives in a part of town that the careful reader may figure is the prosperous Rosedale district where Callaghan has his home.

Callaghan's chief audience has been in the United States and many of his friends have found it difficult to understand why he has continued to live in Toronto. Eugene Shore, educated in the law like his creator, also continues to live in his hometown and Callaghan has him describe it as "like a monastery for me."

The novelist weaves the lives of the lovers together with that of Shore. Al, who has finished graduate school with a dissertation on writer Norman Mailer and plans to turn it into a book, learns about Shore by accident and eventually determines to make his book about Shore.

Lisa becomes disturbed by Al's obsession with Shore and the way it has affected their relationship, although it was Lisa who brought the writer and the critic together.

Her eventual action—the denouement of a subplot in the book—brings an end to the story that will surprise those who think the novel autobiographical.

A Fine and Private Place, Morley Callaghan; $8.95; 213 pages; Macmillan.

No Place Found To Die in Peace

TORONTO (CP) — There is no place for a human being to die in pain in the Ontario cities, The Globe and Mail quotes a 67-year-old woman dying of cancer as saying in a copyright story.

Phyllis Dorfman says in an interview with medical reporter Michael Hobbes that the only places for cancer patients like herself are "asylums."

The newspaper says the choices facing persons like Mrs. Dorfman, whose cancer was discovered less than a year ago, are hospitals for the chronically ill, rarely with private rooms and full of elder patients,

Wives Want Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — Rural women urged the federal government Thursday to change income tax laws so they can be paid for their labor on farms.

Ellen McLean, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, said delegates from the 38,000-member organization passed a resolution aimed at selling both partners in a farm marriage.

The change would allow unincorporated farmers and small businessmen to pay wives for their labor and deduct the cost from the husbands' annual income tax as well as provide a basis for payments from the Canada Pension Plan.

Angry Motorist

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuter) — A motorist became so angry stuck in a traffic jam behind a police van that he opened the van door and let two prisoners escape, a court here was told.

Siegried Emlin was given a three-month suspended jail term for assisting prisoners to escape. He pleaded innocent.

Pen Is Detective

MANLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — A scientist at the Stanford Research Institute says he has designed a counterfeit pen to foil forgers.

The pen is wired to a computer that carefully measures the pressure, angles and speed of the pen point as a signature is written and compares the result to a memory bank where the characteristics of the correct signature are stored.

If an incorrect signature is written, a sign reading "FORGERY" lights up a video screen.

Arcane Art

TORONTO (CP) — Admissibility of lie-detector tests is an "arcane art" practised by "traditionally trained in a very, very narrow way," says the former president of the United States Society of Psychological Research, Dr. John Levy told a royal commission into police practices Thursday that the commercially-used lie detector is unreliable. The key was a personal interview in which the polygrapher seeks to convince the subject of the test's infallibility and thus "starts with a lie."

Dies in Australia

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — A 35-year-old Waterloo man died recently while on a camping trip in a remote region in the central part of Australia, according to word received here. Donald William Carter, a former recreation student at the University of Waterloo, died of a heat physiation when a gas heater in his tent developed a leak. His wife, Vicki, was reported recovering in hospital. They had been travelling around the world since September.

Increase Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will make another $19 million available for relief and rehabilitation aid in Southeast Asia, for a total of almost $17 million already pledged since April.

The Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) said in a statement that the money will be spent for work in South Vietnam, Laos and, if requested, Cambodia.

Plan Steel Plant

QUEBEC (CP) — The Bourassa government has taken the final step toward a billion-dollar integrated steel industry with a $450-million venture in northeastern Quebec, it was announced Thursday.

Premier Bourassa told a news conference the government has authorized Sidbec, a Crown steel corporation, to build a $350-million pelletizing plant and secondary concentrator at Port Cartier, 200 miles northeast of Quebec City.

In addition, the Fire Lake iron ore deposit 200 miles north of Port Cartier, owned by Quebec Cartier Mining Co. Ltd., will be developed at a cost of $115 million, including modifications to an existing primary concentrator.

Output Rises

OTTAWA (CP) — The economy performed slightly better in April than in March in producing for domestic markets, but the information didn't make Finance Minister John Turner's job any easier as he prepares to introduce his budget on Monday.

Statistics Canada reported Thursday that the volume of production for domestic markets was up two-tenths of one per cent in April from March. However, the volume of production as measured by the real domestic product index was still down 1.6 per cent in April from the output in the same month of 1974.

The agency attributed the April increases to the resumption of activity in the service industries following strikes by West Coast longshoremen and federal government employees.

Bennett Requests Tariff Increases

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — Ontario Industry Minister Claude Bennett urged the federal government Thursday to postpone Canada's secondary industry by increasing tariffs on imported products.

He told the annual meeting of the Electronics Industries Association of Canada (EIAC) that Canada should have a "greater sensitivity to imports" in new legislation underway in Ottawa on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

He also called for re-examination of the federal Preferential Tariff, established last year, which removed tariffs from 128 products — including electronic products — imported from a number of developing nations.

The association, representing about 110 companies, has pressed the federal government on both points, saying it needs temporary protection from imports to develop its capability to compete.

Mr. Bennett also urged revision of current federal anti-dumping laws to allow quicker action on allegations of dumping-selling imported goods at prices lower than in the home market.

Buchanan Prepared To Change Guidelines

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan told the Commons Thursday he is prepared to change controversial guides issued by his department to Indian bands.

The guides, which reported Saskatchewan Indians, deal with local government on reserves and how Indians must account for government funds.

The minister will meet Saskatchewan chiefs David Ahenakew and Solomon Sanderson next Monday to discuss the protests.

Inco Union Shares Right To Check Perils

TORONTO (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America (USWA) has gained the right to jointly monitor with management health and safety hazards at 40 different working sites of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Inco) in Sudbury and Port Colborne, Ont., a union report revealed Thursday.

The union, which represents more than 15,000 Inco employees in the two centres, revealed the major breakthrough in presenting a progress report on bargaining taking place with management. The work ver' contract expir' Sept. 1.

The safety and health clause also calls for the development of preventive measures.

However, the clause does not give the union the right to cease work on an issue where it has raised it found. Disputes would be referred to the provincial government union inspectors.

Quality Ignored

HAMILTON (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Thursday that in his drive for growth, the Progressive Conservative government has often forgotten about the improved quality of life that was supposed to result.

"Their highways and expressways have been allowed to destroy irreplaceable farmland and immeasurable communities," he told delegates at the annual meeting of the Hamilton East Liberal Association.

Youth Convicted

OTTAWA (CP) — Wesley Dean Wallis, 18, of Ottawa was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment Thursday and Mr. Justice Mayer Lerner ordered him to be alone in the detention centre for the Criminally Insane.

Wallis pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter and two charges of assault causing bodily harm Wednesday.

The charges were laid in the Oct. 17 shooting death of 17 year old Cindy McGroy and the wounding of her mother and 14 year old brother, Ronald.

Hydro Seeks Men

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro is running advertisements in newspapers in the United States, Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) told the Legislature Thursday. Questioning Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell on the campaign, he said Hydro was calling for shift foremen, supervisors, construction and medical engineers to go to the Bruce generating site. "Why do they need our own people?" Dr. Shulman asked. Mr. Timbrell said he would take the question as notice and get an answer from Hydro.

Plan Censorship

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is moving to on operators of movie houses specializing in 8-millimetre sex films.

Sidney Handleman, minister of consumer and commercial relations, said a bill in the legislature Thursday which will extend censorship regulations include the 8-millimetre films.

The regulations now apply only to 16-or 35-millimetre films.

Seaway Prospects

OTTAWA (CP) — Year-round operation of the St. Lawrence Seaway is a strong possibility within five years, Transport Minister Timbrell, president of the Seaway Authority, Association (DMA) said Thursday.

He said he has seen a gradual swing back to multi-purpose ocean vessels which can carry cargo all the way up the seaway system to foreign ports. There has been a decline in ocean-going traffic on the seaway in recent years.

Admiral Timbrell, a former Canadian naval officer, said year-round operation of the seaway would "remove one of the biggest barriers to the seaway."

Liquor Bargains

TORONTO (CP) — The Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO) said Thursday that more than 100 delisted brands of wine and spirits will go on sale Monday, June 23 at reduced prices in stores in which each product was originally carried. The total value of the products listed the reduction was nearly $750,000.

Ban Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Two Ontario health industry advisory boards say brown asbestos should be banned in the province because United States studies indicate it can cause a rare type of cancer.

Dr. Joseph Cowie, head of the Industrial chest diseases branch, said two U.S. studies have established a connection between exposure to brown asbestos and mesothelioma, a rare chest cancer,

Bellevilians are home again after two-week holiday that included mass visit to twin city of Lahr, West Germany, which may have triggered reciprocal visit for next year, says Mayor Robin Jeffrey. Housing Key Field

Tax Incentives For Firms Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — More housing money—perhaps up to $400 million—and more industry tax incentives are considered likely in Monday's federal budget to speed the recent recovery in housing construction.

Deemed possible are an increase in the first-time home-buyer's grant from the present $500 and an extension of a tax measure designed to stimulate rental construction.

Most of the additional housing money is expected to go to the subsidized home ownership and rental program under direct federal control. Government officials say chances are slim that there will be much money for federal-provincial shared-cost programs.

The government wants to reach its minimum target of 218,000 housing starts this year, a goal which even Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson says will be difficult to achieve.

About 220,000 housing units were begun last year, well below the 1973 record of more than 268,000.

About 30,000 units were started in urban areas in the first five months this year, down from the 31,000 at the same time last year and the lowest level since 1967.

But the pace of construction started picking up in April and continued in May. A similar recovery has been noted in the United States.

The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, a Paris-based group, said in its annual review of the Canadian economy released Thursday that the housing industry is pulling out of its year-long failspin.

Finance Minister John Turner indicated in March that housing would be a major item in his budget and Mr. Danson and Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) officials have been saying that a step-up in housing activity can relieve unemployment.

Opposition housing critics have also been pressing the government. Paul MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) said this week there are 200,000 fewer people employed now than at the same time last year in housing construction and related industries like appliance manufacturing.

Mr. Turner is faced with solving two conflicting problems in his budget—high unemployment and rapidly rising prices. The conventional economic wisdom is that efforts to curb one of those problems usually makes the other worse.

Some CMHC officials say the greatest stimulus to housing construction would be a budget that treates an atmosphere of confidence in the economy, clamping down on prices and reducing unemployment. But they agree that is a tall order.

Mr. Danson has indicated he feels the best way to get quick housing starts is through the assisted home ownership plan and limited dividend rental programs which are under direct federal authority.

One opposition source said he has reliable information that another $600 million will be provided in the budget for housing, mainly for these subsidized home ownership and rental programs.

Our Corn on Cob Lures Lahr Folk

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter. . .

There's an ulterior motive for citizens of Lahr wanting to visit their twin city of Belleville in September 1976.

It's a good time of year for corn-on-the-cob.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey revealed the reason as she talked of a reciprocal visit to the friendship flight of Bellevilians that arrived home from Lahr Friday.

The citizens of Lahr frequently mentioned corn-on-the-cob during the visit.

There's another North American dish they're also interested in, said the mayor: "Hamburgers — with ketchup."

Amin Rejects Queen's Plea For Briton

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Rejecting an appeal for clemency from Queen Elizabeth, Ugandan President Idi Amin says a British lecturer must die for treason unless Foreign Secretary James Callaghan makes a personal visit to Uganda by Monday.

Amin postponed the execution of Denis Hills, 41, from Saturday until Monday to give Callaghan time to make the trip.

In London, the British Foreign Office said today Callaghan will not fly to Uganda to negotiate with Amin "under duress," but a spokesman said Callaghan remained ready "to act at a moment's notice." He did not elaborate.

A Uganda court found Hills guilty of treason for writing in a manuscript for a book about Uganda that Amin had acted like a "village tyrant."

$60 Million Ransom Paid in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Two top businessmen were free today after their multi-national company paid $60 million—believed to be a world record ransom—to the left-wing Montoneros guerrillas who kidnapped them nine months ago.

Juan Born, 40, and Jorge Born, 41, were seized on Sept. 19 in a Buenos Aires suburb. They are the sons of the founder and chairman of Bunge et Born, the world's third-biggest grains dealer.

During the kidnapping their chauffeur and a company executive were killed.

Well-informed news media sources said the ransom was announced Friday at a clandestine news conference by Mario Firmenich, leader of the Montoneros and one of the country's most-wanted men.

The sources said Jorge Born was released Friday but Juan Born was freed several days ago after the company met demands by the Montoneros, distributed food and clothing worth more than $1 million to the poor in several Argentine cities, and placed advertisements in local and foreign newspapers.

The foreign advertisements accused the government of exploiting the Argentine people and giving financial support to the 1955 coup that overthrew the late Gen. Juan Peron.

The Montoneros went underground last September to fight the government of Gen. Peron's widow, Maria Estela, after previously battling to secure his return to power.

Judgment Reserved On Native Claims

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A five-member appeal court has reserved judgment on whether a caveat must be filed on 400,000 square miles of land in the Northwest Territories.

The appeal case ended Friday after 3½ days, and the judges are expected to announce their decision in mid-July.

The caveat was filed by 16 Indian band leaders two years ago. After lengthy court proceedings, Mr. Justice William G. Morrow ruled the caveat was valid, but ordered the registrar to stay from filing pending further court action.

The registrar was also told to make note of any land transactions affecting the land under the caveat.

During the appeal, Crown Attorney Angus Macdonald asked that the stay be lifted if the court ruled in favor of the Indian leaders.

He said a lifting of the caveat would allow the Crown to undertake further proceedings.

In that case, an option would be given to the Indians three months notice to prove their interest in the land.

Tough Surtaxes Suggested

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should impose a tough surtax system in Monday's budget to control pay raises, says Andre Raynauld, chairman of the advisory Economic Council of Canada.

The surtax system would tax away all of any pay or profit increase in excess of an authorized annual increment.

Mr. Raynauld suggests 'anything more than an annual rate of increase of 10 or 12 per cent should be taken away by the government in surtax.'

Mr. Raynauld, whose council advises the government on long-term economic policy, made his proposals in advance of the government's tax and spending budget on an interview with Standard Broadcast News.

Quebec Bandits Still at Large

BAIE COMEAU, Que. (CP) — Quebec provincial police said Friday they have recovered more than $1 million stolen from a bank near the Manic 3 hydroelectric dam site near here.

The spokesman said investigators believe the bandits escaped by helicopter or plane but were still searching the wooded area where the money was found with a helicopter and tracking dogs.

Nurses Split

HALIFAX (CP) — A nurses' strike in Nova Scotia split down the middle Friday when about half the 1,000 of the job since June 12 went back to work — the remainder refusing a government contract offer and staying out. Focus of the strike shifted to Cape Breton where about 450 nurses remained off the job at eight hospitals despite a return to work by more than 500 at three hospitals in Halifax and one near Dartmouth.

Rail Strike Avoided

LONDON (Reuters) — A crippling national railway strike was called off Friday night after union leaders accepted a 30 per cent pay increase from the state run British Railways Board.

Sky-rocketing Jobless Costs To Have Big Budget Impact

OTTAWA (CP) — The sky-rocketing cost of this year's unemployment insurance program is likely to have a major impact on the kind of budget Finance Minister John Turner brings forth Monday.

After four months this year, the benefit payout totalled $1.349 billion, about 40 per cent of the entire cost last year. Higher unemployment, a larger number of persons covered by the plan and increased average benefit payments have made the cost of benefits soar.

In the same period of 1974, jobless benefits totalling $900 million were paid out.

The dismal outlook for unemployment this year has made the government search for funds that will cover the expected deficit, public service sources say.

Some government officials say they are feeling pressure to skimp on their departmental budgets so money can be channelled into the unemployment insurance program.

Recently, Manpower Minister Robert Andras told a Common committee that unemployment insurance benefits would cost $2.4 billion if the unemployment rate averaged 6.5 per cent and $3.7 billion at an average rate of eight per cent.

Recent jobless rates have been hovering around the seven per cent mark. The rate was 7.3 per cent in March and April. That would mean an estimated cost between $2.3 and $3.4 billion if that level continued.

But the forecasts provided recently by Canadian business, labor and economic experts predict an unemployment rate of 7.5 to eight per cent later this year.

If the cost is about $3.5 billion for the year, that would bring an increase in benefit payouts of over 50 per cent. About 10 per cent of the entire federal spending for the fiscal year would be destined for unemployment insurance payouts.

The government share of that amount would be about $2.2 billion, with employee-employer contributions covering about $1.3 billion.

Mr. Andras has said that the country is facing the worst jobless rate in 14 years. But he defends the unemployment insurance program, noting that the money often goes to areas of the country which need it most.

For example, Newfoundland with the country's highest jobless rate—receives $5 in benefits for every $1 paid in premiums.

Average benefit rates in April were $82.85 weekly, up from $74.78 weekly a year earlier. By the end of the year, unemployment insurance officials expect to see benefit payouts averaging between $85 and $86.

One senior government official said the unemployment insurance deficit faced by the government has been a major factor in recent moves by some departments to restrain spending. In some instances, notably Statistics Canada, this has led to a halt in hiring and promotions.

"There isn't a freeze," he said, "strictly a cash flow problem because of the deficit. All departments are being asked to save up."

The budget may have to provide for increased taxes if the government is to find enough to cover the benefit payout.

The problem also may renew pressures on Mr. Andras to be more generous to the Unemployment Insurance Act. He has said they will be introduced in this Parliament.

Oil Price Decision To Be Given Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal decision on oil and natural gas prices, widely expected to increase gasoline and homeheating fuel prices by eight cents a gallon, will be unveiled in the Commons Monday, Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday.

Mr. Trudeau declined to be pinned down on the time of the announcement. He did say it can not be released before all stock markets close, the last being Vancouver at 5 p.m. EDT.

There also is a possibility that the prices statement will be made with the new budget, scheduled to be brought down at 8 p.m. Monday, the prime minister said.

Government and industry officials say they anticipate an increase of $2 on the current domestic wellhead price of $6.50 a barrel.

The federal government has been attempting since April to negotiate a new oil price with the provinces, replacing a year-old agreement that runs out June 30.

The effort to reach a compromise failed when both Ontario and Nova Scotia said they would not accept any increase until the problems of inflation and unemployment are beaten.

In the letter, Mike Filey, special programs manager of the CNE, said a special committee had been established to coordinate the event and that appropriate festivities will be planned.

Tourist Booth Opens for Season

Weary and lost travellers can once again find aid and direction in Belleville.

The Chamber of Commerce's tourist information booth has opened for the summer season.

Located on North Front Street directly in front of the Quinte Mall, the booth will be open daily from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. until early September.

Two local women, college students on vacation, Mary Hawkins and Jackie Emerson, will staff the booth, providing directions and travel information for people travelling through the Quinte area and local residents seeking directions and trip data for summer vacations.

Seniors Had the Floor

A senior citizens hobby and crafts show, with exhibitions and demonstrations, was held at the Quinte Mall Friday.

The display, almost covering the entire centre of the mall, was one of the final events in the celebration of Senior Citizens Week.

Senior citizens from all over the Quinte area exhibited and sold drawings, paintings, knitting projects, leather works, and other handicrafts.

A demonstration of quilting by members of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club attracted many onlookers.

Almost 200 people were involved, either producing the objects displayed or in setting up and running the show.

Activities continued today, with all senior citizens being invited to the Highland Parade.

Free tickets were available for the Highland Tattoo, on Sunday with a bus leaving for the tattoo from the recreation centre at 12.15 p.m.

Programming Takes Break

Educational programming by the Ontario Educational Communications Authority (OECA) will cease on Cablevue Channel 5 on Sunday, June 22nd.

Ray G. Taylor, General Manager of Cablevue (Quinte) Limited, stated that he was informed of this decision by Don Robertson, Manager, Regional Relations, OECA.

Cablevue had been programming OECA material for five hours a night, seven days a week, since last fall, under the re-vamped schedule of the provincial authority.

"Mr. Robertson informed us by mail recently of the plans for the summer shutdown", Mr. Taylor said, "and that OECA Programming would resume on September 8th.

"Our information is that it will again be a five hour per night schedule, seven days a week", he concluded.

Buster's Ballad Rings at Station

The sound of Buster's Ballad ringing sweetly in his ears, John 'Buster' Cunningham, 34 years a railroad worker and train engineer, climber down from the engine cab for the last time Friday evening.

Almost 125 family, friends and co-workers met the 6.40 passenger train from Toronto, at the Belleville station, cheering and singing along with a 10-piece kazoo band.

The band, comprised of members of the Quinte Travel Trailer Club, played Buster's Ballad, a song written especially for the occasion, to the tune of Wabash Cannonball.

His son, Corporal Ray Cunningham of the RCMP, flew in from British Columbia, so he would be able to kiss mother Eunice when she greeted the train.

Buster and his wife Eunice are avid travellers, touring with the trailer club at other, and they plan to just camp around, buy a boat and do some fishing and take a western swing to visit their son out west.

It's doubtful whether Casey Jones ever had it as good.

Motorcyclists Hit by Car

Two people spent Friday night in hospital when the motorcycle they were on collided with an automobile on North Front Street.

The accident occurred about 8.30 p.m. when a car driven by Odette Favoie attempted to make a left turn and enter southbound traffic onto Front Street from the Fry Ford Auto Sales driveway.

Cycle operator Jerry Jensen, 16, RR 1 Belleville, and passenger Steven Turner, 18, 56 W. Moira St. were taken to hospital by ambulance.

Jensen, admitted to hospital with possible head injuries and Turner, admitted with multiple contusions were both listed in satisfactory condition.

Police say Favoie was charged with failing to yield to traffic from a private drive.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today:

Friday, June 20, 4:03 p.m. — firemen were called to Green Auto Wreckers, 196 Haig Rd., when an automobile being cut by torch caught fire.

7:29 p.m. — A grass fire near the CN line at the rear of Quinte Secondary School was extinguished.

8:48 p.m. — Firemen responded to a report of smoke coming from Canada Bread building, 164 Moira E. It was a false alarm.

9:01 p.m. — Firemen were called to aid a boat in trouble on the bay near lower Herchimer Avenue, but no assistance was needed on arrival.

Ovens Taken From Plant

Police today said two microwave ovens valued at $2,400 have been stolen from the cafeteria of the Procter and Gamble plant in northeast Belleville.

The plant, which is currently hiring employees, isn't due to start production until the fall.

Stepping Down

John "Buster" Cunningham steps down from the engine cab after 34 years of service with Canadian National Railways. More than 125 friends and relatives were at the station to meet the train when it pulled in with "Buster" at the throttle for the last time.

Maturity Best Bet For Bosses

In a society that puts much emphasis on youth there still is no substitute in business administration for maturity, a special group of Belleville-based federal civil servants were told Friday.

The group — eight men and one woman — are members of the Unemployment Insurance Commission Ontario regional administration centre.

In total, their careers to date represent more than 200 years of public service. Each now has served at least 25 in government employ and the UIC marked the occasion with special presentations.

Dave Brown, recently-appointed director-general at the Belleville regional centre, noted that modern society seems to put much emphasis on youth.

"But you people with experience are the backbone of the organization across the country," he told the group.

Mr. Brown presented plaques and pins to Orma Johnston, Bert Graves, Herb Colpier, Rex Shannon, John MacDonald, Keith Boulston, Earle Geldart and Harold Robinson.

Thrée Collide At Corner

Damage was estimated at $1,000 in a three-vehicle mishap at Highway 2 and Wallbridge-Loyalist Road Friday night.

Police say a car driven by William Bentley MacLeod, RR 3 Kingston, was in collision with an automobile driven by John Haig, of Carrying Place. A van driven by Peter Kenning, Corbyville hit the MacLeod vehicle.

A passenger in the Haig car, Cynthia Hall, 13, of Trenton, sustained bruises.

Provincial police said Mr. MacLeod had been charged with impaired driving, careless driving and having a .08 blood-alcohol reading.

Public Service

Orma Johnston was lone woman among eight civil servants who received recognition for lengthy public service Friday from Dave Brown, director-general of Unemployment Insurance Commission's Ontario regional offices in Belleville. He handed out plaques and pins for 25 years on the job.

Early Action Can Cure 'Sleeper Syndrome'

Early diagnosis is vital to the successful treatment of sleeper syndrome, a relatively new problem in Ontario's feedlots.

"This infectious disease, called thromboembolic meningoencephalitis of TEME by scientists, can kill feeder cattle within 24 hours after the first symptoms appear," says Dr. A. A. Van Dreumel, veterinary pathologist with the Guelph veterinary services branch of the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food. "It usually strikes shortly after cattle arrive at the feedlot, and sometimes develops so quickly that infected animals die before anyone notices they are sick."

They symptoms of sleeper syndrome resemble those of polio and shipping fever. High fever is the first sign, and shortly after the infected animal begins to look sleepy and severely depressed. It walks with its head down, is reluctant to move, dull in appearance, and off its feed. Later, it becomes stiff and walks with a swaying, unsteady gait. Complete paralysis soon develops and just before death the animal lapses into a coma.

A veterinarian should be called immediately if any of these symptoms are noticed, since injections of common antibiotics usually stop the disease if they are given while the animal is still on its feet. However, once the animal is down, it is likely to die even if treated. "Take dead animals that may have had sleeper syndrome to a veterinarian or a veterinary services laboratory for a post-mortem to confirm the diagnosis," advises Dr. van Dreumel. "This may be important in preventing the disease from spreading in your herd. The death rate in most infected herds is usually not more than five per cent, because some cattle are resistant to the disease, but it can be as high as 30 per cent."

Park Opening Good Sign

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

I've concluded that mosquitoes grow big in Cramahe Township.

Even today, I'm still suffering the after-effects of their handiwork. Red is still the color of bumps on my army and neck. At it's bigger's week. And I'm now allergic to their sting. Confession: they're big only there.

Now, mainly, a city-bred fellow, like myself wouldn't be caught near anywhere mosquitoes abound. But it was a special occasion last week — the official opening of the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority's Frank E. Goodrich Wildlife Sanctuary and Conservation Area.

Seriously, mosquitoes aside, the occasion is worthy of mention. It's a mile-stone for the authority. The Goodrich sanctuary is only the second conservation area opened to the public in the seven-year history of the authority.

It's a choice location, sitting on Cold Creek, forested densely, in a township that hasn't been heavily settled by ex-urbanites. The township is still primarily rural, and the sanctuary sits in its centre.

Authority chairman Bill Carter painted a picture of its use: a father and son, with legs draped over a creek bank under a shade tree, sitting and fishing.

Idyllic? Picturesque? Unrealistically pastoral? All these, of course, and isn't it about time that this need for just such places was recognized more extensively and that recognition, acted upon.

Officials in the Frankford conservation authority have done that. They have pledged to maintain the sanctuary in its present wooded state, free ad infinitum, one hopes, from the encroachment of subdivisions and the planner's preference estate-type rural housing developments.

But there was other news. The authority will be embarking on a series of openings of its 10 other properties in the near future. What mixture there will be in outright sanctuaries and in more active recreational areas is still unknown.

The mixture is unimportant, at present. What is more significant is that the authority is taking steps now to make available areas in an ex-yet relatively sparsely populated watershed that will grow on people's minds as areas with "Hands Off" but "Walk on the Grass" signs. In future, when this part of Ontario's great, areas will already be set aside as sanctuaries of wildlife and greenery.

Now if the authority could somehow get the frogs and snakes to eat more mosquitoes so the pesky things wouldn't eat me, I'd be forever grateful and praise their pioneering work to the skies.

Picton Bureau

Give Tourists Reason to Visit

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — This town, where the last picture show was screened about two years ago, needs new recreational activities to promote tourism and after "something to do" for the local resident.

Although many members of Picton's younger set do enjoy the summer activities program organized each year, others in the over 30 group may find themselves occasionally at loose ends.

For those not agile enough to anticipate an evening of roller skating at the County Centre other activities should be organized.

Generally, the town offers a wide program of sports and recreation for teens and preteens and provides activities for senior citizens but it ignores the resident who is faltering between the baby bonus and the old age pension cheque.

Recreation for persons in the in-between years could be stressed more.

Since Sunday in Picton is a quiet day with no movies at night and no band concerts in the park, perhaps the town could consider a flea market.

The Crystal Palace at Picton fairgrounds would provide an ideal site for vendors of Prince Edward craft shops and antique dealers to set up weekend booths.

Persons of all ages would enjoy browsing among their wares and tourists could discover the best of the county's crafts, under one roof instead of spending hours in search of country boutiques located on side roads.

Band music is being introduced in several Prince Edward schools and maybe the day will come when students become capable of playing a concert in the park.

Street dances were popular in Picton several years ago but today they are seldom held. As a special Saturday night feature these dances could be introduced again.

Prince Edward County has an active square dance club that could assist in planning an evening of "swing your partner" and round dancing.

The Prince Edward Horse and Pony Club and the Sophiasburgh Riding Club both hold regular shows during the summer. These events should be more widely publicized to draw crowds. Organizers could distribute signs and posters in public places well in advance of the show dates.

Western game and chariot racing featured at all of these shows held appeal for persons in all age groups.

The town of Picton is bounded by Picton Harbor but there are no canoes or row boats rented in the vicinity of Prince Edward Yacht Club.

Many town residents and summer visitors might enjoy a leisurely afternoon "on the bay" if a boat rental service were available here.

It's time recreation organizers considered activities for the roller rink rejects who may have 30 years before they become eligible for senior citizen bus trips.

American Avocet Is Rare Visitor

At Presqu'ile Provincial Park, near Brighton, the American avocet, a striking black and white shore bird has been sighted for what is believed to be the first time in eastern Ontario.

It was first sighted on the Lake Ontario shore May 29 at dusk by John Beaty and John White, two Presqu'ile Park naturalists. Since then, birders have spotted it several times along the beach.

Jim Dick of the ornithology department of the Royal Ontario Museum says that this sighting is particularly unusual. There have been sightings in western Ontario in recently as 1965 but they were in the fall, whereas this is the first to appear in the spring.

There have been no recorded sightings in eastern Ontario although avocets have been spotted as far east as New Brunswick.

Normally avocet territory ranges from Washington state to Idaho and in the south from California to southern Texas. They migrate as far south as Guatemala for the winter. Avocets commonly use the Pacific flyway or the Central flyway east of the Rockies.

There are any number of possibilities to explain this avocet's arrival here. This bird may have been blown and buffeted off course by a storm.

On migrating north from Guatemala, it may have crossed the Gulf of Mexico to arrive in the southeastern U.S.A. "If it probably wintered there, then migrated up to Ontario via the Atlantic or Mississippi flyways. Both of these cross Presqu'ile Provincial Park.

The avocet is 15 inches tall with a distinctive bill. Slender and long, the bill is upturned to facilitate the bird's feeding habits. The avocet sweeps the shallows of marshes or lakes in search of small aquatic animals.

Its neck markings have deepened from a pinkish tan to a cinnamon color. This is a natural mechanism to attract a partner during the current mating season.

It is impossible to predict at this point whether the bird will spend the summer at Presqu'ile or continue on its way, say naturalists.

Several rare or unusual birds have been spotted before at Presqu'ile Park. The first recorded cattle egret to nest in Canada was located there. The white, the cream colored and the golden plover have all put in an appearance although this is far from their native habitat.

grade 6 students of Queen Mary School were told recently during a water safety demonstration sponsored by LaSalle Rescue and Diving. A spokesman for the company said about 70 young people will have a chance to attend the demonstrations designed to increased water safety awareness before the vacation period begins.

Trade with U.S. Remains Vital but P.M. Plugs Links with Europe and Third World

By JOHN D. HAEBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The 1971 federal election campaign, a near-disaster for Prime Minister Trudeau, turned thelens resulted in a document his emergin strategy on our trade diversification.

From it has come the prime minister's so-called "Third Option," a bold effort not only to word but in action to shift some of that massive export which we sell to the United States each year.

The effort to diversify Canadian foreign trade is not new and has been the concern of previous prime ministers, more so a John Diefenbaker than a Lester B. Pearson who did not like to ruffle his many high-level Washington associates.

Mr. Trudeau's Third Option is supposed to work like this: Canada has three options where her very large trade with the U.S. is concerned.

These are (1) maintain the status quo with her as trade (3) make Canada even more reliant on the U.S. market, politically impossible, given the country's growing economic nationalism and (3) diversify trade away from the U.S. into the European Common Market, Japan and selected Third World trading partners.

And now you know what the prime minister means by his more recent expression 'a contractual link" with the European Common Market.

It is his plan to bind the European industrial nations as members of the EEC more formally to Canadian imports.

This has been the burden of his two recent visits to Europe and of the important and successful trade missions of his industry Trade and Commerce Minister to Latin America and the Middle East.

In fact, Ottawa's foreign trade policy during most of the Trudeau years has been to diversify away from the American market.

The policy was first outlined in the 1970 Foreign Policy Review, a series of six paperbacks analyzing Canada's relations with the world and which included studies of our future role in Latin America, Europe and Asia, but curiously avoiding the U.S.

Mr. Trudeau will have trouble making a major dent in the traditionally dominant Canada-U.S. trading pattern. His predecessors who made the same effort had great difficulties but for different reasons.

Remember former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker's 15 per cent trade diversion program from the fall of 1957? It was a disastrous promise and it failed.

Mr. Diefenbaker was not entirely to blame since the proposal was made him by the British at a conference of British and Canadian Tory cabinet ministers at Mont Tremblant in the fall of 1957.

Inexperience in government, he had been elected only three months earlier, was desperate to please a fellow Conservative government in Britain, were undoubtedly to blame.

In any case, neither then nor now, could a Canadian political leader make that kind of commitment. Given the complex and ever-evolving nature of our trade with the U.S., how could any promises be proposed across the board?

Trudeau's approach is much more managerial and much more realistic. And in some important areas, chiefly selected Third World countries, it is bearing success.

In Latin America we have concentrated on Brazil, Cuba, Mexico and Venezuela as major national markets. In that region Canadian exports have jumped from $431 million in 1970 to $1.4 billion last year.

Transport Remains 'A Mess' As Minister Unveils Plans

By VINCENT JEGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Give Transport Minister Jean Marchand credit for concedding that Canada's transportation policy is a mess.

Add more credit for suggesting a kind of bullet train to link Windsor, Ont., and Quebec City.

That makes existing reading the new transportation policy that Mr. Marchand unveiled the other day.

But Canadians have heard other exciting proposals repeatedly in the past. Somehow, they usually fail to materialize—not enough money, a conflict of union jurisdiction, a roadbed that's too old to take new rolling stock, or whatever.

And transportation policy remains a mess.

Mr. Marchand's new policy, and the background paper that accompanied it, almost leave the impression that railways have no significant part to play in transporting people except in the highly-density area between Windsor and Quebec.

Such a notion is unrealistic in a country that was originally tied together by the railway builders.

Yet the travelling public is left with the distinct feeling that Mr. Marchand and especially the people who run our railways wish that passengers would just go away—the sooner the better.

Mr. Marchand has proposed that buses be substituted on much of the surviving passenger-train network.

Buses have a useful place in Canada's transportation system—but they also have, all too often, passenger service little regard for cleanliness, no provision for non-smoking, and depressing terminals.

In short, they are not a ready acceptable alternative to railways on any large scale today.

Improvements that would make buses acceptable to a greater number of travellers are indeed possible. The excellent European system shows what can be done.

But such improvements are costly, and the money for them is unlikely to come from the earnings of the 18 scheduled carriers that account for more than nine-tenths of Canada's bus traffic.

It's doubtful that the transport minister could pry the needed funds out of his cabinet colleagues, the finance minister and the Treasury Board president, when federal spending is already rising at an unprecedented rate.

One obvious and sensible way for the government to find the money would be to cancel the project to build a second international airport near Toronto at a cost that will probably reach $2-billion.

The decision to build Pickering airport had little to do with transportation policy and needs, but a great deal to do with politics (Montreal wanted the second international airport, so Toronto must have one) and with making work for federal and provincial bureaucrats.

The billions that Ottawa and Queen's Park have earmarked for that boondoggle could do much more good if applied to the rehabilitation (and, perhaps, further subsidization) of surface transportation systems.

The technology exists, as European countries have demonstrated.

And the Canadian travelling public would welcome and use a system that, for a change, was geared to their needs. . .

Trenton's Canada Day

What does Trenton have that Belleville doesn't?

Special celebrations for Canada Day, that's what.

One never ceases to be amazed at how such groups as merchants, service clubs, and the Chamber of Commerce in a community can join forces to generate enthusiasm and public support for an event which, here in Belleville, just passes as another long weekend.

The July 1 holiday is not merely another opportunity to head for the cottage. It commemorates this nation's birthday.

In recognition of that fact, Trenton organizers have arranged performances by one of Canada's foremost rock music groups, The Stampeders, and country performer Gordie Tapp as part of their celebrations.

In addition, town merchants will give discounts and prizes to patrons sporting Canada Day pins that may be purchased for a dollar.

Trenton traditionally plans attractions for their summer holiday weekends. There is the Peterborough-to-Trenton canoe race and the Murray Canal swim, to name but two.

Such events are not only tourist drawing cards but equally appealing to those citizens who, for one reason or another, can't leave the district for the long weekends.

And Belleville?

This weekend the Kinsmen Club are putting their big Highland Tattoo which may, incidentally, run into some competition from CFB Trenton's annual Armed Forces Day.

Aside from the Kinsmen effort, and the weekly Zwick's Island concerts sponsored by The Intelligencer, we can't think of any co-ordinated plans by Belleville groups for weekend entertainment for local residents.

If things are this dead now, what will our Centennial year be like?

School's Half-Century

Shades of Hollywood, and the world of showbiz — at Massassaga. And with an educational flavor.

The kids loved it, the parents too, over there in that exquisite rural setting, under the June sun and with a warm breeze tugging at the period outfits worn by the youngsters.

It was the Massassaga's public school's 50th anniversary and singer Wally Williamson, a veteran of opera and summer stock with many of Hollywood's finest, was there.

Home in his native Amelisburg, the husky and personable young man with the robust voice, said the young people he now travels around the county schools "promoting music."

Music, Williamson believes, has got "lost in the shuffle." While the point might be argued, given the activities of school bands and the proliferation of music festivals, there is no doubt his background and his personality give a whole new dimension to the music curriculum of schools across the bay.

Williamson's background includes appearances with stars such as Andy Williams, Arlene Dahl, and Mickey Dooley with whom he travelled for seven years and who visited this area a few years ago. Today though, he says Hollywood is a place which has "lost its gossamer."

As for the youngsters, they were not to be outdone. With a young veteran of public speaking competition, Barbara Wilson, introducing the events, the kindergarten and grades 1 to 8 presented a program of music and comedy and mime that found a warm response from the large crowd of parents present.

Indeed, principal Mrs. Hester Giles might not have been speaking all that much tongue-in-cheek, asking if any trustees were present, and recalling occasions when the concert had to go indoors because of rain, and wondering aloud if the school might have an auditorium. But then no auditorium could match Massassaga's outdoor setting on a fine day. At the end, the grades 3, 4, and 5 choir sang "How Great Thou Art" to put the seal on a signal occasion.

One father present spoke of Massassaga as a "vital" school, and he was right. Every school has its own character, but at this school across the bay, curriculum, discipline, a sympathetic and efficient staff, and a unique environment come together in an unusually gratifying milieu.

Canada Planning Trade with Hanoi

CANADA COMMERCE

Armand Blum, Commercial Counsellor at the Canadian Embassy in Peking plans to travel to Hanoi for the first time, for exploratory discussions on trade possibilities, he tells Blum plans to make the visit in the latter half of June.

Canada recognized the Democratic Republic of Viet Nam in early 1973 but little commercial contact took place until the Canadian Ambassador presented his credentials to Hanoi officials in January this year. Preliminary trade discussions at that time confirmed that the DRVN was recovering from the effects of war and was rebuilding vigorously.

Foreign trade is still modest but certain Canadian products may be of interest now or in the future. These include newsprint, mining equipment, wheat and corn seed, hides, synthetic fibres, non-ferrous metals, ships, aircraft and various types of production machinery. Strawberries were quite plentiful on the market today selling at 15 cents per box, although a few cost 18 and 20 cents. Buyers are now getting more berries in a box than they did last year for the new regulation box is a full quart in volume. The old size was four-fifths of a quart. Prospects are not favorable for a full crop of berries as the dry weather for several weeks has had a bad effect on the growth of the berries.

The mind of the demonstrator, or at least the minds of a good many of them, are indeed hard to fathom. In so many cases where groups demonstrate allegedly in support of a cause, or against some action being taken, it is difficult to understand the objective of all the fuss. This is not to say that a good orderly demonstration cannot make a point, on occasion, but this kind of public display seems to be far outnumbered by the kind that leaves a bystander wondering.

Government Control of Multinational Companies Viewed as a Disturbing Trend

By KEVIN DOYLE

WASHINGTON (CP) — A recent vote in a committee of the House of Representatives may herald strengthening of a disturbing trend in efforts by western governments to control the actions of huge multinational companies.

The vote, on a proposed amendment to an energy bill which the committee was preparing, called for all automobiles imported into the United States to be manufactured in significant part within the U.S.

The amendment, aimed specifically at car imports from Western Europe and Scandinavia, was defeated 27 to 8.

By itself, the measure had little significance. But a number of trade experts here see it as indicative of a trend in the U.S. and other home countries of the leading multinationals towards recognizing economic advantages from operation of the firms in foreign countries. The result, they say, might be a severe straining in relations among governments involved.

state relations."

Bergsten and other observers believe public pressure is growing on governments of home countries of the multinationals to take reprisals against states which nationalize subsidiaries of the firms, or force them to shift production away from their national issues.

"A classic example of how such a shift takes place was curred in Brazil in the 1950s," Bergsten said. "The Brazilian government of the time suddenly insisted that American cars being sold in that country be partially produced there.

"This meant a consequent loss of jobs in automobiles in the United States which might have been acceptable then but is no longer so."

Bergsten and others believe the long-term operation of the screening of foreign takeover bids by the Foreign Investment Review Agency in Canada and similar bodies elsewhere may gradually make this trend more evident.

"If each time the Canadian government permits a takeover bid says that it will create more jobs, investment and exports in Canada, it will be going to say, 'Well, that probably means jobs and exports are being diverted, in effect, by the United States and we're not going to vote for that this year' " Bergsten said.

The spread of multinationals has been at least partially due to the existence of high tariffs which make it essential to locate within foreign markets to compete effectively rather than export to them.

"There is little evidence of tariffs disappearing" said Bergsten, "and it may be that before long the multinationals themselves, which have always resisted international control, may become the strongest proponents of some form of worldwide agreement on the mode of operations simply to prevent their foreign activities being curtailed by pressures at home."

Strikes and How Money Goes

Fasting Being Revived As Support for Hungry

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Fasting, an ancient Judeo-Christian practice to foster temperance and self-discipline, is being widely revived but with a special contemporary emphasis—to bend concern for the world's hungry.

The custom has spread among all sorts of groups, from Roman Catholics to Southern Baptists, from denominational cafeterias to family dining tables. Lutherans, Methodists and Mormons to college campuses and among some members of the United States Congress.

"Asceticism for our time," the president of New York's Union Theological Seminary, Rev. Roger Shinn, called the trend.

United Methodist Bishop Francis E. Kearns of Canton, Ohio, in urging members in his area to skip at least one meal a week, said it helps to make them aware of "the agony and suffering of great multitudes of people."

But the fasting also had a practical aim—those participating were asked to contribute to money saving church programs of food aid. These programs, in turn, were encouraging relatives in volunteer work.

"The Christian response must reflect the challenge of Jesus—'I was hungry and you gave me food,'" said Catholic Bishops John Roach and Raymond Lucker of St. Paul-Minneapolis, in calling for two days of fasting weekly, with money saved going to relief abroad.

"Fasting, which means eating only one full meal for a day, is the general pattern of the new wave of self-denial that has spread within the last year in this richest country of the world.

"Giving up one main meal a week should be the minimum response," said Rev. Arnold A. Mueller, president of the Lutheran Church of America, whose convention asked its three million members to take up the practice.

Roman Catholic bishops, in their annual meeting, pledged to fast at least two days a week and urged their 48.5 million American parishioners to "join with us in deeds of penance, with resultant savings going to relief services.

"People are responding to this more positively" than to any other recent church effort, said Archbishop Joseph Bernardin of Cincinnati, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Americans are ahead of the government in demonstrating concern about the world's food crisis, said Rev. J. Bruan Hehir of the Catholic justice and peace secretariat. They "are not willing to accept starvation for millions abroad as a tragic but inevitable fact."

Fasting was urged by a wide variety of other groups, including Project Hope, launched by an interdenominational Christian Vision, and an "Empty Plate" drive for skipping a meal weekly, by CARE's world hunger fund.

Fasting was urged in letters circulated to all U.S. congressmen and senators by Gilbert Gude (Rep. Md.) and in a Senate resolution sponsored by Senator Mark Hatfield (Rep. Ore.).

Mormon president Spencer Kimball urged members to "observe more diligently" a long-time custom of a monthly fast day, because of food needs of the world's poor.

Fasting spread among students at Yale, Notre Dame and elsewhere.

Some groups, including an inter-faith coalition called Bread for the World, urged abstinence three days a week. Abstinence, unlike fasting, means simply going without meal.

New York's Episcopal Bishop Paul Moore and Catholic Archbishop Terence Cooke have urged meatless Wednesdays. Episcopal Bishop George E. Rath of Newark, N.J., called for abstinence any one day each week.

Catholic women in Brooklyn planned both fasting and formation of Friday Fish Eaters' Club.

But the Catholic bishops, like most others, have emphasized fasting.

"This is not the hour to be too strong on abstinence," observed Bishop Edward O'Rourke of Peoria, Ill., calling the depressed state of cattle production.

Said Catholic Bishop Hubert Newell of Cheyenne, Who.: "Each one at its should eat less, drink less, smoke less and reduce the use of luxury items so we can contribute whatever is saved to the needy."

Residency Illegal

Truly Religious People Not Cynical About Life

By
Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

Few things are as they seem. The earth looks flat, and though we travel its whole circumference it will never appear round. But in spite of our eyes the earth is round.

The sun looks as though it rose in the East and set in the West. But in truth it neither rises nor sets. In relation to the earth it does not change. Rather our planet spins around until in our moving we falsely see everything else appear to move.

Hence the goal of all scientific research, just as much as the aim of religious insight, is to get behind the way things seem to the way things are.

There is ring of reality is heard from these words: "Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen. By faith we understand that the world was created by the word of God, so that what is seen was made out of things which do not appear" (Hebrews 11:1-3).

Therefore religion, like science, may be opposed to sight; but it is not opposed to reason. It is all the reason we have, plus the logical leap beyond. As someone has put it: true faith is veracity of insight.

Perhaps the simplest test of faith is whether a person thinks that life is worth while. Fundamentally to be religious is to be cynical and pessimistic about life. Religious people may be pessimistic about particular enterprises; but they are not cynical about life itself, its meaning, its destiny.

An American speaker once put the matter this way.

"We are standing in a little circle of light. All about us is darkness. Faith is the courage with which one steps out into that darkness not knowing what she will find there, but trusting that the God. Of light is the God also of darkness, and that in the end there will be no disappointment."

Suffice it to add what millions have found in the crucible of experience, "It is the God who said, 'Let light shine out of darkness,' who has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Christ" (2 Corinthians 4:6).

Mesh Playpens May Be Dangerous

Last week's column about Consumers' Association of Canada's recommendation to the government included a mention that the association wanted mesh playpens recalled.

It apparently alarmed several area parents who want to know why the CAC wants playpens recalled.

According to the Ottawa head office, mesh playpens with sides of larger than five netting pose a danger to young babies and children who may catch buttons or clothing fasteners in the mesh. The CAC was advised of the danger by the product safety branch of the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs which feels that standard mesh playpens are dangerous.

According to the branch, manufacturers are already moving toward voluntary standards to prevent injuries and deaths. At least one accidental death and several injuries are attributed to playpens.

This may be a good time to send for "Home Canning Ontario Fruits and Vegetables", publication 468 of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

The free booklet will tell you, among other things, why some jars should be tightened after processing and others should not and why you shouldn't use commercial jars for home canning.

It is available from the Information Branch, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ont. M7A 1A5.

Do you need commercial pectin to make jam? Not if you use an old fashioned recipe like this one from the Ministry of Food and Agriculture.

Use berries which are only just ripe.

Hull four pounds of fresh strawberries (12 cups) and place in a heavy pot over low heat. Press the berries to extract juice. They should soften in 10 minutes. Add four pounds (nine cups) granulated sugar slowly, stirring until dissolved. Bring to a fast rolling boil and boil exactly 10 minutes, stirring frequently.

Let jam stand five minutes, skim and stir. Pour into sterilized jars and cover at once with ¼ inch paraffin. Cool, then cover with tight lids.

Pet peeves of the week: boxes of plastic bags with twice as many bags as wire twisters; stale specialty items in supermarkets; packages of ground meat which contain more than a pound but not a pound-and-a-half; non-returnable bottles; excess packaging on almost everything; three prices on food items, inflation I can't understand.

Quinte Women

Pat March, Educator

Pat March should have retired last week as chairman of the Hastings County Home and School Association.

Unfortunately — perhaps fortunately for the organization — the board of directors couldn't find a replacement to take on her job.

"I just sort of fell heir to the job to begin with," she says.

Mrs. March, who has been active in Home and School since she was inspired by a guest lecturer in teachers' college 33 years ago, has been liaison representative to the Hastings County Board of Education since its inauguration.

Before that she was secretary to the Belleville Home and School Association.

"I can still see the face of that woman who made me see how important it is that the home and the school and the province and the country get together," Mrs. March explains.

Other Hastings County parents are not as convinced, she says. Of 92,000 people in the county, just 286 belong to the organization which once boasted 980 members.

A Belleville resident for more than 25 years, Mrs. March came to the area to discover that the Belleville Board of Education wouldn't hire married women teachers. Consequently, she lived in the city with her husband but taught in places like Bayside and Picton.

After the birth of a son, Mrs. March chose to supply teach and that, coupled with home and school work, kept her in touch with the educational scene.

"I hate to let anyone get away with anything," she explains.

"In the old one-room school we didn't give them as much material but we taught them how to learn. We didn't have time to be with them all the time. Now kids are too spoon fed."

As if her involvement in home and school — she led the way for volunteers in the schools and the development of nurses centre — were not enough, Mrs. March has served on the now defunct Mayor's Committee on Youth, helped start the pediatrics playroom at the hospital, and is currently on the board of directors for Family Planning in the county. She has also served on the congregational board of Bridge Street United Church.

"The people who sponsored me at the church said I wouldn't keep quiet — and I didn't," she says.

GARDEN CLUB

The main feature at the regular meeting of the Belleville Garden Club was the showing of entries in a slide contest for Club members. Entries were in two sections: one of slides taken on the recent trip to the Royal Botanical Gardens in Hamilton, and the other open to any of the contestants favourite garden slides. Slides were judged by Mike Manthorpe of the Photo Chalet and prizes were awarded to Mike Lerour, Earl Yateman and Harry Lambourne, Harry Collins and Pat Cox.

The second feature of the meeting was the demonstration of planting hanging baskets and window boxes by Larry Johnson. Baskets were sold at the end of the meeting.

Members were reminded to encourage their acquaintances to enter roses, African Violets and other flowers in the show to be held on June 28 and 29 at Centennial High School.

Harry Lambourne, show chairman, stressed that many awards are available which can be won with a single bloom or plant and that we wish all gardeners to participate in the show.

SENIORS CELEBRATE

V.O.N. Citizens celebrated their week in a variety of ways. Included was Quinte House and a Tea at Hastings manor on Thursday last, sponsored by the Auxiliary. Ladies Auxiliary, the members of which were invited to welcome and serve approximately 80 visitors. Head lady presidents of the Manor did the honors at the Tea Table — Edith Latham, Daisy Carlson, Marie Clarke, Beulah Wiggins, Mae Leonard, Christine Munro, Belle Smith and Florence Morris.

BRIDGE STREET UCW

Members of United Church Women of Bridge Street Church celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Church with a potluck luncheon at the summer home of Mrs. Harley Wray.

Past presidents of the Ladies Aid, WMS, WA and UCW recalled outstanding events through the years, and members reminisced about such things as the Kitchen Cabinet Orchestra.

A birthday cake was served at the close of the afternoon.

NSA MEETS

The June meeting of the National Secretaries Association, Bay of Quinte Chapter was held June 17 at the Sun Luck Gardens.

The guest speaker for the evening, Valerie Truax, District Director of the Quinte Branch, Victorian Order of Nurses was introduced by Son Herrington.

Miss Truax, after receiving her B.Sc.N. at McMaster University in Hamilton taught only briefly at the University before she received a National Bursary from the V.O.N. and was placed in Belleville, in 1971. Belleville and Trenton amalgamated and Miss Truax became the District Director of the Quinte Branch.

Miss Truax gave a slide presentation which showed the work carried out by the V.O.N. service and answered various queries from the members. At the close of the discussion Barbara Hayson expressed our appreciation to Miss Truax for attending that evening and presented her with a gift.

The remainder of the meeting was given to discussion of the International Convention to be held in Montreal in July of this year and the introduction of the new chairmen for the various committees within the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Association.

MARMORA WI.

Hints on ways of saving money on grocery bills were given when 17 members of Marmora Women's Institute met recently at the home of Ruth Moffatt.

Mabel Nayler, Family and Consumer Affairs convener, spoke on the subject "Think and compare, is it really a bargain?". She advised the members to watch for specials but make sure they are special.

A report on the 67th District Annual Convention held in Marmora at St. Andrew's Church was given by Eleanore Barker. She reported that $154.82 had been collected for the Pennies for Friendship Fund.

Each member gave a short sketch of her life based on a questionnaire prepared by Grace Warren and given out at the last meeting. This proved to be very interesting and entertaining.

It was decided to have a bake sale on Friday morning, June 27 at the IGA store starting at 9:30 a.m.

SOMETHING MORE
(In Search of a Deeper Faith)
By Catherine Marshall

Catherine Marshall, author of "A Man Called Peter" and "Christy", began writing about her spiritual quest in her book "Beyond Ourselves". This recent book discusses her continuing search.

She talks about the jobs and sorrows of raising a family, of trying to understand the necessity for evil in the world, of journeys in faith taken by people in dire straits. In a rare blend of candor, insight, and humor, the author guides her reader towards a joyful new life of affirmative experiences. She offers both sound and inspiring help for family estrangements: parents from children, wives from husbands.

Catherine Marshall is a religious explorer. She writes of personal tragedy and self-doubt with extraordinary frankness; the involvement of first her son, and then her step-daughter with the 'youth rebellion' as well as the details of two grandchildren, forced her to re-examine her own faith, searching for new answers and old truths.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

If Quebec's Senior Citizens Get Organized, They'll Have Political Power

By ROBERT MACSWEEN (CP) — Canada's aged are something new if senior citizens organize politically and walkup—and they are showing signs of doing so, say some Quebec officials in the field.

Gaspard Massie, director of Quebec's largest association of homes for the aged, told a reporter the increasing numbers and higher educational level of senior citizens make them a potentially powerful group.

"In reasonable health at 65 today, you have a good chance of living out an average another 17 years," said Mr. Massie, himself a robust figure with only 1½ years to go before the magic age.

"Many of these are active people and they do not plan to spend all their time at religious services. They can be a political force. I may be wrong out, but I think they will try to organize the young fellows between 55 and 65 as well.

"In fact, some politicians were worried about this sort of thing in the last Quebec election, thinking the senior citizens would swing the vote one way or the other."

Yves Lavergne's Parti Quebecois, the official opposition party, recently came out with a program for the aged and charged that the governing Liberals had done little in the field in five years of power.

"Suddenly in the last few years everybody and his dog has become interested in the problems of the aged," said Violet Roy, 68, assistant director of the Senior Citizens Forum of Montreal.

The complaints are diverse indeed—into oblivion even accused the federal government of encouraging pensioners to "shape up."

He pointed out in a letter to the editor that he and his wife were collecting $18.38 less a month in old-age pensions than the old couple living in sin in a downstairs apartment.

Mrs. Roy, sweeping was the question raised by Gerard Fraser, director general of the 90,000-member Quebec Federation of Senior Citizens (Federation d'Age d'Or de Quebec).

"We think pensions should be re-evaluated for single persons," he said in an interview. "Except for food and clothing, expenses are much the same—rent, heating, electricity—for a person alone as for a couple."

Mr. Fraser also criticized the taxing of retirement pensions under the Quebec Pension Plan.

Since last January, citizens everywhere except Quebec—the only province with its own pension fund—have been able at age 65 to claim retirement pensions under the Canada Pension Plan regardless of earnings. But pensions of Quebec claimants under age 70 are reduced by 10 cents for every $1 earned over $1,230.

"You may lose all your pension if you work hard," said Mr. Fraser indignantly.

Statistics Canada figures show nearly 13 per cent of the Quebec age 65 and over a gainfully employed labor force. One in 10 said the figure for men is 18 per cent.

"Politicians know that senior citizens can influence elections—whether (sic...) unofficial or municipal," said Mrs. Roy.

The Montreal Citizens Movement, campaigning for free transportation for the aged, marched into city council as an opposition party against Mayor Jean Drapeau in last year's municipal election.

Mrs. Roy noted that every in Canada another 400 citizens reach age 65 and the prospect of the 1971 age group is growing sharply. Quebec's population will be considerably larger in the 1976 census than in the census in 1973 when it amounted to more than 400,000 voters in an electorate of 3.7 million.

"We encourage them to vote but they don't need much encouragement," said Morris Sinuk, executive director of Montreal's Malmonides Hospital and Home for the Aged, where the average age is 84.

As an indication of political interest, Prime Minister Trudeau has come on three campaign trips to the hospital, which lies in his Mount Royal constituency.

"They gave him a piece of their minds," said Mr. Sinuk. What is the Quebec picture of homes for centres?

An official of the social welfare department's permits section reported 25,147 senior citizens in four categories—ranging from little more than room and board to psychotic care—are accommodated in 483 nursing homes.

These include 223 publicly-owned homes, operated by religious orders and non-profit corporations, with 17,211 residents, averaging 66 to 70 to a home but ging as high as 380.

Another 7,816 senior citizens live in 251 privately-owned establishments, some of them family-operated homes of perhaps 12 residents but others much larger.

The official also reported 49 long-term hospitals and seven convalescent hospitals in the public domain and an additional 38 long-term hospitals and two convalescent institutions in the private sector.

The government view is that senior citizens who can manage on their own pensions are better off to do so, and Mr. Massie said the policy is generally accepted as wise in principle.

"It is all very well as long as you provide theft with service—not service in return or four days but promptly," said Mr. Massie, director of the Quebec Association of Rectors Centres (Association des Centres d'Accueil du Quebec), which groups non-profit institutions.

"Home services have to be organized on a very efficient basis—meals, home nursing, medical. You must be sure that when you get sick or disabled you get treatment, that what sort of services they can get free. They are exploited if a degree."

Hubert d' Ravinel, Montreal head of the non-denominational Little Brothers of the Poor, said Quebec suffers from a "tremendous" lack of home services.

Such services require much more imagination, he said, less money from the government—less than the construction of nursing homes, said Mr. de Ravinel, who works mainly in Montreal French-language districts.

"It would be far more intelligent to train in specialties courses home nursing, nursing, visiting counselors," he added.

"People to do the shopping, take care of the laundry, explain to the aged what is going on in the world, read books to them in their homes.

"The government says everybody can read...today and that may be true in a way. But it is hard for the aged to get through a page. I really can't read."

Spokesmen say an educational process is urgently needed to prepare citizens for aging much as the young generation is prepared for the trials of adulthood.

"We who are going to be aged," says Prof. Frank McGilly when he addresses young students in his classes on aging at McGill University.

"The 'we' rather than 'they' approach puts a different light on the matter." Prof. McGilly told a reporter, noting that aging begins at age 18 and lasts to the end of natural nervous system.

Various officials predicted a change of mentality regarding pre-retirement preparation. There was ample evidence that programs are needed to get people over a period full of problems.

The subject seems charged with emotion. If management speaks about retirement to an employee, the employee—alarmed—may feel he being shunted aside. If the employee himself raises the question, the boss may suspect he has lost interest in the job.

Dr. Sylvia McDonald's series of pre-retirement seminars at Macdonald College here started out with a class average age of 42 but has come down to an average 55.

"We want to get that down to age 50 as soon as possible," said Dr. McDonald, a sister of the Congregation of Notre Dame.

Sister McDonald feels the pressures and style of modern life make it appear that young people care less about their parents than days than in the past but she has found a different picture.

"I find the kids very sympathetic to the parents and older folk but we seem only now to be finding ways to let young people get through," she added.

"I am more encouraged than discouraged by the whole thing."

Baby Should Meet Sitter Before Parents' Night Out

Doris Clark

Dear Ann Landers: May I add a word of advice for both parents and sitters—on behalf of the child?

It can be very traumatic for a youngster to be left with a total stranger on a moment's notice. The sitter should be invited to the home as a guest to say hello, a day or so before she takes on her first job with a new child.

It can be a terrifying experience for a little one to be left with a person he or she has never seen before. The sitter should then calm the child and reassure him, and this can be a difficult job.

So please, Ann, add this suggestion to your list of "helpful hints" for both mothers and sitters.—It Happened To Me

Dear Happ: Excellent suggestion. Thanks for the writing. Your letter is a good example of how an ounce of prevention can be much better than a pound of cure.

Dear Ann Landers: I am in love with a man who is 27. We became engaged a short time after we dated—two and a half months, to be exact. We announced our engagement last week and arrangements are being made for our wedding.

There's a problem that keeps me up nights. My friends seem to get over his former girl friend. They talk on the phone and see each other occasionally. I believe he is still in love with her. He refuses to discuss it, but I know something is there. I'm afraid I caught him on the rebound and he is too much of a gentleman to back out. How do I find out if I'm right or wrong? He's not a very good liar, by the This is a cry for help, Ann.—Threes A Crowd

Dear C: You are obviously beset with doubts, which is no way to go into a marriage. Cancel the wedding plans at once and give your fiance his freedom. If he really loves you and not the old flame you'll know it within a month. It's easier to reinstate plans for a wedding than go through a divorce.

Dear Ann Landers: You sometimes print pet gripes which can be very useful because people learn from them. Here's mine: The Wrong Number.

I often wonder who these people are who make phone calls at 3 a.m. Either they are insomniacs or folks who work nights and sleep during the day.

It so happens that my husband and I work days and we need our sleep at night. The past month we have been awakened three times between 3 and 4 a.m. by some jerk looking for "Alice." Once that phone jangles us out of a sound sleep the night is shot. I can guarantee feeling lousy the next day. It just isn't fair.

Please, Ann, ask your readers to dial with care—especially after midnight. It is the very least one can do for his fellow man. Thank you.—Red-Eyed This Morning.

Dear Red: Here's your letter and I hope it helps. Unfortunately, at least half of those wrong numbers (especially the jerks who are looking for "Alice") won't see the dial for the boots—so please don't expect me to produce miracles.

Joe Morissette pours tea for his wife, Welyn, at the non-denominational Little Brothers of the Poor

Old People Are 'Refugees'

MONTREAL (CP) — The old people are refugees for society."

That was the angry statement of Hubert de Ravinel, Montreal head of the non-denominational Little Brothers of the Poor (Petits Freres des Pauvres), an international group dedicated to "restoring a little love to charity."

"We don't have to travel 5,000 miles to find a Third World," he said. "We have it right here among our older citizens. Our society is very hard on those who don't run as fast as the others any more. They have no place, no joy, in their declining years."

But Mr. de Ravinel, 41, said the problem goes even deeper: become modern attitudes distort the very meaning of age.

"We are conditioned to think old was a matter of age, but that has changed," he said. "Getting old today is a social question.

"It is hard to accept that at age 65 you are somehow not at 64 plus one day you are nobody.

Retirement—"even the word is wrong: I hate it"—kills citizens of all classes but especially workers long accustomed to a morn-to-eve job pattern. Better educated persons with wider circles of interest stand a better chance of adapting.

"Age 65 is old in the social sense but many persons far beyond that age still can work and exercise influence. Today you are old when society condemns you to be old, even if you have 30 years more left to live.

"What do we do between 'retirement' and death? Well, there are television, sports, hobbies, perhaps travel. But those things are supposed to be a compliment to work and they take up only two or three hours a day, or a few days a month. A life like that is like a lunch with only dessert. Society cuts out the work and leaves you with only the topping."

"At age 30, we need to prepare for old age," said Mr. de Ravinel. "The government thinks we can solve the problems of age at 65 but they forget the roots of old age.

"We should live our lives always as if tomorrow we might be out of a job. That would give us a different perspective.

"The solution is a new approach to retirement—and I don't mean receiving from your firm at age 62 some information about gardening and hobbies. Retirement is not a book of recipes."

"We take part in the free-but-campaign and we also organize vacations for the aged," said Mr. de Ravinel, outlining the work of his group, which originally had a Roman Catholic orientation when it was founded in his native France after the Second World War.

Reverence for Life

"Sometimes our light goes out, but is blown into flames again by an encounter with another human being. Each of us owes to the deepest thanks to those who have rekindled this inner light."

These are the words of Dr. Albert Schweitzer. It is to him I owe the inspiration to try all I can, still very little, to help children and animals through the Kindness Club.

In this his Centennial Year many people around the world seek to extend his influence for good by keeping his memory alive. Our commemoration is celebrated in the children with the co-operation of schools and libraries. The special fund with him is that he has been the only Honorary President of the Kindness Club has ever had. Our Club is founded on his new edict.

What is Reverence for Life? In his preface to our book "How To Be Kind". Dr. Schweitzer explains: "I dared affirm that true goodness requires us to respect the lives of all creatures."

In his own words we present Thoughts for Our Times by Dr. Schweitzer:

"To the very young: "It was quite incomprehensible to me — that was before I began to go to school — why in my evening prayers I should pray for human beings only. So when my mother prayed with me and kissed me goodnight, I used to add silently a prayer that I had composed myself for all living creatures. It ran thus: 'Oh Heavenly Father, protect and bless all things that have breath; guard them from all harm and let them sleep in peace.'"

To the school children: "From the time they start school, the children must be imbued with the idea of reverence for all living things."

To parents and teachers: "Start early to instill in your children and students awareness that they are on this earth to help and serve others; that is as important to pass on to them as knowledge."

To a disgruntled man picked up hitch-hiking: "You must not expect anything from others. It's you, yourself, of whom you must ask a lot. Only from oneself has anyone the right to ask everything or anything. This way it's up to you — your own choice. What you get from others remains a present, a gift!"

To other folks: When Dr. Schweitzer began to build the Lever Village at Lambaréne with the money he received from the Nobel Peace Prize, he sent for Monsnalli to come back from his village near again to become head carpenter. But Monsnalli replied he was too old to work. "If you come back and keep working, you will get younger every day." Dr. Schweitzer, then 79 years old himself, told him so and that's the way it was.

"Example is not the main thing in influencing others. — It is the only thing". — Aida Flemming, President, The Kindness Club.

CP News Roundup

Wintario Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — The operation of the Wintario provincial lottery verges on a fraud, Liberal Sargent (L—Grey-Bruce) said Friday.

He told the legislature that less than half the prizes are being claimed and odds are unfair for ticket buyers because of the number of unsold tickets left in a draw.

Marshall Pollock, managing director of the Ontario Lottery Corp., denied the charge, saying 41 per cent of the $1.6-million prize money already has been claimed from the third lottery draw June 12, 94 per cent from the May 15 draw and 79 per cent from the May 29 draw.

The odds of winning—1,000 to one—remain the same no matter how many tickets are sold, he said.

Rail Location To Be Studied

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will choose four municipalities to take part in studies for the three-government railway relocation program, Transportation Minister John Rhodes said Friday.

He told the provincial municipal liaison committee — the province's forum with municipalities—that provincial and municipal staff members will recommend which four among the eight municipalities will participate in the cost-sharing program: Brantford, Niagara Falls, North Bay, St. Thomas, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, Thunder Bay and Windsor.

Plan Appeal

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal justice department will appeal a New Brunswick Supreme Court decision throwing out a monopoly charge against the Irving newspaper interests in that province, officials said Friday night.

New ICBMs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary James Schlesinger said Friday that the Soviet Union has begun deploying three powerful new types of intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs), and that two of them carry multiple warheads which can be aimed at separate targets.

Bick Critical

TORONTO(CP) — "The public is getting disgusted with sick and tired of theoretical approaches to dealing with crime," Judge C. G. Bick, chairman of the Metro Toronto board of police commissioners, said Friday.

Judge Bick was commenting on a report by the Law Reform Commission which recommended the federal government abolish life imprisonment for any offence and make 20 years the maximum sentence.

Noting that President Gerald Ford has called for tough mandatory jail terms for violent crimes in the United States, the judge said: "I see President Ford is coming around to my view."

Seek Rochdale

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Rotary and Kiwanis clubs proposed Friday to convert Rochdale College into a residence for senior citizens and handicapped adults.

The proposal was contained in a brief presented to the Metropolitan Toronto Housing Co. Ltd., a possible future manager of the building.

Delay Hearing

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — A hearing on a motion to quash the territorial coroner's inquest into the Oct. 30, 1974 crash of a Panarctic Oils Ltd. plane has been delayed to Sept. 16 at Ottawa request.

Mr. Justice William Morrow of the Northwest Territories Supreme Court granted the request Friday.

The hearing was to have taken place before Mr. Justice Morrow June 30. The resumption of the inquest, earlier scheduled for July 4 and conditional on the result of the hearing to quash the inquest, also has been delayed to some time in October.

Militancy Urged

STELLARTON, N.S. (CP) — The president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) called Friday for more militancy and active political involvement, describing as "hogwash" charges that union wage demands are the prime cause of inflation.

Money Lacking

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Frank Miller says he is having difficulty finding money to expand Ontario's mobile dental service in Northern Ontario.

"I don't know whether I am going to find the monies to expand the service," Mr. Miller said in the legislature Friday.

Simpler Liquor Votes Sought

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario wants to give municipalities the option to hold liquor votes at the same time as municipal elections, Frank Drea, parliamentary assistant for the ministry of consumer and commercial relations, said Friday.

Under the existing legislation, local plebiscites on w... should allow liquor sales are held under the Election Act requiring considerable work for municipalities and expense for taxpayers, he told the provincial-municipal-liaison committee.

Teachers Called Greedy Monopoly

TORONTO (CP) — The teaching profession is an arrogant and greedy monopoly, says a brief released Friday by the Wentworth County board of education.

Iain Hendry, a board trustee, presented the brief to a legislature committee which is studying Bill 100 on teacher-board relations.

"By carrying out illegal strikes, they set themselves above the law," it stated.

After strikes in Thunder Bay, Ottawa and Windsor in 1974 and earlier this year, secondary school teachers won "inflationary settlements of up to 30 per cent per year," he said.

Think Syndicate Killed Giancana

OAK PARK, Ill. (AP) — Crime syndicate leaders, fearful that ailing Sam (Mooni) Giancana would barter their secrets for his freedom, may have ordered him killed, investigators theorize.

Giancana, 65, onetime director of Cosa Nostra who rose to command Chicago's crime syndicate, was shot five times in the neck and once in the mouth as he fried spinach and sausages Thursday night.

The food hadn't even burned when Giancana's 43-year-old manservant found him on the kitchen floor. An armored door of the modest suburban home was found ajar.

Police said the assassin probably was known and trusted by Giancana, a consort of singer Phyllis McGuire and owner of gambling palaces in Havana before Fidel Castro's takeover in Cuba.

Senator Frank Church (Dem., Idaho), chairman of the committee investigating the Central Intelligence Agency, said he would give "no credence" to speculation of CIA involvement in Giancana's death. The mobster was to appear before the committee next week. Some reports said he was involved in a CIA-backed plot to kill Castro.

Church, noting Giancana was also set to testify before a federal grand jury in Chicago, speculated that underworld figures may have decided to be certain he would keep silent.

Some law enforcement officials agreed.

Canadian Car Industry Said in Great Shape

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The president of Chrysler Canada Ltd. says the Canadian firm is in good shape while the parent firm, Chrysler Corp. of Detroit, is feeling its way back to firmer ground.

"There is no doubt that the car industry in the United States is in one hell of a mess," Ron W. Todgham, 64, said in an interview. "But that is not the case in Canada. The car industry here is in great shape and so is Chrysler."

He was reacting to reports that the parent firm will emerge from the current U.S. recession poorer and smaller and will get out of the big-car field.

He said the parent firm is not getting out of the big-car field, and although the name Imperial was dropped, the big car it represented was not.

"We will have a car out this fall that will physically approximately resemble the Imperial but with a different name."

The Windsor plant is the lone source of the Cordoba model, an intermediate-size car introduced this year, and accounts for the plant's productivity.

Initial estimates called for the Windsor plant to manufacture 20,000 Cordobas in the first year, but was increased to more than 120,000 to meet demand.

Industry figures indicate Chrysler had 25.5 per cent of the Canadian domestic market at the end of May, ahead of Ford at 20.2 per cent. General Motors has 43 per cent of the market.

The U.S. firm is struggling to hold its 15-percent share of the car market for domestic-built cars, compared to 28 per cent for Ford and 52 per cent for General Motors.

Policing at Olympics To Cost $90 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal cost for government security at the Olympic Games in Montreal and Kingston will be at least $90 million, the Commons was told Friday.

The bill doesn't include the policing costs that Montreal, Quebec and Ontario will run into when the games are held 13 months from now.

Public Works Minister C. M. Drury said 10,000 Mounties and servicemen are being detailed to the Games. Dozens of bilingual Mounties already have been transferred from Ontario and New Brunswick to Montreal to become familiar with the 1976 assignment.

The federal security bill is 45 times the $2 million that Ottawa has allotted for grants to Canadian athletes now training for the Olympics.

"How come they are undernourished?" interjected Conservative spokesman Otto Jelinek (Toronto High Park-Humber Valley). There have been reports that some Canadian competitors are not getting proper food or training because of lack of funds.

The Commons gave approval in principle, after a reservation to an act that would authorize minting of $100 gold coins to raise more money for the inflation-struck Olympics.

New Democrats refused to support the measure at all, saying government should be coping with other social priorities—including recreation for all Canadians—instead of pouring money into "bread and circuses."

Mr. Jelinek said Conservatives will withdraw support of the bill unless more details on the coins are given in committee next week and details of how Montreal is spending federal funds are provided.

Wants Help

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Housing Minister Denis Irvine said Friday he will go to Ottawa to retable Ontario's case if Monday's federal budget fails to provide additional money for housing requested by the province.

In a June 10 meeting with Barney Danson, federal minister of urban affairs, Mr. Irvine asked that the federal budget for housing and related programs for Ontario be increased to $222.7 million from $442.7 million this year.

Offer Rejected

TORONTO (CP) — Union negotiators for 12,000 workers at Bell Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. in Hamilton say they have rejected the company's first offer in the current contract talks.

Exports Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada lost $52 million on merchandise trade with foreign countries in May as exports dropped 2.5 per cent from April and imports remained virtually unchanged, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

Control Mopeds

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Transportation Minister John Rhodes said Friday the government will introduce legislation next week to tighten controls over motor-assisted bicycles (mopeds).

Won't Renew Lease

OTTAWA (CP) — A transport ministry statement Friday officially confirmed that the United States Air Force will not renew its lease on the Goose Bay, Labrador base when it expires next June.

Students Produce Deadly Weapons

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

A group of Grade 8 students in the Belleville school system has been producing "replicas of potentially lethal oriental weapons called nunchucks in shop classes.

They have been making the weapons without the knowledge or consent of their teachers or parents, one of the boys said.

"We were going to tell the teacher we were making poles for a bird feeder if he noticed," he said when asked what they would say if the teacher noticed the weapons.

The device, two tight-weight pieces of wood, one round, one shape, connected with a flexible material at one end, either chains or rawhide, has been described by the director of a Belleville martial art academy as "very-like but still very dangerous."

Five boys, all 13 and 14 years old, are known to have made the weapons, with one of the students possessing two nunchucks, one a heavier, larger more exact facsimile.

The boys have been practising the use of the nunchuck by hosing apples in the air and squashing them.

"This is a good example of how the martial arts are being misunderstood," said the boys' sensei Kenzo Donono, instructor of the Belleville Martial Art Karate Club and vice-president of the National Karate Association.

Mr. Donono thinks the boys may have got the influence by television or the movies, he said, which show people running around and using the martial arts and weapons with almost total abandon.

This is not the case in Oriental countries.

"In the Orient, if you carry a nunchuck on the street it is the same as if you carry a gun or knife in North America," he said.

"If the police see you they will give a warning, and if you use the weapon, it is treated the same as if you had used a gun or knife."

Mr. Donono says he knows of no laws in Canada applying to the weapon and only some states, such as Ohio and Arizona have legislation dealing with nunchucks and other martial art devices.

The nunchuck was created in China more than 2,000 years ago as a secret weapon when farmers were forbidden to own more conventional types of arms.

The nunchuck can be as dangerous like any other weapon as people in the vicinity, he said.

"When a person does not have the proper training they might break limbs, hurt or kill themselves in the eye and cause blindness," said Mr. Donono.

Poor construction of the weapon is also a hazard.

"Even if someone does not mean to hurt with the nunchuck, when it is made with rawhide the material may tear and send the wood cylinders hurtling at a nearby person's face," he said.

Mr. Donono, a fourth degree black belt holder, does not teach how to use the nunchuck to all students because he says many are not mature or disciplined enough to master the weapon.

Truck Missing

TWEED — Provincial police today were asking for the whereabouts of an antique dump truck missing from a farm northeast of here Friday.

The 1948 truck was towed from the farm of Vincent Cassidy near Bogart.

A neighbor, Harold Vardy, saw the vehicle — which was reported in good condition despite its age — being towed down the road from the Cassidy farm, police said.

Disused Barn Burns Down

Police are investigating the cause of fire which destroyed a disused barn near Roseneath early Friday night.

The barn, owned by Gerrit Tummel, of nearby Fenwood Gardens, was situated on County Road 28 just south of Highway 2.

Mr. Tammel said the barn was empty except for some old machinery.

Ameliasburgh Township fire marshal said the barn had not been used for years and could give no immediate cause for the blaze.

Provincial police from Picton are in charge of the investigation.

Bellevillians Back

Lahr Residents To Repay Visit

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Bellevillians will have a chance to make an international gesture of goodwill in 1976 — right from their doorsteps.

They'll have an opportunity to open their homes to citizens of their twin city — Lahr, West Germany.

That's the word from Mayor Walter Jeffery as he and 20 other Bellevillians relax this weekend from the first mass gesture of community cordiality between both cities — the Belleville-Lahr friendship flight.

Plans for a reciprocal visit from Lahr were discussed before the Bellevillians left for home Friday after a two-week vacation that began — and ended — in the Quinte city's municipal twin 3,000 miles away.

If the venture becomes reality some 200 of Lahr's citizens may be expected to arrive in Canada, likely in September, next year.

In that case, the mayor is hoping Bellevillians will give them a total home-style welcome.

She'd like to see them taken as guests into local homes.

"We'll try to put these citizens into our own homes rather than hotels because we'd like an opportunity to get to know them even better than we did . . . " said Mayor Jeffery.

September seen the end of the tourist season. This would make it easier for Belleville to concentrate on the visitors from its twin community, said Mayor Jeffery after the charter flight had touched down 9:00 to Europe landed at CFB Trenton.

It was the first such ambitious exchange between both communities since they were twinned three years ago — and local officials made the selection as headquarters for Canada's NATO contingents.

To now exchanges have been smaller, or more formal — involving municipal representatives, professionals and students.

Mayor Jeffery, still clutching roses presented to her earlier by Lahr officials, summed up by saying the word: "Wunderbar."

"It was an experiment that was very successful," she said.

Its impact was borne out at the end. The first three days of the trip were taken up with official gestures and personal contacts. Then the Canadians went their separate vacation ways. When they returned for their homeward flight, the four Lahr's citizens were waiting — with spontaneous receptions in their homes, said the mayor.

But the exchange also involved some serious observing from the city hall representatives on the flight.

Mayor Jeffery led a group that included councillors Mayor Eggerton, Paul Russell and Stu Meeks and city manager Wilbur Purcell.

They took time out to discuss municipal techniques with their European counterparts, mostly with hospital, police, parks and recreation administrators.

As a result they returned with "many ideas to mull around in our minds."

Frank Murray, a former city councillor and Radio Station CHQ general manager who initiated the flight, noted the same thing.

The trip provided the civic officials "with many innovative ideas that could be very useful" in "the serious deliberations we'll have with these days with inflation and ever-increasing costs," said Mr. Murray.

Propose Park Region

A city hall proposal for a Quinte district parks commission has been forwarded to provincial - federal planners who have already studied recreation resources in the region.

The suggestion to organize a supervisory agency for the Quinte district similar to the St. Lawrence and Niagara parks commissions was made in Ontario cabinet minutes last February.

It was among recommendations in the city's official brief, presented by Mayor Robin Jeffery to the cabinet session.

Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier has recently written the mayor that a brief is being passed along to the Canada-Ontario-Rideau-Trent Stay (CORTS) organization.

CORTS in recent years made an inventory of recreation lands along inland waterways — including the Bay of Quinte and tributaries to Georgian Bay.

Mr. Bernier wrote that CORTS planners "will no doubt be talking with you as plans develop."

The city's brief suggested a commission would benefit municipalities in Hastings and Prince Edward counties. Both Quinte counties need aid in setting aside properties and historic sites for their own citizens and those of Ontario as a whole, it said.

District waterways and recreation lands are increasingly attractive to tourists, who boost local economy. But the task of setting aside lands to meet these increased demands is beyond the capability of local government, said the brief.

Sabre Helps Track Norwood Robbers

The provincial police tracking dog Sabre from Belleville was used during a massive hunt following Friday's $12,000 robbery of the Royal Bank branch at Norwood.

Police officer stationed at Campbellford, was used as the getaway vehicle following the robbery.

The car was later recovered near Trent River where the two accused were arrested in a cottage about seven hours after the robbery that activated a search by helicopter, aircraft and boat.

Downtown Development Before Council Monday

The bylaw proposing control of development in Belleville's downtown core — a measure in the environmental stages for several months — finally gets an airing before city council Monday.

And it may evoke much debate, although the general result should be favorable, between on administrative involvement in the production process of the measure.

The ordinance would give the city authority to adjudicate all applications for development in the city's commercial centre — bounded by Pinnacle and Coleman streets and running from Bay to Dundas to the Upper Bridge.

First promoted by the Belleville Economic Development Commission, the measure is similar to the bylaw which now governs subdivisions by which council can set standards for all phases of housing development.

The downtown controls would give council powers covering all aspects of new development and the authority to require that certain standards be met by developers.

"I think there will need to be considerable discussion on it in council," said Jim Coe, chairman of the city's Suburban Planning and Advisory Committee which already has recommended that council accept the bylaw.

"It has a good many features that other towns expects that may be questioned by council," said Mr. Coe.

But "I think council, as a whole, will look favorably at it," he added.

The bylaw is part of a lengthy agenda as council tackles its first business session in three weeks. Its last regular meeting — which would have been held last Monday — was rescheduled with the absence of Mayor Robin Jeffery, several city councillors and city manager Wilbur Purcell on the Lahr, West Germany friendship flight which returned Friday.

Before it gets down to business, council also will hear a protest from Hillcrest ratepayers about the increase in their taxes due to sanitary sewer installations — an issue which brings a petition seeking city hall support for provincial financial assistance.

Also on the agenda:

— A motion by Coun. Ald. Arthur Keegan calling for tighter provincial government controls on the sale of firearms in Ontario.

— A report from the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization on its activities. It includes a proposal that participating municipalities salvage the operation until at least the end of the year. The move follows withdrawal of senior government funding. QEMO needs almost $7,000 to keep it operational to the year's end, by which time its future may be assessed. Belleville's share of the cost would be $2,000. Trenton already has agreed to its allocation of $825.

— A bylaw clarifying late-night and Sunday operations for gasoline stations — after questions in council earlier this year. It would empower city hall to issue permits to up to 20 per cent of all service to remain open the longer hours on a rotating basis — a system which to this time has been voluntary.

City Residents Have Ideas for Canada Day

In a little more than two weeks, Canada will be celebrating its 108th birthday. As part of the festivities in Trenton the Chamber of Commerce has planned a variety show with Gordie Tapp; and a concert with the rock group, The Stampeders. There are "Canada Day" buttons for a dollar which allows discounts at participating merchants, flags will also be sold.

Belleville, on the other hand does not have any activities planned. In a random survey taken at the Quinte Mall this week, the following gave their response to the question: Should Belleville have activities for Canada Week? Here are some of their answers:

ELAINE DAFOE

"I don't see why not", says 18-year-old Elaine Dafoe.

"I noticed nothing happened last year, and I thought there would be a change this year but there wasn't," Miss Dafoe says.

Miss Dafoe said, "We could celebrate by a parade, or maybe even coincide the Quinte Ex. with Canada Week."

"A variety night with different ethnic groups could perform," was another suggestion by Miss Dafoe.

Miss Dafoe said, "We should be proud of our heritage and not be Americanized by the States."

DONNA MARSHALL

A resident of Belleville for the last eigh years, Donna Marshall says "There should be some type of celebration since it is a national holiday".

"It's good to support patriotism," the 38 year-old housewife said.

Mrs. Marshall said she would like to see Canada Week celebrated by, "all ethnic groups could perform putting on a special show from their own lands, each day of that week."

PAUL CHAMBERLAIN

"They should do some thing said Paul Chamberlain.

Upemployed Mr. Chamberlain, 23, said, "It seems bad that Trenton is doing something and Belleville is not".

"We could have something at Zwick's Island or Centennial such as sports," said Mr. Chamberlain

Mr. Chamberlain said he thinks, "A promotion of events like in Trenton, would help business: something people would be looking forward to."

PATTI FULTON

A 19-year-old Belleville student, Patti Fulton says she "definitely" is in favor of some type of activities.

"I Do they have any patriotism? If they did, they'd have some activities, said Miss Fulton.

Miss Fulton said she feels that Trenton has the right idea.

"We should plan something as Trenton has," Miss Fulton commented.

"We could sell buttons, have fireworks and maybe set-up a display in the mall," Miss Fulton suggested.

AL MOLLOY

Al Molloy says "they should be doing something."

A free-lance photographer, Mr. Molloy said, "When a small town like Trenton participates, I don't see why similar plan for Belleville would bring a lot more people to the businesses."

"Belleville should get involved because it is a part of Canada," said Mr. Burke.

Mr. Burke said he would like to see "much of the same thing as Trenton's variety show."

"It seems Trenton is a jump ahead of Belleville," Mr. Burke remarked.

JIM BURKE

"It's Canada's Week. Everyone should be involved," says 23-year-old mailman, Jim Burke.

Referring to the plans of Trenton, Mr. Burke said, "A similar plan for Belleville would bring a lot more people to the businesses."

"Belleville should get involved because it is a part of Canada," said Mr. Burke.

Mr. Burke said he would like to see "much of the same thing as Trenton's variety show."

"It seems Trenton is a jump ahead of Belleville," Mr. Burke remarked.

Education Beat

Task Force Shows Promise

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Faced by skepticism and misunderstanding, the educational task force Alternatives In Education has concluded for this school year but with a promise to continue next fall.

For a task force that apparently receives little support from its peers the Alternatives In Education Group has already inspired several pilot projects in the county and several more before the administrative council for approval.

Most notable are the Quinte Secondary community school team and the Trenton Associated School Group scheduled to be launched next fall. Both will be designed to reach those students who have trouble coping with the established classroom situation.

The Quinte project is even attempting to strike at the root of most learning problems — the home and social environment in which the students find themselves. The pilot project will deal with a student's social and family problems along with providing academic success.

The principal people involved with these projects have taken an active part in the proceedings of the task force. For the past year the group has not strived to create that utopian school that would eventually eliminate the educational system as it now exists.

Instead, the group, made up of teachers, principals, trustees, and laypeople, including a family court judge, has focused its attention on the percentage of students who for one reason or another can't achieve. Most admit that the current system can't be expected to accomodate all students.

Some reaction throughout the county to the task force has been negative. Many teachers look upon the group as a threat to their job security while others just regard the concept as idealistic and not really relevant to today's educational problems.

By direct contrast the group has had its feet firmly planted on today's educational problems. There has been no idealism other than a belief that school leavers can be potentially saved by some other forms of education.

At the last meeting the group expanded its scope to include the problems facing the gifted and talented, an area of special education that is gaining more and more interest across North America.

The task force agreed it's an area of concern and decided to investigate it further next year. Closer to the entire county the task force will decide to continue next year.

Many Getting June 30 Off

If you're a civil servant or member of a Crown agency you will get the July 1 holiday on Tuesday, July 1. This includes employees of the Ontario, federal and provincial governments and Bell Canada.

Most city industries, however, are taking Monday, June 30 off and some employees will get an extra long weekend by getting both the 30th and the 1st off. In some cases the Monday holiday is courtesy of a union agreement that allows for "floating holidays" during the year. Among those surveyed, four-day weekends to AOCO, Allied Chemical and Union Carbide.

Most retailers, downtown and at the east-end plaza will observe the holiday on July 1 and the Quinte Mall will close on that date as will the Towers Food City complex west of the city.

The Intelligencer will not publish Tuesday, July 1.

Parking Penalty Urged

A bylaw designed to end a long-standing frustration of downtown property owners has been recommended to city council.

City hall's traffic committee approved handling an ordinance to council that prohibits unauthorized parking on private property.

The bylaw makes it legal for errant driver to have their vehicles towed away.

For those who don't pay the parking tickets and wind up in court, the measure carries a penalty — at the discretion of the court — of up to $300.

Under a recommendation to the city's parking bylaw the tickets can be issued by the parking authority's meter wardens. The change broadens the authority of the enforcement to issue tickets in all areas where parking is banned — such as bus stops, fire hydrants, sub-hour routes — and which is now required issuance by a police officer.

Getting a Kick Out of It

Wally Slockl, right, delivers a front kick as a counter against Jim Sheridan in practicing karate during recent workout. Karate is becoming very popular in Canada. Beginning today, The Intelligencer begins a regular series of articles on karate, supplied by Sheridan of the Jiyu-Shin Karate School, 180 Front St., N., and Steve Morton of Black Belt Studios, 161 Front St.

Karate an Ever-changing Art

By STEVE MORTON

More and more people these days are discovering just how interesting and beneficial karate training can be for them.

Most beginners enjoy the experience of being placed in, and forced to conform to, a different cultural environment. But the excitement soon wears off and many Canadians, attempting the transition to an oriental culture, return to their realistic Canadian world.

They have a bitter taste and absolutely no understanding of what karate training could have done for them, if taught in the proper environment.

It is generally accepted that karate originated in China, thousands of years ago. However, it is impossible to tell exactly when people started to practice and teach an actual art of self-defence.

In ancient China, when people were plagued with bandits, they were forced to defend themselves by whatever means available to them.

Once they discovered that they could overpower their assailant, they began to develop new and better methods of protecting themselves.

Self preservation was then, and is now, the main function of karate training.

Throughout the centuries, newer and better methods developed, and as these methods moved to different countries, various styles of karate were formed to accommodate the different cultures of these countries.

As karate moved through the Far East different methods of Kata training exercises were used.

Kata training consist of a sequence of pre-arranged movements which simulate an actual combat situation. Men in countries such as Okinawa and Japan were then, and still are, judged on their ability to perfect these forms. However, free style fighting was never practised as a regular method of training until recently.

When karate was introduced to Canada in 1960, these training methods continued, but as more and more Canadians became involved in karate, it began, once again, to take on a different look.

Once Canadian students were promoted to the higher ranks, they grew tired of the old oriental ways of training, broke away from the tradition and began to develop their own training style.

One such student, Wally Slockl, of Brampton, Ont., after attaining the rank of black belt in 18 months, began travelling the world in search of better ways to develop his own abilities. Slockl has become the second ranked light-heavyweight fighter in the world. He has now formed the first Canadian style of karate called Wa-Su, which simply refers to his name.

Although Canadian instructors have, for the most part, modified the old oriental styles and disciplines to their own personalities and beliefs, Wally Slockl is the first to openly profess his own style.

Constellation Rolls to 13th

Brooke Bond Nips CNR Team

Constellation continued its domination of the Belleville Industrial Softball League on Friday night in the second game of the doubleheader at the Alemite Park.

The first game saw Brooke Bond squeak by CNRA 3-2.

Constellation took their 13th win of the season by a score of 4-0 over Black Diamond, with four big runs in the top of the fifth.

The winner for Constellation was once again Ken Kerik, who gave up eight hits and a walk while setting down three Black Diamond batters with a double and a single.

Patrick had two Trenton Singles with one each for Dan Scott and Baril.

Earlier in the week, in Pewee play, Thurlow Plane's Concrete blanked Cobourg 13-0 at home.

Dale Forestall was the winning pitcher on a cold two-hitter. He fanned five and walked three. He helped his own cause with a triple and two doubles.

Eastern Ontario Baseball

Broadloom Lowers Boom

Belleville Broadloom regained its winning ways, Thursday at Parkdale when visiting Peterborough Minor Peewees saw a 3-0 lead vanish as the local rebounded for a 9-3 win. Earlier in the week, Broadloom had a four-game win streak snapped by Trenton Legion in Eastern Ontario Baseball Association play.

Down 3-0 after three innings, Broadloom rebounded to take the lead with a four-run fourth. And from then on, it was all Belleville.

The home side hit for two in the fifth and three more in the sixth. The Peterborough team had said its piece in the early innings. And it was far from enough.

Rory MacLeod worked the first five innings for Broadloom, surrendering three runs off as many hits. He fanned three and walked five. Tony Parks finished up, limiting the visitors to one hit, striking out three and walking none while shutting off the Petes' run production.

Brent Pitman and Steve Morgan toiled for the visitors, allowing 10 hits while striking out one and walking four.

Glenn McQuaid had a triple and single for Belleville. John Dent and Don Emerson each checked in with a pair of singles. John Morrafty was top for Petes with a double and a single.

In a Wednesday EOBA Bantam match at Kingston, the hometown Lions roared over previously undefeated Trenton State Farm Insurance 8-2.

Kevin Patrick started for Trenton with Dennis Baril taking over in the second and Paul Dieterman coming on in the fourth and finishing up. Jody Rus Skeggs got the win.

Each side claimed eight base hits but the winners made the most of theirs and were aided by some questionable Trenton plays afield.

Ali Kingston hits were singles. Leading the way, were Skeggs, Wayne Burrows and Don Cyr with two each.

Tops for Trenton were Danny Hamilton with a triple and a double, and Chris Walsh who drove in both the losers' runs on third strikes.

The loss was taken by Ron Andrews and Ron Bateman, who combined to give up 13 hits and no walks while striking out five.

Kerik helped himself at the plate also for Constellation, getting a double and a triple, while Wayne May hammered out single. Bob Reid tripled and singled and Blain Mullins and Steve Gatehum both singled, doubled and tripled.

For Black Diamond, Ron Andrews singled and doubled, Terry Hiddleston singled and tripled and Ron Bateman doubled.

In the first game of the twin bill Brooke Bond just by CNRA 3-1 on the pitching talents of Tom St. Jules, his third win in a row.

He gave up only four hits in his seven innings, with one walk and four strikeouts.

The loss went to Junior Day, giving up five hits and a walk while striking out none.

St. Jules decided to take matters into his own hands at the plate also, contributing two singles to his own cause.

Clive Williams singled twice for the loser, while Mike Fabery, Bob McIlwr and Day all singled the other hits.

The win for Constellation puts them in an untouchable position, with 13 wins and no losses, while Brooke Bond moves up to within a point of Black Diamond in the leagues East Division.

Kojak Will Have Nothing on Loser

There could be a bare face (and definitely a Kojak-style hairdo) laughing out when the wrestling action is over for the night at Memorial Arena, July 4.

Friday night's shenanigans in the main event, a tag team match, produced so much variety, a challenge has been issued and the gauntlet has been taken up.

The Canadian Wildman and Tony Parisi will settle their differences in a special challenge match during the July 4 card and the loser must be shorn of his bizarre adornment. And in the case of the Wildman, that's quite a comb full.

While Stasiak and the Wildman were waging their own version of no holds barred treatment on their opponents, Billy Red Lyons and Parisi, the situation got out of hand and when the combatants chose to carry their feud to the arena floor and forget about the ring, both teams were disqualified.

As usual, friend Wildman made good use of about a mile of chain he carries with him in the ring. And this time around, he added another weapon to his arsenal. It may have been a nail. When anyone got close enough to check him out, of course, the weapon was carefully concealed.

Parisi did get in at least one good belt, literally. He let the Wildman have it with a leather belt which he had taken from a chain but it did seem to rile the vitaincus creature.

For the first time this season, women were on the card. They were tiniest, but not always popular midgets.

Bobo Brazil and Kathy McCoy won the mixed tag team match, taking the third and deciding fall from Dirty Morgan and Trudi Taylor.

In preliminary bouts, Duncan MacTavish took the measure of the Alaskan, much to the delight of the fans, and Chris Tolos won over Steve Bolas.

Who's on 3rd? It Was Busy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Perhaps the only thing missing was the bases.

"I felt like the guy in the middle of 1st street in a Mack Sennett movie," said Philadelphia third base coach Billy Demars after watching eight-inning shenanigans Friday night that helped the Phillies score four runs and beat Montreal Expos 7-4 in a National League baseball game.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates downed New York Mets 3-1, Cincinnati Reds whipped Houston Astros 7-3, San Diego Padres edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1, Atlanta Braves beat San Francisco Giants 4-3 and St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago Cubs 8-7.

With the Phillies trailing 4-3, Jay Johnstone and Mike Schmidt singled and Tony Taylor bunted for a runner to 3d base. Dale Murray replaced starter Steve Renko and Mike Rogodzinski singled to the pitcher and send to Schmidt to third.

Then, when the mental giant—and the comedy—shifted into high gear.

Phillies' manager Danny Ozark sent on Tommy Hutton to bat for pitcher Tim Underwood. Montreal manager Gene Mauch sent Fred Scherman in to replace Murray. Then Ozark countered by sending Ollie Brown up to bat for Hutton.

Brown sent a grounder to shortstop Tim Foli and Schmidt took off for home. The throw to the plate was in time to nail him—so he slammed on the brakes and retreated to third.

Schmidt, Rogodzinski and the ball all got there about the same time but the ball, thrown by catcher Barry Foote, hit Schmidt on the shoulder and bounced into left field.

Schmidt broked once more and raced home with the tie-breaking run—and got hit in the shoulder again, this time by a throw from left-fielder Tony Scott.

"I don't really know what happened," Schmidt said. "When I went into third, I threw my arms up trying to get hit.

"When I ran home, I went straight toward the catcher. Rogodzinski wound up on third and Brown made it to second.

MIKE SCHMIDT

Scherman, clearly unnerved by the goings-on, walked Dave Cash to load the bases, let Greg Luzinski to force in one run and walked Dick Allen on four pitches to force in another.

Luzinski had driven in two Phila first three runs with his 15th home run of the season in the first inning.

Richie Zisk's tie-breaking single and a three-run triple by Bennie Stennett in the ninth inning lost the Phillies 3-0 games ahead of the Phillies in the East Division and dropped the Mets into third, 4½ games back.

Tony Perez's two-run single and Cesar Geronimo's three-run triple highlighted a six-run fifth inning that led Cincinnati past Houston and enabled the Reds to widen their West Division lead to three games over the Dodgers.

San Diego's Brent Strom outdueled Don Sutton with a four hitter and rode Tito Fuentes' tie-breaking single in the sixth inning to victory over Los Angeles. Strom's only run came on a second-inning homer by Steve Garvey.

Dave May's fourth-inning homer and Vic Correll's decisive sixth-inning double carried the Braves past San Francisco in a game extended nearly two hours by rain delays.

Lee Brock lashed four hits including three doubles, stole his 42nd base, scored three runs and drove in two to help the Cardinals batter Chicago, sadding the Cubs with their 11th loss in the last 15 games.

Bahnsen No Slouch With A's

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Based on Friday night's games, only Oakland A's came out ahead on last minute sweeps of American League pitchers that took place just before baseball's June 15 trading deadline.

Stan Bahnsen, pitching for Chicago White Sox last Sunday, allowed five hits in 7 1-3 innings as the A's ran their winning streak to five games by defeating Kansas City Royals 3-1.

Dave Hamilton, the pitcher the A's traded for Bahnsen, was tagged for a three-run homer by Minnesota's Steve Brye in the first inning and took the loss as the Twins downed the White Sox 5-3.

Gaylord Perry, who dropped his first start after being traded from Cleveland Indians to Texas, couldn't hold a 4-0 first-inning lead. The Rangers later blew a three-run lead in the 11th and lost 13-11 to California Angels.

In Friday's other American League games, Boston Red Sox nipped Baltimore Orioles 4-3 in 12 innings, Detroit Tigers outpaced New York Yankees 10-9 and Milwaukee Brewers shelled Cleveland Indians 8-0.

Bahnsen brought a 44 record and 3.61 earned run average to Oakland but struck out seven—all in the first four innings—and did not walk a batter as Oakland the Royals until the seventh.

Reggie Jackson doubled home two Oakland runs off Dennis Leonard in the first inning and Claudell Washington homered in the fifth.

"I was more keyed up for this game than for any other game this season," Bahnsen said. "I have confidence with this club. You know they have defense and will score runs."

The victory gave Oakland a 15-game lead over Kansas City in the American League's West Division.

California spotted Perry a 6-0 lead in the first inning and finally rallied a second time with four runs in the 11th, the winner scoring on a two-out error.

Texas broke an 8-4 tie with three unearned runs in the top of the inning two on Tom Grieve's homer. But California came back on doubles by John Doherty and Morris Nettles, a walk, run-scoring singles by Rudy Meoli and Dave Collins and an error by rookie second baseman Mike Cubbage.

Steve Brye hit a three-run homer in the first inning to spoil Dave Hamilton's debut with Chicago. Hamilton walked two batters before Brye walloped his fifth homer of the season.

Rick Burleson's sacrifice fly in the 11th inning gave the struggling Red Sox their sixth consecutive victory. Baltimore pitcher Jim Miller walked Dwight Griffin with one out in the 12th and Juan Beniquez singled him to third before Burleson delivered his sacrifice fly.

Detroit scored seven runs on seven hits in the first inning against Rudy May and Dave Pagan of Nipawin, Sask., then barely held on for a one-run triumph when the Yankees scored six times in the ninth.

Pele Needs Protection From His Adoring Fans

BOSTON (AP) — Pele, the world's foremost soccer player, was taken out of a North American Soccer League game for security reasons Friday night after fans mobbed him.

Spectators swarmed around Pele after his goal for New York Cosmos was disallowed in a game against Boston Minutemen.

At first, it was reported that he had been injured and a stretcher was rolled onto the field.

However, a Cosmos' spokesman said later that Pele was removed from the game strictly as a precautionary move and "he was not injured."

The 34-year-old Brazilian kicked a rebound into the goal with 11:33 left and Boston in front 1-0.

As he raised his arms and danced around the field, he was besieged by happy fans who rimmed the field six deep.

The goal was disallowed as the referee ruled that New York was offside.

NHL TV Coverage

Hopes Fading For NBC Deal

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Fans phoned, they wrote, they wrote, he said. Hockey League would land a new national television contract in the United States for next season, even coming after the NHL meetings this week in Montreal.

NBC, which refused to renew the NHL's regular-season contract, has received no reply to a proposal that would ensure the league of limited exposure during the 1976 Stanley Cup playoffs.

The result is that the NHL now is off national TV after more than five seasons with CBS and NBC.

The NHL's post-season offer now is reported to be out. The NHL's Board of Governors indicated that it would turn it down if it came before them in Montreal.

It was not acted upon for two reasons, said one TV executive who sat in on the meetings. First, he said, there was a little of pride, they felt they were a small package of post-season games would not be financially rewarding enough for the effort."

The NHL's regular and post-season agreement with NBC ended the last three years paid each of the 18 teams about $185,000 annually and a contract limited to Stanley Cup games would reduce that to about $50,000 a team.

League governors felt that independent agreements and an independent network made up of interested league clubs during the playoffs would provide result.

"Despite heavy promotion by NBC and CBS when it had the contract, hockey never achieved the TV popularity on a national network that football, baseball and basketball enjoy.

Hockey does enjoy TV prosperity in some cities in the United States and throughout Canada. Games in the two cities sample where WGRS-TV channel 38, televises a minimum of 75 Boston Bruins' games each season. Philadelphia Flyers' home hockey hotbed with 36 of the Stanley Cup champion Philadelphia Flyers road games scheduled for telecast next season.

Meanwhile, Hockey Night in Canada has been an institution for more than 30 years north of the border. Last season, the Canadian Sports Network telecast 100 games involving the Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs and Vancouver Canucks.

Multi-year Contracts For Dillon And Hickey

NEW YORK (AP) The National Hockey League's New York Islanders announced Friday the signing to multi-year contracts of center Wayne Dillon and right winger Pat Hickey, both rookies, to two seasons with Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

Dillon, who had 29 goals and 95 points for the Toronto club last season was the Rangers' No. 1 selection in the NHL's draft earlier this month. Hickey, who had 34 goals and 68 points, had been chosen in the second round of the WHA's 1975 draft.

Both players have one year remaining on their WHA contracts and Rangers' general manager Emile Francis said their NHL contracts "will begin as soon as each is free of their obligations under previous agreements.

John Ruster, owner of the Toros has indicated that he will not hold Dillon and Hickey to the final year of their WHA contracts and that they will be free to join the Rangers for the 1975-76 season.

Kathy Shakes Slump

PLYMOUTH, Ind. (AP) — Kathy Ahern shrugged off a two-year slump Friday and took the first-round lead in the 940-member Ladies Professional Golf Association Hoosier tournament with a five-under-par 67 at Plymouth Country Club.

Miss Ahern, 26, played the back nine first in four-under 32 and, tiring from the heat and humidity, finished with a 35. She had five birdies and no bogeys on her round.

Veteran Marlene Bauer Hagge, 41, had a 68, but also was bothered by the heat. She fired five birdies and one bogey on the backside, then came home with a birdie and a bogey.

Toronto Not Happy With OFSSA Decision

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto delegation walked out of the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Schools Athletic Association (OFSAA) after the organization raised its fees Friday.

The provincial organization increased its fee to member schools to itself costs per pupil from three-cents, starting next term.

The Toronto Secondary Schools Athletic Association was the only regional group to vote against the hikes. When its delegates walked out, they said their association would withdraw from OFSAA.

OFSAA delegates also reduced the number of teams in the provincial basketball finals to four. The 17 group winners will play off for berths in the finals representing eastern and Toronto, northern, eastern and western Ontario.

The track and field finals, which have been held in Toronto, were moved to Sudbury in 1977 and will take place in a different city each year thereafter.

Flyers Get Chance

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Three members of the Canadian setter hockey finalists Barrie Flyers may get National Hockey League tryouts this fall. Grant Ington, top goaltender on the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Series, has been put on Washington Capitals reopposition list. Detroit Red Wings have shown an interest in Paul Regan, Memorial Cup scoring champion, and Kent Ruhnke, former University of Toronto forward.

U.S. Open Leader Waits It Out

Lightning Round for Watson

MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — Lightning-fast Tom Watson carries a three-stroke lead into today's third round of the United States open golf tournament after putting together a record-matching 36-hole total of 135.

Watson, 25, delayed the start of his second hot round, a three-under-par 68 Friday, to invoke the lightning rule to the dismay of spectators and officials of the Golf Association Officials.

"I saw a big storm was coming and I knew from a clap of thunder that lightning was only a mile away, so I waited 40 minutes before I teed off," said the chubbiest, "explained Watson, who last year let the Open escape his grasp with a final-round blowup.

"Tournament officials didn't agree, but when they went 40 the first tee with Watson's playing partners, Lee Trevino and Bobby Nichols—as Watson unlikely recalled—"Zap, lightning hit nearby."

After a 35-minute halt of tourney play, and an apology to Watson from U.S. Golf Association executive director, Watson methodically spent rain-polluted Medinah Country Club's par 71 course for the second successive day.

Watson's 36-32 effort followed an opening 67 and put him three strokes ahead of another former collegiate star, Ben Crenshaw, who also carded a 68 for a 36-hole total of 138.

Watson's 135 matched the halfway Open record set in 1960 by Mike Souchak and tied 1968 by Bert Yancey.

Among the old guard pursuers, favored Jack Nicklaus, seeking a fourth Open title and his second leg on a grand slam bid, lingered seven strokes back at par-equal 142 after rounds of 72-70.

A notch ahead in a three-way tie at 141 was another former Open champion, two-time winner Lee Trevino. He was a stroke behind Pat Fitzsimons, who also kept in contention with par 72s.

Kindred, who played junior hockey in Peterborough, missed the green only once and was forced to three-putt only once.

Only two strokes behind the leader are contenders Phil Grouxx and Jack Bissegger, and Bill Tape of Kitchener, Ont.

Among those trailing by four strokes were Moe Norman and Michel Pepin of Toronto, who won the Ontario Open last week.

Boyer was fined $25 for breaking his club in a fit of anger during Friday's round.

Also in with 76s were Jabr Morgan of Richmond, B.C., an Tom Tremblay of Brantford Ont.

Former Peterborough Golfer Leads Par-breaker Parade

LUCERNE, Que. (CP) — Par-wasn't good enough to stay with the top 20 in Friday's opening round of the Quebec open golf championship.

Led by John Kindred of Sarasota, Fla., a former Peterborough, Ont., golfer, 36 of the 160 in the field broke par while another 18 shot even par.

With temperatures in the 90s (Celsius) and a stiff breeze dying down in the early morning golfers enjoyed taking apart the par 72, 6,339-yard Riverside course located across the Ottawa River from Ottawa.

"The main hazard was falling asleep," said Edmonton pro Ro-

Canadian Team Alive

HAVANA (CP) — Canada's title hopes alive Friday in the Havana Cup basketball tournament with an impressive 88-47 win over Cuba's B team.

The win put the second of four tournament games for the Canadians, who have games left with Yugoslavia tonight and Cuba's unbeaten A team Sunday.

Lars Hansen of Port Coquitlam, B.C. sparked the Canadians with 14 points and nine rebounds. Jamie Russell of Burlington, Ont., had 15 points, Greg Rodger of Halifax 13 and Bob Town of Winnipeg 11.

A COUPLE OF HOT NEW NUMBERS
28.8 HIGHWAY MILES PER GALLON
19.2 CITY MILES PER GALLON

The 1975 cars at your Pontiac-Buick dealers are offering you good gas mileage.

Here are the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency fuel economy test results on 1975 Pontiacs and Buicks with GM's Maximum Mileage System and using unleaded gas.

The E.P.A. tests were performed on a dynamometer, a machine which simulates a number of different driving conditions. The test simulated stop-and-go urban driving and highway driving at about 50 m.p.h.

For instance, E.P.A. tests show that Buick Century with the new 231-cu-in V6 achieved the best highway mileage of any mid-size North American car tested. The test results in Imperial gallons were equivalent to:

	CITY M.P.G.	HWY. M.P.G.
Buick Century V6	19.2	28.8
LeMans/Ventura	19.2	25.2

The Buick Skylark, also with the V6 and Maximum Mileage System, got the same results (19.2 miles per gallon in the city, 28.8 on the highway). Buick Skylark, the new sporty Buick, brought in an even better result, 22.8 and 30.0! That's Buick's few V6 again.

Pontiac did well, too:

Midsize Pontiac LeMans and compact Pontiac Ventura, with an improved Six and GM's Maximum Mileage System, checked in as follows:

	CITY M.P.G.	HWY. M.P.G.
Buick LeSabre	14.4	19.2
Pontiac Parisienne	14.4	21.6
Brougham	14.4	21.6

Full-size cars? Buick LeSabre with standard 250-cubic-in V6 and Pontiac Parisienne Brougham with standard 350-cubic-in V8 both equipped with GM's Maximum Mileage System, show impressive mileage figures in their class:

What kind of mileage can you expect? You probably won't match E.P.A. results in actual driving. How close you come will depend on a number of factors. Fuel economy is affected by many factors, such as how you drive, the load you carry, optional equipment, weather conditions and where you do your driving.

Let your Pontiac-Buick dealer show you the E.P.A. fuel economy test results on the cars he sells and explain how over all operating cost may have been improved by the 1975 GM Maximum Mileage System.

Together with the trade-in price you can look forward to on your present car, it helps make a new Pontiac or Buick more affordable than you might have thought.

E.P.A. figures are not available for Pontiac Astre as equipped for sale in Canada.

IN MEMORIAM

RADFORD — In loving memory of my wonderful husband, who passed away three years ago today, June 21, 1972.
Dad to you it was another day
A word that brings to mind,
A big warm smile, a helping hand,
A way of being kind.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Pat and family.

BEARY, Percy — In loving memory of our dear husband and dad passed away 3 years ago today, June 22, 1972.
You're on my mind, you're in my heart
Where memories of a dear husband and dad
Remember all the way we were.
—Lovingly missed by your wife Bessie.

BALDWIN — In memory of a dear brother Major George Edward Baldwin who passed away June 21, 1968, a loving mother who passed away July 2, 1968 and a loving father who passed away July 3, 1968.
—Sadly missed but always remembered, Ethel Baldwin and Harold Taylor and family.

RADFORD — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Fred A. Radford, who passed away June 21st, 1971.
We often sit and think of you,
Do things with you in memory still.
Not just today but always still.
—Always remembered by the Radford Family.

LATCHFORD — In memory of a dear son-in-law and brother-in-law Carl Eugene Latchford who passed away June 22, 1971.
The years are quickly passing,
Two years have gone by now,
For in the heart that loves him,
His memory lingers yet.
—Remembered by Mom and Dad Moorcroft and Myra, Garnet and family.

LATCHFORD — In loving memory of our son and brother Carl Eugene Latchford who passed away June 22, 1971.
You suffered with courage,
We knew not your pain,
You fought for life,
But all was in vain,
God took you home,
To His garden of rest,
It is true what they say,
He takes only the best.
—Too dearly loved to be forgotten by Mom, Dad and Kathy.

Maritime Camp Grounds Being Improved Greatly

HALIFAX (CP) — Pitching camp will blackflies by the Lake remains popular for millions of North Americans visitors 20 years after the vanguard of hardy souls set up for the night in conifer covered pastures.

Inflation, especially soaring energy prices, and a growing number of jaunting campers wanting more and more conveniences have doubled operation costs for campground owners in the last 10 years or so and driven up user fees proportionately. But the demand still grows.

In Atlantic Canada and northeastern United States, swimming pools, playgrounds and electrical and sanitation hookups under the trees are changing the nature of the recreation for thousands.

The days of pitching in the core pastures are over as governments have moved in with tight campground guidelines covering such things as proper garbage and sewage disposal facilities.

The cost of a night in a campground, approaching the basic $3 compared to $1 or $2 when the first parks opened in the 1950s, can easily reach $7 or $8 in certain "destination" parks.

"Mom and dad seem to want to be able to pull in with the car and say to the kids, 'Okay, here it is,'" says Bill Bryson of the Nova Scotia tourism department, which recorded a 10.5-percent increase in camper party registrations at private sites in 1974.

He says there are private campgrounds in his province that cost $250,000 to set up.

The brief, three-month season in the Maritimes makes that kind of investment increasingly dicey.

"It costs a hell of a lot of money," said Bob Armstrong, a New Brunswick pa ks ai cial. His government tried at the outset of the campground craze to take up some of the slack when private industry was slower to develop than in other parts of the Maritimes.

Now, in areas such as Shediac Beach in southeastern New Brunswick, the province plans to limit government campground operations at private operators are moving in with more sophisticated sites.

Provincial recreation parks in New Brunswick provide electric and water services centrally located but not individual outlets.

"We're not going to turn our parks into trailer cities," Dr. Armstrong said. "If the campers want all these facilities—and that's the trend—then it's up to private industry to provide it."

Fees in New Brunswick's grounds were increased between 30 cents and $1 in 1973 and the fee structure changed so that "primitive" campsites—those without services—would cost less than those with electricity and water. The primitive sites now go for $5.50 and those with central water and electric services cost $3.50. But use of the electricity outlet costs another, separate 50 cents.

New Brunswick showed a drop in 1974 to 3.8 million campers from four million in 1973 and it is suspected the province suffered more heavily than others in the region from a general decline in visitors from the U.S. All Maritime provinces recorded greater numbers of visitors from other parts of Canada and heavier travel by provincial residents within their own boundaries.

Nova Scotia has opted completely out of the fad of co-ed facilities pa ks, leaving private operators to provide this demand. Fees at the 18 overnight campgrounds operated by the province were increased 50 cents this year to $2 under new pressure from the private sector which said it could not compete with government fees.

There are 18 provincially-run campgrounds in Prince Edward Island and a half dozen or so classifications, many of the sites centred on the province's well-known beaches. There was a 16-per-cent increase in 1974 in the number of campers.

A tourism official indicated the problem of blighted man-made recreational facilities may not have been felt as greatly in P.E.I. yet as in other parts of the Maritimes but "it's coming to that."

The province has a policy that it will not increase the total number of government sites, set at 1,300 and it has relied mainly on the beaches as a camping attractiv, with limited installed conveniences.

About 55 privately-run parks in P.E.I. provide 6,000 individual campsites.

Kampgrounds of America (KOA) a large international chain that caters to the demand for full facilities, has established one park in P.E.I. and the spokesman indicated government will leave that kind of operation entirely to private enterprise. There are KOA sites in Cape Breton and Central New Brunswick as well.

Newfoundland has only seven private campgrounds and a wide array of provincial government operations. The latter are considered "wilderness" facilities without most of the "nonsense" such as showers and other installed facilities found elsewhere.

Newfoundland charges $2 for a season entry permit to all provincial parks, including camping parks, and $1.50 a night for camping. Possible fee increases were under study this year but were not implemented at the start of the season.

Italy Approves Scheme To Stop Venice Sinking

VENICE (Reuter) — After two years of delay and bitter argument the Italian government has given the go-ahead to an ambitious plan to save Venice from sinking into the Adriatic.

Funds are finally dribbling into the city after being bid up in a morass of bureaucracy, changing governments and conflicting local interests.

Two years ago, parliament passed a special law authorizing the expenditure of 300 billion lire ($400 million) on rescuing Venice, and then bickering began about the problem.

Since then, Venice has sunk another half inch into her watery beneath. Her medieval palaces have been further eroded by pollution and her canals have turned an even darker shade of brown. But most alarming, the money voted by parliament in April, 1973, has been whittled away by inflation to little more than half its original value.

Just as the future of Venice was looking decidedly bleak, the government issued a document providing guidelines for an international Save Venice operation.

The reason for the sudden turnaround in Venice's fortunes is largely attributed to a government crisis last autumn. Then posts in the new cabinet vital to Venice were given to Republicans, the one political party dedicated to saving the city.

Chairman of the Save Venice campaign, Bruno Visentini, became finance minister, and another Republican, Pietro Spadolini, was appointed public works minister.

In contrast to a preliminary draft leaked before the last government fell, the final version of the government's blueprint forbids industrial expansion of the mainland along the northern side of the lagoon.

Most experts believe a scheme to quadruple the amount of land available for industry would have destroyed whatever precarious ecological balance existed in the lagoon.

Instead, drawing up an over-all plan for Venice, local authorities are instructed to encourage people to return to the historic centre by providing services and jobs for them to go back to.

The guidelines give some encouragement to conservationists who would like to revitalize small industries in Venice as a substitute for the giant chemical plants and oil refineries that are to be run down.

Countess Anna Maria Cicogna, whose family has lived in the city for generations, favors the development of a container port in the lagoon serviced by a network of canals in the industrial hinterland.

"Venice has one of the largest natural harbors in the world — and almost completely defended against high seas," she said. "We don't want to get rid of industry, we just want to change the colonial pattern that has exploited the city and polluted the lagoon."

The Save Venice pressure groups are less enthusiastic about the terms of an international competition to build movable barriers across three narrow entrances to the lagoon, in an attempt to stop flooding.

Some form of sea gate is needed to prevent a repetition of the floods that devasted the city in 1966, but most conservationists feel the barrages should not be narrowed any further.

"If this goes ahead, it would be a disaster," said Sir Ashley Clarke, chairman of the British Venice in Peril fund and one of the leading experts on the city.

He fears that permanent bulkheads across the entrances would prevent the tides flushing out sewage from inside the lagoon. There was a danger that the lagoon, once alive with flora and shoals of fish, would become a dead lake.

Don't Knock UFO's!

UFOs — "KLASS CONSCIOUSNESS"

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT
Copyright 1973,
Toronto Sun Syndicate

If you're going to debate about UFOs with Dr. J. Allen Hynek, be sure you've got the facts on your side. Otherwise — knockout in the first round! And you won't know what hit you.

This has been discovered by Philip Klass, a massive writer who set out to prove in a book misgivingly titled "UFOs Explained" that all UFO sightings are either mistakes (misidentifying, for example, the planet Venus for a spaceship) or hoaxes.

Klass seemed to imply that anybody who believes in UFOs — even such top scientists as Dr. Hynek — are either high-grade nitwits or suspect in other ways.

Now has come Dr. Hynek's answer — and it's a KO.

Though he speaks for himself, Hynek's views no doubt represent those of numerous other top scientists at several universities who are associated with his Centre for UFO Studies (P.O. Box 31, Northfield, Illinois 60093).

Dr. J. Allen Hynek is a respected scientist, former associate director of the Smithsonian Observatory, currently professor (and just retired as head) at the Astronomy Department, Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois.

Moreover, in addition to his academic credentials, Hynek was for 20 years scientific consultant on UFOs to the United States Air Force. It was as a result of these investigations for the Air Force that he first came to the view he holds today. Four-fifths of UFOs can be conventionally explained — but one fifth can't.

And it's this one-fifth, says Hynek, that is the biggest challenge facing science today.

As for Philip Klass, Dr. Hynek points out that six years ago Klass wrote a book called UFOs Identified in which he was sure that all UFOs were "electrical discharges of some kind." Now he calls them mistakes or hoaxes. What will it be in another book six years from now?

Hynek accuses Klass of resorting to "character defamation by innuendo" to try to discredit some impressive UFO landing cases. Without ever coming right out and saying so (because that's dangerous of course) Klass smugly hints that UFO witnesses, even when they're solid, respectable citizens, are liars out for a fast buck or notoriety.

Klass even has the effrontery, says Hynek, to debunk things which Hynek himself already debunked, without giving any credit.

Thus, the so-called "spook light" near Joplin, Missouri, which Klass insists on calling a UFO, was shown by Dr. Hynek in a 1973 published report to be a freak phenomenon by which the streetlights of a distant town (Miami, Missouri) appear to be only a few feet from the observer.

Hynek thinks what I've already debunked, asks Hynek, and not even gives credit for it!

Klass in his book claims that people are prone to see strange things in the sky and cites an experiment in which a hot air balloon launched in Iowa incited a rash of UFO reports. Dr. Hynek counters that in a similar test he conducted, also in Iowa, there were "disappointingly" few UFO reports even though the local radio station broadcast a UFO alert.

People, says Hynek, aren't as gullible as Klass seems to think.

Hynek's strongest denunciation of Klass's misreporting is when he looks at cases which he (Hynek) has personally investigated and which Klass dismisses as hoaxes. Example: The famous (in UFO circles, at least) landing at Socorro, New Mexico in 1964.

"In his first book, Klass thought this case was caused by electrical phenomena," observes Hynek, "but now he thinks it was a hoax."

To summarize briefly, the incident involved Socorro Police Cpl. Lonnie Zamora who, while on duty in his cruiser, saw a strange craft descend behind a hillside in scrub land on the outskirts of town.

Investigating, Zamora said he saw two three-feet tall kids in bubble helmets and silver coveralls scampering out of an egg-shaped UFO which was standing on a tripod landing gear.

Zamora, in a panic, rushed to his cruiser to radio for help. By the time other police arrived the UFO had taken off with a roar and streaked away.

There were physical traces left at the alleged landing site: three indentations in the soil, as though made by the tripod landing-gear; charred bushes; scorched earth.

Dr. Hynek who investigated the case meticulously for the Air Force and considers it "genuinely unexplained", laughs at Klass' theory that the whole thing was a publicity stunt to increase tourism to the town, though Klass doesn't think Zamora was party to the hoax.

"How, then," demands Hynek, "was the hoax perpetrated? How does one explain that Zamora saw a 'craft' descend from the sky?

"This would be a pretty expensive hoax. To construct a metallic craft that left burns on the ground and took off to disappear down a six-mile canyon is a hoax that would require Hollywood staging and a considerable budget.

There was a second witness, a passing motorist who saw the UFO descending. Klass claims that this witness must have been lying because — allegedly said he saw the craft after he saw Zamora's cruiser speeding toward the landing site but by that time the craft should have been on the ground several minutes. So Klass discounts this witness completely.

"But," counters Dr. Hynek, "when I talked to Opal Grinder, the Whiting gas station attendant who talked with the passing motorist at this time, this motorist reported the reverse of what Klass claims.

He saw Zamora's car some time after he saw the craft come down for a landing."

Once again, charges Dr. Allen Hynek, Klass twisted the data to serve his own end — to dismiss UFOs.

"Just as far as I'm concerned," adds Dr. Hynek, "it's a case of Klass dismissed!"

Showbiz Shorts

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Gloria Swanson, the 78-year-old movie star of a generation ago, is less then enthusiastic about some aspects of modern life. But she says she's delighted to be able to remain so blunt about it.

She is unhappy with the world in general, because "too much of it is sick, and unnecessarily so," she said in an interview.

And today's movies don't impress her:

"I don't go to see them very much because I would be embarrassed," she said. "I think what happens in them is so sordid."

One thing does make her happy, "being still vertical while so many others are horizontal."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Elvis Presley, 40, underwent two days of eye tests at Mid South Hospital this week the entertainer's physician says.

"Mr. Presley has had recurrent problems with his eyes in the past and has had treatment repeatedly," Dr. George Nicholopoulos said Thursday. He said the tests were not an emergency and did not indicate any serious problems with Presley's health or eyesight.

Officials at the hospital called the eye examination "extensive."

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — State coastal commissioners, unimpressed by some high-class lobbying, snipped an artist's proposal to stretch a white nylon fence 24 miles from near Petaluma to Valley Ford in Northern California.

The commissioners voted Wednesday against the proposed Running Fence, billed as a "geological art by Christo, the artist who strung a mammoth orange curtain across Rifle Gap, Colo.

Commission members said they were approached by directors of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art, Whitney Museum of American Art and the directors of museums in Geneva, Amsterdam and Rotterdam.

Joseph Bodovitz, commission executive director, said commissioners had been subjected to a deluge of phone calls, letters and telegrams in what was apparently a well-orchestrated lobbying effort in behalf of Christo's art project.

North and South have nine of the easiest tricks possible at no-trump, but most pairs would land at four four spades with or without West's club overall.

There are the nine tricks available at spades, but 10 are necessary.

The easiest place to find that extra trick is in hearts. Just let the suit break 3-3 and South's fourth heart will become a winner.

South can do a trifle better than that. He can guard against a 4-2 heart break provided the man with the four hearts also holds three or four spades.

This should be enough of a hint to you to find the winning line of play. If you haven't found it, here it is.

South takes the first club, plays one round of trumps, leads a heart and ducks in both hands. He can't afford two rounds of trumps—some mean opponent might lead a third. And he can't afford to play off the high hearts first—someone might get a ruff and a overruff dummy.

After this start the contract wheels in. South gets in with a diamond, leads another trump, continues with the ace and king of hearts and finally ruffs his last heart with dummy's last trump while poor East has to follow suit.

Sperm Remains After Vasectomy

By G. C. THOMESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thomeson: Can you tell me if it is true that a man who has had a vasectomy can still make a woman pregnant? I have heard there is a 99-per cent chance he could.—T. T.

A vasectomy involves the cutting of the vas deferens, a pair of ducts which transport sperm from the testes to the prostate. Some surgeons not only sever these ducts, but apply surgical clips on to the ends as an additional precaution. This is to prevent what is called "recanalization" of the ducts, as rare as that is.

But don't stop reading here.

The greater danger is my unwariness by the man that there can be a period after the vasectomy in which viable sperm cells remain in the seminal vesicle, where they are stored. It is wise, therefore, to have two or three sperm checks after the operation, and to take normal post-vasectomy precautions until the doctor has given a final clearance. It takes about 15 ejaculations to empty the vesicle of all sperm.

So, in answer to your question, I'd say that with the development of surgical techniques in this area over the years the chances of a properly vasectomized man impregnating a woman are minimal.

But one learns never to say never in medicine. An even more minuscule chance of a vas duct regenerating new pathways cannot be entirely dismissed.

Dear Dr. Thomeson: Recently, a member of my family nearly lost his life hemorrhaging because of a duodenal ulcer, which he didn't know he had. He had been going through a great deal of domestic turmoil and hadn't taken care of himself with regard to diet and rest for some time.

If he makes a good effort to calm himself and eats properly, will he be able to heal the ulcer for good? What is the risk involved if he has to have an operation?—E. M. S.

Your relative was probably a small step away from the last stage of ulcer development—perforation.

An ulcer begins as an irritation of the lining. Untreated, it may bleed, or it can work its way gradually into the lining, and in time it may penetrate to the depth that results in perforation. Heavy bleeding can occur, depending on the size of the eroded blood vessel.

Yes, preventive measures are, of course, in order immediately, including a careful diet and attempts to quiet any emotional storms brewing in his life.

Yes, it may be necessary for him to have surgery to repair any damage at the ulcer site. If that is needed, he should not hesitate to have it done. Surgeons can.

Dear Dr. Thomeson: Can you tell me the function of the spleen? If a spleen is removed, can a person function normally? If a child of nine years of age has a spleen removed, will he be able to live a normal life?—Mrs. E. G.

The spleen, located in the upper left portion of the abdomen, is a peculiar organ in that while its functions are quite important, it can be removed with no apparent effects on health.

In the unborn child it produces red blood cells, a task that in adult life is taken over by the bone marrow. In adults it is a reservoir for blood, and also produces certain antibodies.

But despite its functions, it can be removed in cases of enlargement, rupture, and certain blood disorders, and the patient can go on living a normal life. However, in the specific case you mention, it would be important to know the reason for the removal of the spleen in order to predict the future.

Reporters Tour Morgentaler Jail

WATERLOO, Que. (CP) — Thirty reporters toured the Waterloo rehabilitation centre Friday, where convicted abortionist Dr. Henry Morgentaler has been serving an 18-month jail term.

The visit was arranged by Justice Minister Jerome Choquette, who earlier described media coverage of Dr. Morgentaler's prison experience as "a publicity stunt full of platitudes." Dr. Morgentaler has complained of unfair treatment.

During the two-hour tour, reporters interviewed several guards and prisoners. Dr. Morgentaler was transferred to the six-year-old centre last month from Montreal's Bordeaux Jail where he began his sentence March 27.

Dr. Morgentaler was taken from the centre to hospital Monday when he suffered a mild heart attack after an argument with guards. He had been placed in solitary confinement following the incident.

The solitary confinement cell, known as the "hole," was the first stop on the reporters' tour. It was found to be a stark room, measuring seven-by-nine feet, with a straw mattress and open toilet wedged under a sink.

Prisoners interviewed by reporters said the 23-year-old doctor was "picked on" by guards. They described the doctor as very nice.

"It seems the guards have something against him," one said. "He demands his rights more than anyone else and they're afraid of him."

Prisoners who witnessed the argument between Dr. Morgentaler and a group of guards which led to his solitary confinement said the doctor was provoked.

The argument broke out after the doctor was ordered to strip naked by one of the guards, said another prisoner. Dr. Morgentaler, infuriated by the demand, threw his underwear in the guard's face. He was then carried naked by his arms and legs to an isolation cell.

When Mon Must Give a Hoot Beneath Kilt Is Bathing Suit

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

More than 2,000 people turned up at th fairgrounds Sunday to find out what a Scotsman wears under his kilt.

As part of an air display at the sixth annual Kinsmen Tattoo two kilt-garbed parachutists made a skilled descent amid heavy winds and between utility wires and landed within feet of the designated bullseye.

Terry Macklan, Kinsmen organizer of the event, had promised the kilt question would be answered ... and it was.

The high-flying Scots wore green-striped, nylon bathing suits under their traditional kilts.

Slain Man's Associate to Testify

Senators to Question Mobster's Friend

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Roselli, a West Coast underworld figure and associate of slain Chicago mobster Sam Giancana in a reported plot against Fidel Castro, is being called before the Senate intelligence committee.

Roselli, appearing in response to a subpoena, is expected to be asked about reports that he and Giancana were approached on behalf of the CIA to arrange for Mafia members to assassinate Castro.

Giancana, who also had been expected to testify, was shot to death in his home in a Chicago suburb last week.

Also expected to testify is William Harvey, a former CIA official who reliable sources have said was involved in plots to kill Castro.

Time says CIA officials began exploring the possibility of killing Castro in the spring of 1960 when suggestions were put forth that the premier's food or cigars be poisoned.

The news magazine says Giancana and Roselli were approached to find a man in Havana to liquidate Castro. The two Americans in turn recruited a gangster with access to Castro.

Meanwhile, the CIA's medical section produced some exotic pills and even "fixed" a box of Havanna cigars. The cigars never left the CIA lab but the pills were sent to Miami, Time says.

The would-be assassin was to be paid $150,000 if he succeeded. A few thousand dollars in earnest money was turned over to him.

But no one knows what happened to the pills or to the hit man, Time says.

A substitute plotter later claimed to have put two separate three-man teams of infiltrators ashore in Cuba. But if he did so, nothing was ever heard of them, Time says.

Meanwhile, Harvey was asked in 1961 to explore methods of neutralizing Castro through "executive action," a method that included defamation, bribery or assassination. Time says Harvey had actively only to explore and give advice.

It was unclear whether any action ever resulted from Harvey's research.

Amin Plans Statement About Fate of Briton

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ugandan President Idi Amin promised an announcement today about the fate of condemned British lecturer Denis Hills, following a meeting with his military defence council.

Hills, 61, was scheduled to face the firing squad today for writing in an unpublished manuscript that Amin was a "village tyrant."

But Amin called off the execution following a meeting with two British military officers sent from London with an appeal for clemency from Queen Elizabeth.

A broadcast from Kampala, the Uganda capital, indicated that Hills remained under a death sentence.

Radio Uganda said Amin met Saturday with Lt.-Gen. Sir Chandos Blair and Maj. Iain Grahame, his former commanders in the King's African Rifles, and James Hennesty, the British high commissioner to Uganda, at Amin's tribal home 300 miles northwest of Kampala.

The Britons entered Amin's house "on their knees," said the broadcast. But British officials in London said Amin's village home is a traditional thatched cottage with a doorway so low that "even Amin has practically to get on his knees to enter."

"Far from being humiliated, they were treated as honored guests by President Amin," one official said.

Amin and the three Britons then flew back to Kampala and went to see Hills.

The broadcast said Hills told them "if given the chance he wanted to apologize for anything objectionable" in his manuscript and that he believes Amin "has improved the situation in Uganda."

Inflation Major Problem

Budget May Impose Short-term Freeze

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister John Turner delivers his fifth budget in 3½ years tonight in an atmosphere of inflation, recession and unemployment.

At 8 p.m. EDT, the 46-year-old minister begins delivery of the budget to what should be a packed House of Commons.

The challenge to Mr. Turner is expected to be tough as he is faced with the highest unemployment rate in 14 years and an 11-per-cent cost-of-living increase in the last year.

The budget—the second in seven months—is expected to contain a promise to slow the rate of government spending as a way of moderating inflation. Total government spending has risen faster since 1970 than the total value of all production in the economy.

The document probably will announce price increases for crude oil and natural gas. Gasoline and home heating fuel could increase in price by six to eight cents a gallon but it probably will be one or two months before consumers will have to pay during the higher prices.

In another move aimed at restraint, the budget may contain provisions for a small increase in personal income tax or a short-term wage and price freeze.

But with unemployment affecting more than 700,000 workers, there will probably be measures aimed at increasing business investment and providing more money for housing.

More money for housing—perhaps up to $600 million—and more tax incentives for builders are considered likely as ways to take further the recent recovery in housing construction.

It is possible the grant for first-time homebuyers will be increased from the current $500 and the government may extend a tax measure designed to encourage construction of rental units.

Delivery of the budget by Mr. Turner is expected to be over in about 1½ hours, but the debate on its contents will last for six parliamentary days. Opposition party spokesmen will make immediate replies to the speech but the debate will begin in earnest Wednesday.

Tuesday is St. Jean Baptiste Day, an official holiday in Quebec, and the Commons does not sit that day.

But opposition criticism of the government's performance on the economic front began late in the week in anticipation of the budget.

Sinclair Stevens, the Progressive Conservative finance critic, issued a 75-page economic review on Thursday, which said Mr. Turner's four previous budgets had contributed to the current state of the economy.

Ed Broadbent, NDP parliamentary leader, said in a statement Friday that U.S. and Canadian figures on wage increases are not comparable.

He questioned Mr. Turner's contention that wage increases here are running at a rate almost double those in the U.S. and are the primary cause of high inflation.

Preparations for the budget presentation have involved about 600 people, including secretaries, economists and printers, all of whom worked in an atmosphere aimed at keeping the document secret until its release time.

Fewer than a dozen of the top officials in the finance department know the entire contents.

After being sent to the Queen's Printer in nearby Hull, Que., early Saturday, copies were flown under guard to Bank of Canada and revenue department offices across the country today, mainly by the armed forces.

The budget itself and background documents will be distributed to representatives of provincial governments, news organizations, large companies and accountancy firms late today before the minister begins his speech tonight.

The 8 p.m. start of the speech is fixed to follow the close of financial markets across the country's six time zones.

The only people to get an advance peek at the budget are reporters and a dozen opposition party MPs. The reporters see the documents seven hours in advance to permit them the time to write news stories but they do so in a guarded room at the government's Conference Centre in downtown Ottawa.

As for Mr. Turner himself—he made the final decisions late last week and spent the weekend relaxing with his wife and four children, playing some tennis and going over the speech a few times.

Italian Reds Not Asking Role In Government

PARIS (AP) — The head of Italy's Communist party says it does not plan to demand a place in the national government yet despite its success last week in country-wide local elections.

"We are fighting today for changes in orientation," Secretary-General Enrico Berlinguer said in an interview with the French party newspaper L'Humanite.

He said the party wants to make others realize that "without the Communists and without their strength and their ideas, none of the problems facing the country can be resolved."

Strawberries Finance Campaign for Change

A strawberry social and bake sale on Sunday, June 29, will kick off a fund drive by Concerned Parents of Korie School, David Shoots, chairman of the group, says.

Funds from the social at the Ameliasburgh Township Hall will be used to pay legal fees already incurred in the recent effort to reinstate Eugene Bright as principal of the Korie school. Although a replacement has been named and Mr. Bright has accepted a position in another school, "The struggle has only begun," said Mr. Shoots.

Proceeds in excess of the legal fees will go for promotion and publicity aimed toward persuading members of the administration and Board of Education in Prince Edward County, the chairman said.

Committee members are also studying legislation affecting parent groups with a view to bringing in changes in either existing legislation or a new integration of it, or both, the chairman said.

Mr. Shoots dislikes the fact that existing legislation allows the Board of Education to meet secretly at its own discretion in "closed" committees of the whole" sessions. Another weakness, according to Mr. Shoots, is that when members of the group sought to get copies of Board minutes recently they found no record of the "closed" session in the minute book at the Board Office in Bloomfield.

"Due to practices such as these, contacts are being made with parent groups elsewhere in the province in the hope of an effort to bring grass roots democracy back into education," he said.

Hastings Road Workers Back on Job After Seven-week Strike

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hastings County road workers are back on the job today after a seven-week strike — the first labor walkout in the county's history.

The strike formally ended Saturday afternoon after the workers — members of Local 793, International Union of Operating Engineers — ratified a new, one-year contract.

The agreement was reached between union and county negotiators Friday.

No details of the new contract were immediately released.

Carl Bateman, county treasurer-administrator, said by mutual agreement publication of the contract was withheld until it was circulated to county council which meets Tuesday in Belleville.

But both he and Phil Gauthier, union area officer, described the agreement as a "reasonable settlement".

The new contract expires March 20, 1976.

Some 25 roads maintenance employees struck May 6, seeking higher pay.

Among their demands was a catchup hourly payment to put them on par with wages paid employees in similar jobs in other municipalities in Belleville — Peterborough area.

This was estimated at an average $1.21 an hour — on top of an extra 54 cents asked for all categories.

They also wanted better overtime pay schedules. At the start of the strike, union officials said the men were paid time-and-a-half overtime after 35 hours. The union wanted this lowered to 40 hours.

At one point during the dispute workers were barred by a court injunction from picketing a road reconstruction project on County Road 18, that runs east from Belleville through Thurlow Township. The injunction was overturned this month by the Ontario Supreme Court. Work was subsequently halted on the road.

Dispute Over Wages Halts Work at Pointe Anne

Union workers today halted work on demolition of the Pointe-Anne-Lafarge plant at Point Anne.

The dispute involves operators of demolition equipment who are members of Local 793 International Union of Operating Engineers.

Pall Gauthier, area union officer, said the strike stems from the refusal of the demolition contractor to pay full going rates to all equipment operators on the site.

The company holding the demolition contract is a United States firm, Standard Machine and Equipment.

Earlier in the year the company did pay full local rates to some crane operators on the project, said Mr. Gauthier.

The rate for such a job is about $8.30 an hour, he said.

A picket was placed on the work site this morning.

Dairy Farming Tops List

The dairy industry continues to be the dominant form of farming in Prince Edward County, says Larry Mathason, agricultural representative with the ministry of agriculture and food, Picton.

He attributes the interest in dairying to a decline in prices during the past year for products in alternative farm enterprises such as beef and grain. Mr. Matheson says that during this time the price of milk has increased and dairy producers have come closer to covering their input costs than farmers engaged in other enterprises.

Dairy farmers in Prince Edward County shipped close to 77 million pounds of milk last year, an increase from the previous year, commentated Mr. Matheson, and that dairying is the county returned producers over $7.5 million last year.

Hillcrest Honors Popular Teacher

During a long teaching career Marie Emerson aided the education processes of hundreds of youngsters.

She also won the admiration and affection of her students' community as she suddenly discovered Saturday night.

The discovery came as residents of Hillcrest joined with Mrs. Emerson's fellow teachers to give her a celebratory sendoff at the end of 29 years' education service.

Scene of the event was Hillcrest public school — Mrs. Emerson has taught there for 22 of her 29 teaching years.

In a this-is-your-life presentation she was re-introduced to many of the people whose futures her teaching touched. Included in the neighborhood turnout were many of her former pupils — whose studies dated from the days when Hillcrest was still a rural township school.

A native of Holloway — where she still lives — Mrs. Emerson taught for seven years in Huntingdon and Thurlow township before the first phase of her career.

After leaving the settled down to raising five children — whose families now have given her 14 grandchildren — before returning to teaching in the early 1960s.

She was sent to Hillcrest and stayed at the school as the neighborhood was established and its schoolhouse became part of the city, then county education system. What was once a two-room schoolhouse has since grown to six and Mrs. Emerson has been teaching in one of its innovations — an open area.

Her popularity is of long standing.

"When the kids (former students) get out of high schools and university they're always dropping in to say hey," said Elaine Lawlor, who has taught with Mrs. Emerson for five years. "It's something I've never seen with any other teacher."

But time has not been without its changes, agreed Mrs. Emerson herself, particularly as far as young people are concerned.

"These days youngsters appear more free, less disciplined — at home and school.

"I don't think that's all bad, however," she adds. "But I think they need more guidance to make their choices."

Skirl of the Pipes Draws Crowd of 2,000

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

More than 200 senior citizens joined a crowd of over 2,000 people viewing the Highland Tattoo, Sunday afternoon.

The Tattoo, for the sixth year sponsored by the Kinsmen, drew squeals of joy and laughter from the appreciative crowd.

Guests of the Kinsmen for the day, the senior citizens were transported to the Tattoo by a special bus arranged by the local club.

The nine bands performing in heavy wool kilts, the audience an even the runners in the First Kinsmen International Mile had to withstand intense sun and heat throughout the long afternoon.

The first name to become engraved on the trophy, and the winner of the event was John Sheppard of Quinte Secondary School, receiving a plaque and banner for his efforts.

After a competition, during which the bands performed individually before the judges and grandstand, and a selecting played by the massed pipes and drums, prizes for the best bands were awarded.

Drum Major John Neill, of the Rob Roy Pipe Band, winner of the past five drum major competitions did not enter this years event, piping as the judge.

A woman was entered in the drum major contest for the first time. Sally Little, of the Kinsmen Balmoral Girls Pipe Band competed, but did not win.

The winners were: Cobourg Legion Pipe Band, Cobourg; Best Performing Band; Kinsmen Balmoral Girls Pipe Band, Oshawa; Best Women's Band; Brighton Branch 189 Royal Canadian Legion, Brighton; Best Veteran's Band; the "500" Gordon Pipers, Indianapolis, Indiana; Best Dressed Band; William Butterfield of the Napanee and District Pipe Band was selected best drum major.

Parade Popular

Children, some on parents shoulders others perched on top of any available high point, joined thousands of spectators for Saturday evening's Highland Tattoo Parade, sponsored by the Kinsmen.

In the sixth annual kickoff to Belleville Quinte Highland weekend, eight pipe bands, toured down Front and Bridge streets, before terminating the march in front of the Armory.

The bands, travelling from all over Ontario and one band, The "500" Gordon Pipers, from Indianapolis, Indiana, were well received by the crowd estimated to be more than 2,500 people.

Police then closed Bridge Street, between Pinnacle and Church streets, to vehicular traffic while the crowd watched a combined band from CFB Trenton, the Pipes and Brass performed the Retreat.

The Retreat, a ceremonial march having its origins in early military history, was well received by the enthusiastic crowd which was soon caught up in traditional music and dance of the Scottish Highlands.

The "500" Gordon Pipers, competing against eight other pipe bands during the Highland Tattoo, this weekend, marched away with the Best Dressed Band award. The Pipers travelled all the way from Indianapolis, Ind., for the event, where they are the official band for the Indianapolis 500 motor speedway. The band was well received by the appreciative audience which endured intense heat and sun throughout the afternoon.

Fire Damage Minor

A Sunday morning fire that caused about $200 damage in the kitchen of a Bellville home was blamed on a frying pan, a fire department official said.

Firemen were called to the home of Albert Phillips, 15 Murney St. when fire broke out in kitchen cupboards.

The official said firemen were told a frying pan had become overheated and its hot grease had splattered the cupboards when it was placed in a sink.

Telling Tales

Jan Martin, a local high school student reads to children during story hour in Corby Library, Saturday. As part of the children's summer program, the session will be switched to Tuesday beginning July 8.

Better Late Than Never Says Grad

Mae Thomson always wanted to be part of the nursing profession, she says.

But she had to wait. In the interim there was a family to raise.

Saturday she realized her ambition as she received her one-year certificate as a nursing assistant from Loyalist College.

But Mrs. Thomson's case is more typical than uncommon these days, as mature women increasingly turn to careers.

Husbands and families were among the audience at the college's sixth convocation Saturday that included graduation of Loyalist's nursing and nursing assistant programs.

"I always wanted to be a nurse," said Mrs. Thomson, RRT, Belleville, a housewife and mother of four children ranging in ages from 17 to six years.

"I said once all the children went to school I would like to take up the ambition."

Now she hopes to find a job involving her finally-accomplished career in the fall.

Nursing classes no longer are limited to the image of young girls seeking their first career, agreed an instructor of Loyalist's nursing program. Increasingly, "mature students" are joining the classes.

"Things have changed," said the veteran professional.

In fact, two married women with families were among the nursing graduates who received special awards for proficiency.

Audrey Marsland, of Trenton, and Doris M. Bousfield, of the Frankford area, were presented with silver trays from local hospitals in recognition of their study accomplishments.

The graduates from the nursing programs were among 215 students — including the college's retraining and technology schools — involved in the convocation, the second this year.

Graduation exercises had to be held in two separate phases for lack of facilities. Some 600 students were involved in the earlier exercise.

Saturday's exercise also saw graduation of the first class of nurses since nursing programs were switched to community colleges two years ago.

Also receiving nursing proficiency awards were Judith A. Wilkinson, Harwood; Christine E. Wallace, Harrowsmith, and Norah M. Edwards, Deseronto.

Other achievement awards: Atkinson Foundation Bursaries — Cheryl L. Holland, Elizabeth Shorey, Belleville; Judge J. C. Anderson award — Peggy Schoenhals, Belleville; School of Retraining faculty awards for highest standing — Linda Hatts, Edwin Herby, Jennifer Hamilton, Jennifer Cole, Robert J. Power, Jane Veenstra, Judith Brennan, Bonnie D. Dennison. Best over-all student (technical) Nancy Stevens. Best over-all student (commercial) — Frank Robert Baker; Quinte and District Labor Council most significant progress award — Yvonne M. Pringle. Austin Gregory Memorial awards — Eva Chopiany, Ida Ridder.

Degree Only Beginning Says Chief Nurse

Education these days doesn't necessarily end with a graduation, Loyalist college students were cautioned Saturday.

In an "ever-changing world" there is a need for continuing learning to maintain competence, said Joan Macdonald, director of the College of Nurses of Ontario.

Basic education provides only the "building blocks" for the future and it takes time and on-the-spot testing to appreciate the special needs which may be required in a career, she said.

Miss Macdonald was key note speaker at the college's ninth convocation — the second such exercise this year at Loyalist.

Saturday's events brought diplomas and awards to 215 technology, retraining and nursing school students.

It also saw graduation of the first class of nurses trained at Loyalist, since nursing programs were switched to community colleges two years ago.

Change can sometimes be interpreted as chaos, said Miss Macdonald, but such "chaos" can also be creative, commitment and recognition for personal exellence are stabilizing forces during such change.

"As you take the next step in your career, identify your strengths and weaknesses and strive for excellence in each — the best you can do, not perfection," she said.

Community Centre Future Awaits Township Action

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

SHANNONVILLE — More than 18 months after it was first proposed, Tyendinaga Community Centre still is a flourishing concern, say its organizers.

It could even be improved further, believes Jack Ellis, but that, he says, depends on the co-operation of Tyendinaga Township council.

And so far, the municipality's response hasn't been "encouraging", says Mr. Ellis, president of the community group here that started a project now involving youth, senior citizens and a lending-library.

The problem:

— The centre was created from a former schoolhouse, vacated when the Hastings County Board of Education centralized facilities at nearby Tyendinaga public school two years ago.

Mr. Ellis and others formed a group and got a lease for a token annual $1 from the board. But the understanding was the building would be bought by the end of this year for a maximum $7,500.

— Mr. Ellis says provincial funding under the Community Centres Act is available to help with the purchase. But to qualify the township would have to take title to the project.

Overtures have been made to the township council but the "response so far hasn't been encouraging," says the president, brother of Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

However, he says his group will approach council again and maybe even see if school authorities would extend the lease until the dilemma is sorted out.

Meantime, the centre continues to run special fund-raising events to keep the project going.

The centre was created by voluntary help out of the three-room schoolhouse.

The conversion produced a games room, a library and facilities that permit weekly dances and a rendezvous for senior citizens.

It has provided local youth with a recreation facility, says Mr. Ellis.

Last winter, the ongoing conversion received a major boost when the federal government approved a $12,000 Local Initiatives Program grant for the centre.

"The grant really put us on our feet in remodelling", says Mr. Ellis.

Now "this is a model community centre in every way. If we hadn't taken it over the building probably would have become derelict."

However, a way must be found to assure the project's future.

If council doesn't respond, Mr. Ellis admits he's "apprehensive" of that future.

One solution might be to get council and school authorities together to discuss terms, he says.

Some advice on future career attitudes was included in speech to Loyalist College students Saturday, by Joan Macdonald, director, College of Nurses of Ontario. She was key speaker at college convocation.

Misguided Support for Reds from World's Liberal Academics

The Pattern of Communist Takeovers by Force Is Emerging in Portugal

Portugal's quick slide from fascism to near-communism is already justifying the fears of old-fashioned politicians and the military in the non-Communist world, that when the right wing is strong, then goes, communism can't be far behind.

But the course of the swift change emphasizes another more pressing and possibly serious sign, the determination of the Communists to take hold, especially against a free vote in favor of democratic socialists who want radical change without dictatorship.

Portugal's first free election in 48 years held in early May, gave the Socialists 38 per cent of the vote and 115 seats in the 247-member assembly.

The popular Democrats were second with 26 per cent of the vote and the Communists trailed far behind with 12.5 per cent, giving them a mere 30 seats.

Those leaders, removed from Portugal like civil liberties during the long Salazar and Marcelo Caetano dictatorships, were restored and represented chiefly by the Socialist newspaper Republica.

And in Africa, from where many of the ideas for a Portuguese-leading Portugal had come from, the Communists would be allowed to seek its own future course.

Other than the important impact of Africa, the Portuguese political upheaval was and its mains very much like those of Eastern European countries before the Communists took it all over by sheer force, notes they could not be in charge any other way.

In Poland, a socialist farmers' party which was supposed to form a coalition with the Communists was expunged. Its leader was hustled into exile as early as 1946, the year after the war ended.

Democratic Socialist parties in Hungary, Rumania and of course in Czechoslovakia where they had regained power after the Second World War were wiped out by the force of arms of the Communists who otherwise would have won power.

All that was nearly 30 years ago. Yet the classic pattern is emerging again in Portugal, this time through a young officer clique in the military committed to Marxist ideas, determined to unseat the Socialist majority.

The newspaper Republica has been taken over by Communist-inclined printers. Press freedom taken away by the Pacelli government has been taken away again by those who would form a Communist state.

When Portugal's Communist leader came back after almost 40 years in exile, that was indication enough his years of conspiracy would prove a very definite match for progressive Portuguese who wanted to bring changes through elections processes.

Overseas, the world's liberal intellectuals are making the same disastrous mistakes as previous dupes of the Communist-dominated military in rule over the elected civilians, as they did with the Spanish republic during the civil war.

All power to the Communist junta is again the message of academics and scholars, the first who must knuckle under, or else, when the Communists come to town.

One Canadian scholar recently wrote that countries like Portugal are being developed and democratic processes have broken in Canada, Sweden and the United States cannot apply in Portugal.

At a recent conference full of arrogance and swagger, The Russian scholar, Mr. Medvedev with such free-thinking intellectuals!

Pre-Hustings Signals

Political interest in the Quinte area is keen at the moment. There was the visit of the Prime Minister of course, and provincial Liberal leader Robert Nixon has been here in recent days.

Mr. Nixon has been waxing hot about loss of local control at the administrative level. He sees a growth of bureaucracy, along with centralization, and consequently loss of touch at the local level.

Would things be any different under the Liberals? Mr. Nixon does not get down to specifics . . . does he intend for Toronto to dismantle such regional entities as exist? And wouldn't this simply be turning back the clock, if not creating still other difficulties?

Oh yes, it's easy to pick holes in the policies of those who govern, but effecting any marked improvement simply by changing horses is another thing. New faces and new policies may be alright for a while, but how much farther ahead are we in the end?

Social Credit is stepping up its efforts in this area too. It has an attractive and outspoken candidate in Nancy Arnold for the riding of Hastings-Peterborough and the party's image will get some polishing with the holding of both federal and provincial contentions in Belleville in September.

There is still no word of an election date, but the Conservative party has a big gun in John Diefenbaker coming to Picton shortly. It will adds up to mutual interest between politicians and the public in the Quinte area.

Sooner or later it will come to full flower with the calling of the election and then the speeches and the image-making will begin in real earnest.

A Destructive Mixture

Vandalism, meaning the wanton destruction of property, is by definition a very old problem.

It is a destructive mix of the various bogies of the mind and whatever cycle of the behavioral, or social, or community phenomenon happens to be preying on them at any given time.

In short, a youth — and it is an affliction of youth for the most part — may be lonely, frustrated, or plain mad for any number of reasons and if there is no balancing element of moral ability or respect for individual or community property, then the result often is what we know as vandalism.

It's a disease of the mind, part intrinsic, part reaction from outside circumstances.

There's an echo, not exactly of vandalism but of the frustrations of our society in an article on Bruno Gerussi in Weekend magazine in which the actor and star of the Beachcombers tells of his father. A bricklayer by trade who had had ambitions to be a concert violinist. And for this reason a man, as Gerussi recalled, for whom there was no place . . . "in this dull, organized society." Frustrated by the daily routine and pressures, the senior Gerussi's last days were spent in a mental institution from which he escaped twice and finally he was found dead somewhere, a suicide.

There are similar tales of desperation in Barry Broadfoot's "Ten Lost Years" — a chronicle of Depression times in Canada.

And there is this spin-off manifestation of psychological distress in our own time known as vandalism. Like that trail of destruction along Belleville's College Street recently. And there was that bizarre incident at Niagara Falls, N.Y., which saw a young couple literally thrown into the river by two men; isn't that another story of our perplexing times?

Actor Gerussi meanwhile speaks eloquently of the human condition, seen from the standpoint of one who remembers the war years as a young boy and the accompanying realities of racial discrimination because of his European background.

A no-nonsense type of man, Gerussi might well see eye-to-eye with a plan of fellow British Columbians in Surrey who are threatening to shave the heads of vandals. But he would see it also as part of the wider problem of a troublesome society; of people as objects or numbers in an organized, institutionalized world that rejects the people — and he was thinking here of his father — who are not wanted.

Oshawa Times

Every 10 minutes this summer, people in New York City's Times Square will be treated to the smiling fare of Claude Bennett, Ontario's minister of industry and tourism. The film, promoting the province, will show the minister as one of Ontario's famous "personalities."

The discovery of this bit of self-promotion caused some light moments in the Legislature. Mr. Bennett seemed to think it was all great fun.

"I'm afraid I had to miss this morning's session — indigestion, you know."

Swedes Now Top British as News Readers

Brockville Recorder and Times

The Swedes have replaced the British as the world's champion newspaper readers, according to the latest survey conducted by the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). It is encouraging to learn there are more daily newspapers in the world today than ever before and despite the growth of television, newspapers are still going strong.

These are but a few of the facts one can glean from the 1,339 page volume of the UNESCO survey. Worldwide, it notes, more people than ever before are being reached by the media. In terms of numbers of titles and circulation per 1,000 population, the daily press keeps pace with world population and continues to have more dailies and periodicals than any other region in the world. The press is now 300 years old but people read makes a more lasting impression than what they hear by radio or see on TV and they still rely on newspapers and periodicals to confirm news and to present views.

The survey also reveals that in 50 countries news agencies are run as "organs of the state." In 40 other nations the agencies are co-operative associations, owned and run by the newspapers, and sometimes by radio and TV firms. But private companies still publish newspapers in most countries. The United States, second largest newsprint producer after Canada, consumes more than three times its own annual production of three million metric tons. Daily newspaper circulation in the U.S. runs to more than 63 million. Canada's total is not listed.

In addition to its references to newspapers, radio and television, the UNESCO survey also notes that 17 Asian nations produce more than half the world's feature films and the Russians are the most avidest moviegoers. U.S. film making produces around 280 titles annually now compared to 350 about 15 years ago, before the impact of television hit the movie industry. And of note is the fact that more than 25 per cent of the earnings of U.S. movies now come from foreign sources.

It seems that while the world shrinks, the media grows.

Party Political Slogans

Oshawa Times

After the sneering at The Land Is Strong theme (that was Pierre Trudeau's minority Liberal government in 1972) we thought the old campaign slogans would be quietly interred for a couple of elections.

But now the Ontario New Democrats, who have in the past steered clear of advertising agencies have picked a slogan for the next provincial election — Tomorrow Starts Today.

(And as some was quipped as an election was called some years ago may the best advertising agency win.)

Premier Bill Davis and his Progressive Conservatives are probably going to stand on a "Today" platform so there is no doubt come up with Catch A Job Today.

Bob Nixon and the Liberals can't let the opposition parties get away with all the todays so they could come up with Today is the Tomorrow you worried about Yesterday (or something like that).

And Sid Handlin of the Social Credit Party running about one campaign late could dig up the chestnut that was once posted over the door of a funeral home — Eventually Why Not Now?

Canada's Transport Hodgepodge

Montreal Gazette

There is much more framework than policy in the hodgepodge served up by Jean Marchand in Ottawa under the title, "Transportation policy: A framework for transport in Canada."

True, the minister of transport is going to have a $25 million ice-breaking freighter built. True, too, he is going to refer the Canadian Transport Commission to "establish rate on rapeseed products at minimum compensatory levels." So we know where he stands on ice-breaking cargo vessels and rapeseed.

But the rest of his speeches, policy papers and working documents are short on specific intention, long on sonny analyses and turns of phrase that may or may not mean something, such as, "In fact, Canada is, and will likely continue to be a mix of the marketplace and the frontier."

His department has, however, become seized of the importance of the Northern Vision, introduced to the rest of the country by John Diefenbaker in his triumphal campaign in 1958.

The "framework" document confirms that "we are thus experiencing a new phase in the development of the nation; we are entering upon the next major expansion of Canada's from the developed and mature areas of the South towards the underdeveloped riches of the North."

There is a great deal of this kind of generalizing about the nature of Canada and the essential role of transportation in developing the country. That actual policy decisions prove elusive. We are warned that a couple of the working documents — on passenger and freight systems — "will be updated on a continuous basis," so we cannot be sure when they will reach that degree of updatedness that would warrant decision-making. We are told that there are developed and mature transport systems, that could best be trusted to competitive exploitation on commercial rules, and developing spheres that had perhaps better be left to government, but it is not too clear which is which.

Perhaps Mr. Marchand's document effusions have been regarded as the burial ground of the hitherto protected set of transport interests, looking toward the end of the Trudeau election campaign of last year. Gone is the project of establishing a new rail passenger Corporation, pulling together CN and CP Canadian passenger services. Gone is the project of establishing a new rail passenger Corporation, pulling together CN and CP Canadian passenger services. Now we are to rely on CN-CP "pooling" and some sort of government assistance for passenger-carrying trains in the Windsor-Quebec corridor.

Indeed, most of the specific proposals of that election campaign — remember inter-city super-jet service — seem to have withered on the vine. There is an odd statement in the new documentation, to the effect that bus travellers pay their way, and that air and rail travellers do not because they are subsidized by government aid; but it is difficult to believe that bus passengers pay their full share of provincial highway construction and maintenance. Maybe this is not considered a subsidy because Ottawa does not pay it.

The 'British Sickness' Could Strike Canada in the Days Ahead

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The tens of thousands of Canadian visitors to Britain this summer could well be getting a glimpse into Canada's economic future.

There are differences in degree, and there's a certain time-lag nevertheless the parallels are striking.

—Both the pound sterling and the Canadian dollar have been among the weakest in the industrialized world recently . . . the British are reluctant to hold too much of either, because of the poor economic performances of the two countries.

—Wage settlements in both have been very high. In Britain, annual increases are averaging more than 30 per cent, and the average has been 16 per cent—roughly twice the U.S. rate, even though productivity has been growing much less than in Canada.

—Prices have been rising rapidly despite the business slowdown. The U.K. inflation rate is 25 per cent and still climbing, Canada's has fallen back from above 11 per cent to just under eight per cent, but there are plenty of signs that it may take off again before long.

—Guess which country this applies to:

"We have too much irrelevant or interfering legislation, too much nannying of a basically vigorous people, too much so-called democracy exercised by activist minorities outside Parliament, and too little respect for Parliament itself in its ability to enforce the rules that are really needed.

That's the Earl of Limerick's view of the British situation, expressed on his recent visit to Canada.

But if he had applied the same criticism to Canada, he would have found plenty of Canadians to agree with him.

Political leaders in both countries proudly point out that the worldwide recession has not affected domestic living standards to the same extent that other industrialized countries have been affected.

If that's true, the reason is that other governments have acted to beat inflation before it hit them.

The British and Canadian governments have both preferred to ignore the reality of recession, to go on inflating their economies, and hope that something will happen to make everything turn out well in the end.

Some visitors to the United Kingdom may get the impression that the British have gone consumer-mad. With the value of the pound sending as rapidly, and wage rates rising even faster, the typical Briton is spending as if he expected his money to be called in.

If that's true, the signs of such a change are easy to see.

No lasting economic recovery is likely until a way is found—in both countries—to temper wage pumpkin, to stimulate savings, and to build a stronger industrial base for the future.

That means introducing workable incentives to expand the capacity of primary and secondary industries.

Britain is several steps ahead of Canada, down the primrose path of maximum consumption combined with industrial stagnation.

Let's not think that it couldn't happen here.

Air Show May be Smaller, But Residents Still Love It

TRENTON — Compared with previous air show extravaganzas here, Armed Forces Day at CFB Trenton on Saturday reflected the federal government's rigid cost-cutting policy with respect to defence spending in recent years.

Before the army, air force and navy were integrated, the RCAF air show at Trenton would attract upwards of 30,000 visitors.

Then, crowds from far and near flocked to the big base to watch, in particular, thrill demonstrations by the aerobatic team named the Golden Hawks later disbanded after gaining national and international fame.

On Saturday in perfect summer weather, with about 9,000 in attendance, the armed forces program featured a mini air show. Highlighting the flying display was a low-level flypast of a simulated midair refuelling demonstration of two CF-5 Freedom Fighters from a Boeing 707 tanker.

Many onlookers were startled by the roar of the Hercules jet-assisted takeoff when Air Transport Command's huge freighter virtually leaped off the runway into the sky, with help from powerful rockets attached to the aircraft's fuselage.

On the ground the pride of transport command, the big 707 Billinger, attracted most attention. Long lineups of people queued up throughout the afternoon for an opportunity to see the interior of the flying giant.

Also open for inspection, parked on the tarmac nearby, were the five other aircraft used by the air arm of the forces.

A number of static displays located in No. 10 Hangar provided the public with a first-hand look at the various aspects of armed forces work the personnel of CFB Trenton are engaged in.

Also on display were other aircraft used by the air arm of the Canadian armed forces and static exhibits in a nearby hangar.

Star of the Show

Pride of Air Transport Command, the giant Boeing 707 jet transport, attracted most attention at Saturday's Armed Forces Day show at CFB Trenton. Crowds lined up all afternoon to get a look inside the huge aircraft.

Milford Resident Wins For Top Quarter Horse

PICTON — Practically dismisses as a "pipe dream" in 1959, the 16th annual Prince Edward Spring Horse Show this weekend again was a success. Although attendance was down from last year, according to one spokesman, the number of entries remained almost the same as last spring.

There were 36 classes of events this year attracting keen competitors from within a wide radius of Picton. Co-sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club and the Prince Edward Agricultural Society, the proceeds from the three-day event go to community projects.

Friday and Saturday night shows were held indoors and among the entrants who won first place in the various classes were: Mrs. Ben Prinzen of Bloomfield for Arabian costume, Carol Kelechner of Belleville for English pleasure, Glen Dowbury of Madoc won first place in the Roadster pony class for the second consecutive year.

Sunday afternoon equestrian competition were held at the fairgrounds and included hunters and jumpers and western games. Among the winners Sunday afternoon were Blaine Way of Milford in the small pony chariot race competition, Christine Garrison of Napanee in the pole bending event, and Lois Keogh of Milford for the best registered quarter horse.

Pole Severed

ROSLIN — Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville are seeking the driver of a car which severed an unused telephone pole on the Chisholm Rd. about a half mile east of this village early Sunday.

A police spokesman said today the car struck the pole on the south side of the road and careened into the ditch. The driver had disappeared by the time police arrived at about 3 a.m., he said.

Under Pressure

Amelisburg volunteer fireman jumps into his boots and coat during the equipment race at the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Fire Association's annual Field Day on the weekend. The firemen's workout was held at the Delhi Athletic Field, Picton.

Quinte-area Firemen Gather for Field Day

PICTON — Fire departments from Stirling, Picton, Ameliasburg, Bateman, Thurlow, Frankford, Bloomfield and Tweed met Sunday afternoon at Delhi Athletic Field here for the fire department's annual field day. All members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Fire Association, the event is held yearly in the Hastings and Prince Edward region and involves competative events pertaining to proper fire fighting and rescue techniques.

Picton Fire Chief Leonard Tripp said the field day is basically just an "event where all the departments from within our area get together for a day of fun" amidst an array of fire hoses, ladders and fire hydrants. Many of the participants arrived from the various fire departments in vintage fire trucks, dating back to 1930.

Park Staff Preparing For Holiday Crowds

BRIGHTON — From the occupancy figures released this weekend Prestqile provincial park officials expect all 520 available campsites will be filled to capacity during the Canada Day holidays starting this coming Friday.

Over the weekend the park provided accommodations for 320 campers described as good for the month of June by park manager Gerald Cooks.

With children out of school for the summer holidays and families moving into the campsite area for longer periods the park management said it plans to initiate an ambitious interpretive nature oriented program free to all registered families. The undertaking with park attendants as guides includes hiking, fishing, canoe trips through the marsh along Brighton bay and films on a variety of outdoor subjects.

In two weeks the park's elaborate museum at the south end of the peninsula will be open to the public said Mr. Cooks.

Quinte Cuisine

If nothing else, five children make you a cookie expert. Rita Quinn, mother to Michelle, Joanne, Eddie, Elizabeth and Patti, attests to these Granola Cookies and says they're filling and healthy. Since she's the owner, with husband Frank, of the County Health Food store, she ought to know.

Granola Cookies

one cup sufflower oil
¾ cup honey
two eggs
one cup chopped pecans OR sunflower seeds one tsp vanilla
two cups whole wheat flour
½ tsp salt
2½ cups granola-type cereal

Mix oil, honey, eggs, nuts and vanilla. Sift in flour and salt. Stir in granola. Mix well and drop onto cookie sheet. Bake at 300 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. This recipe makes two to three dozen depending on the size you make them.

Putnam — Tracey

St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church was the setting for the May 24 ceremony uniting Patricia Mary Tracey and Frederick John Putnam in marriage.

Rev. Jack Granger and Rev. John Morrison performed the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Tracey of Plainfield and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Putnam of RR 4, Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white silk jersey gown with lace trimming the neck and cuffs. From the empire waist a gored skirt fell in a cathedral-length train. She wore a matching peteases crown that held a waist-length lace-trimmed veil, and carried a cascade of yellow roses.

The bride's sister Kathy Tracey was maid of honor in a yellow silk knit jersey gown featuring a flowered velvet embossed chiffon cape.

The bride's sister Joan Hannafin, her niece-in-law Janice Tracey, and Debbie Nesbit were bridesmaids in gowns identical to the maid of honor's.

The groom's niece Vicki Putnam was flowergirl in a yellow flowered velvet embossed chiffon gown with baby's breath in her hair, carrying a basket of white and yellow mums.

Jeffrey Hannafin, the bride's nephew was ringbearer.

Serving as the groom's best man was Brian Holgate, and as his ushers, Dale Tracey, Richard Putnam and Michael Browning.

A dinner and dance followed, in the Read Hall.

After a honeymoon trip to Lake Placid, New York, the newly-married couple have made their home at RR 1, Plainfield.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore a gown of white satin, with a lace-trimmed V-neck, long sleeves and a train. A crown headpiece with a long veil completed the ensemble, and the bride carried a cascade of red roses and white mums.

Faith Freedman was maid of honor in a blue floral dress with a V-neck and short puffed sleeves. She carried white daisies and blue carnations.

Sharon Mooers and Heather Fitzgerald were bridesmaids in matching pink floral gowns in a similar style to the maid of honor's. They carried white daisies and pink carnations.

Heather Hall was flower girl for the occasion.

Best man was Dennis Bason, and ushers were Richard Turton and Glenn Mooers.

Mr. and Mrs. Turton now live in Toronto.

Inside of Gown As Exquisite As Outside: Unique Fashions by Canadian Designer

SUMMERLAND, B.C. (CP) — The glamor and adoration which is the lot of the haute-couture world is far from a reality for miles from Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories.

For Tim Skyes, the two worlds are beginning to meet and he says it will mends together—from the days when his mother sewing clothes, moccasins and doing needwork in the Territories, through his school days in Edmonton and, later, at Sheridan College near Toronto, to his current work on his first major collection of about 40 garments for fall showings.

While on the journey, he met and married a professional model, Doreen Kohl, who was entranced with both Mr. Skyes and his work when, along with other Toronto models, she went to the Oakville College of Art to model some of the students' fashions.

She had modelled Dior gowns also had appeared for several years on the Wayne and Shuster TV show doing bit parts, acting, singing and dancing.

The two opened a boutique in Toronto, then got wanderlust and the yearning to go west. About a year ago, they came to Summerland, a quiet village 10 miles from Penticton in British Columbia's Okanagan valley because of people like writer George Ryga (Ecstasy of Rita Joe), sculptors and other artists.

They have turned this community into what Mr. Skyes says is a "high-energy area to live in—it keeps you creating."

Their modest old house looks like any other on the street where they live, but inside their furniture is stripped-down "old Ontario," with hanging Tiffany lamps covered in fabric by Mr. Skyes, who also made the curtains. The stone fireplace he is rebuilding came from an old monastery in Quebec.

To onto building. The floors are soft with rugs.

One room is used for dressmaking and on the dummy model is a gown which could almost be worn inside out.

The inside is finished exquisitely—Tim finishes everything that way," Doreen explains. She adds that there is no mystery in why a high-fashion model would leave the city for rural Summerland:

"There's a lot of tension in the cities, a lot of degrading things going on."

This feeling for the personal is dramatically expressed in Mr. Skyes's designing philosophy.

"People change when they put on clothes I've designed for them," he said. "It's how you put it together. You should move with yourself, not against it."

A major key to breaking a woman's fashion barrier is beautiful fabrics, Mr. Skyes adds. Good fabrics are more "creative and exciting and look so much better."

Once his first collection is launched—and his house is remodelled—Mr. Skyes says he wants to write a book about the psychology of wearing clothes, designs and colors.

His basic hypothesis, he says, is that people in lower economic classes wear gloomy-looking clothes while richer people wear bright, striking colors showing their confidence.

Non-Smokers Won't Attend Legion

My wife and I, both World War Two veterans, and both members of a Legion, are barred in effect from attending our branch or any other branch for that matter. We are non-smokers and we are not permitted clean air space anywhere in the Legion building.

Our local branch has not even considered compromising so as to try to be fair to all members. So we have reluctantly barred ourselves from attending any functions in the building. We are not resigning from the Legion, but we will have to continue with any altruistic service on our own.

Our Legion has lost two interested and willing-to-be-active members, because it permits smokers to pollute every inch of the facilities available to members, and because it does not consider the rights of the nonsmokers to clean air.

Fernand J. Judd, Midland, Ontario.

In Legion Magazine, January 1975.

Dear Doris: I am sending you the poem "Pussy Willow" which I saw asked for.

Now I have a request of my own to make about another poem in which reference to spring is made.

It describes the return of spring when trees are beginning to leaf and ends "When all the world stood in a mist of green and nothing perfect". I believe it was included in the literature course in a grade seven, eight or nine level in Saskatchewan during the 1930's.

Always Find You Interesting.

Dear Always: And I always find my readers interesting — so it's mutual! Those 50-year-old poems seem to pop up surprisingly often, so perhaps there will be somebody reading in about the one which is nagging at your memory. I hope so.

Dear Doris: Just what does a home economics course consist of? Would it be necessary for a mature student to have a grade 12 standing in order to enter? Is it possible to take the course at evening classes?

I think I am intelligent enough to further my education and would like to study home economics, then branch into social work. Do you think this is a reasonable combination?

Pat.

Dear Pat: In "Home Ec" you learn basic facts about food, how to cook, to manage a home, to set a fine table; to sew and to decorate a home; with a considerable amount of household engineering thrown in. Courses vary.

For university you'll need at least grade 12, and there are ways of catching up on what you lack, in evening classes. The professional course will be a full-time day course. Write The Guidance Centre, 1,000 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ontario, for the occupational monograph on Home Economist, enclosing 50 cents.

Social work? A completely different kettle of fish. Here you study people, not food. If you enjoy people but also like cooking, people could be your hobby and Home Ec your vocation. Or the other way around.

(Don't just muddle along. A trained social worker understands human behavior and can help.)

Important Genetic Discovery 'Accidental', Says Scientist

OTTAWA (CP) — Nastism, a lack of money and an interest in science helped lead a young German girl to discover nearly 40 years ago that chemicals can change genes, the parts of cells that control heredity.

Without Dr. Charlotte Auerbach's work scientists might not have discovered such things as the links between cigarette smoking and cancer and between thalidomide and birth defects.

Recognition of the importance of her work has only come recently and she is a little flustered by all the attention.

"What's so interesting about me?" the short, plump geneticist asked newspaper reporters surrounding her at an international genetic conference in Ottawa.

Several geneticists at the meeting said privately that Dr. Auerbach's work should have brought her a Nobel Prize. There was a movement among some at the conference to call the measure of genetic damage caused by chemicals an "Auerbach", but no action was taken.

Dr. Auerbach fled from Germany to England in 1933. She left behind a doctoral thesis she had begun in developmental physiology.

Cambridge University was the only university in England offering a PhD in her study, but the course was too long and expensive for Dr. Auerbach.

Through friends she was referred in 1934 to University of Edinburgh, where she became interested in genetics. She has been a faculty member there for 19 years and now is a professor emeritus.

A fellow student, R. A. Robson, told her he had noticed that people exposed to mustard gas got burns that looked like X-ray burns and healed as slowly.

Working with fruit flies, Dr. Auerbach was able to prove that mustard gas changed genes just as X-rays did. This opened up a whole new field of scientific concern.

"It was all by accident," she said in her still-heavy German accent. "I'm very happy that the field has been so good to me."

Among her honors Dr. Auerbach has been made a Fellow of the Royal Society and a Foreign Associate of the U.S. National Academy of Science.

Fine China Exchange Finds Missing Dishes

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — Frustration at being unable to replace broken pieces of a 20-year-old fine English china set led to a plan to help others facing the same seemingly futile search.

Joan Reid figured that people missing china pieces didn't want to rummage through second-hand stores and garage sales looking for discontinued items, so she established a china registry. For a charge of $1, she'll do the searching and attempt to match buyers and sellers who want complete sets of discontinued dishes.

She got the idea when she found she couldn't replace pieces of her own set. After a futile search, she offered the item for sale and it was immediately bought. Mrs. Reid figured the buyer was picking up pieces to match the missing items in her own set.

So she set up the registry, operating out of her own home. She hopes to extend the service throughout the province.

"It's not just old or valuable china that I'd like to register for them, but any kind," said Mrs. Reid. "The open stock ironstones that young people are buying today will probably be unavailable in the same pattern five years from now."

She thinks registering patterns is a good idea, even if you have a complete set.

"It's like a store where people can shop—without actually having a store. The information is exchanged over the telephone, with the buyers and sellers responsible themselves for the exchange of merchandise."

If the china registry is successful, Mrs. Reid hopes to establish one for silver.

"It's a fun operation, really," she said. "I like looking for things. I like helping people, and there's that element of the hunt."

CP News Roundup

Big Need For Blood Is Seen

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto surgeon has called for a large increase in blood donations and helicopter ambulances are more necessary to save the lives of injured persons who go into shock because of heavy blood loss.

Such patients require immediate replacement of blood in a medical centre equipped to handle cases of shock, Dr. Glen Taylor of Mt. Sinai Hospital said Friday.

He was speaking at a 13-delegate symposium on shock held during the World Congress for Microcirculation meeting at the University of Toronto medical science building.

In past, doctors have often replaced fluid lost by heavy bleeding with a saline solution. But this can cause further damage, he said, because the fluid often leaks into surrounding tissue due to unexpanded changes in blood vessel linings at the time of injury.

Patients heading for down town Toronto hospitals could be flown by helicopter landing pad on the roof of the Hospital for Sick Children, he said. But increases in the number of blood donors and helicopters would be necessary to increase the survival rate.

Release Asked

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto lawyer Harry Gnyrky says in lawyers not last week to draft a statement asking for the release of abortionist Dr. Henry Morgentaler from imprisonment in a Quebec jail.

Saturday, he told a rally in support of Dr. Morgentaler, whose acquittal by a Superior Court of Quebec jury was later appealed and overturned, that the lawyers hope to reach every lawyer in Canada by distributing it in chain-letter fashion.

Plane Crashes

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Two Wasaga Beach, Ont., men are in critical condition in hospital following the crash of their single-engined plane Sunday near a glider strip about 20 miles north of here.

George Willie Mueller, 58, in Hamilton General Hospital, and John Lorne Fennesty, 43, in Guelph General Hospital, both suffered multiple injuries.

Federal transport department officials were to start an investigation today.

Dream of Love

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain's suburban housewives dream of having illicit love affairs, says a book published here.

The housewives enjoy the idea of becoming involved in Lady Chatterley-type situations, but are frightened to turn their fantasy into reality because of the dangers to family life.

The book, Voices From the Middle Class, by journalist Janet Deverson and psychologist Katharine Lindsay, bases its findings on a survey of couples living in two London suburbs.

Fewer Layoffs

DETROIT (AP) — Even though one of every five United States auto workers remains on layoff this week, the industry's jobless toll will be lower today than any time this year.

Industry furloughs will make idle more than 154,000 blue-collar workers from a total industry workforce of 712,000, down from 159,232 last week. All assembly plants except one are scheduled to operate.

Native Inn Opens

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — The Abenaki Motel, the first such venture to be owned and operated by native people in Eastern Canada, was officially opened Saturday with the participation of federal, provincial and Indian representatives and other dignaries. The motel cost $1.5 million in federal loans and grants from the department of regional economic expansion.

Optionalism Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — Language Commissioner Keith Spicer says the prerequisite for federal education grants to the provinces should be mandatory courses in English and French.

"I think we ought to hammer the daylights out of all the departments of education for failing out of their responsibilities," Mr. Spicer said on the CTV public affairs program Question Period, broadcast Sunday.

He said "a kind of rampant optionalism" allows 13-year-olds to choke on a smorgasbord of options when they're not ready to choose.

"They don't know how valuable math or French or English are going to be later on and they drop them easily. . . ."

Ships Collide

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The United States Coast Guard reported a 28-foot cabin cruiser and the ferry Ste. Claire collided Saturday on the Detroit River.

The cruiser capsized but the Ste. Claire lowered a lifeboat and picked up the four Canadians who were aboard the cruiser.

Money in Leg

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — Danish police entered a 25-year-old British grandmother, arrested on charges of smuggling hashish, to uncover her wooden leg—and found more than 810-100 inside. Nora Hills Brown of London was found guilty of smuggling 30 pounds of hashish into Denmark and sentenced Friday to 2½ years in prison.

Blatty to Wed

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — William Peter Blatty, author of The Exorcist, will marry a 26-year-old professional tennis player from New Orleans.

The family of Linda Tuero, who has been teaching tennis in Malibu, Calif., announced that the wedding will take place July 20 in Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Honor Saint

MONTREAL (CP) — St. Jean Baptiste celebrations honoring the patron saint of Quebec province were off to a peaceful start this weekend and attracted a total of 500,000 people, a police spokesman said.

Lisa Payette, organizing committee president, said the celebrations were a bigger success than had been expected with people from all over the centre participating atop Mount Royal.

Karpov Wins

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union won the Vidmar Memorial tournament Saturday in his first competition since succeeding Bobby Fischer as world chess champion, and declared he is willing to meet the American in the "match of a lifetime". Karpov, 24, finished with 11 points out of a possible 15, one ahead of his nearest rival.

Big Raises

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Textile, steel, insurance and commercial workers in Argentina announced new salary increases Saturday that in some cases amount to 140 per cent. At the same time the government allowed businesses to raise their prices for most products by more than 100 per cent. One newspaper said that except for 37 controlled food items, the cost of living will have risen 100 per cent in less than a month. Argentina's annual inflation rate is 80 per cent.

Going Blind

PARIS (AP) — Existentialist author Jean Paul Sartre says he is nearly blind and his career as writer is over, but he plans to direct a number of television programs.

Because of his blindness, Sartre has abandoned plans to complete the fourth volume of an epic work on the mid-century French writer and poet, Gustave Flaubert.

Civil Servants Challenge Law on Political Activity

TORONTO (CP) — A test case of the political rights of Ontario's 62,000 civil servants could come to court next fall during the next provincial election, says Allan Millard, legislative officer of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO).

The CSAO, representing about one-third of public servants, is going to bat for Brian Charlton, NDP candidate in Hamilton Mountain riding, who threatened with loss of his job as a revenue assessor if he does not stop political activities.

At a pre-dismissal hearing May 8 the CSAO challenged the government's right to fire Mr. Charlton and the likely divisional court date is sometime in September, Mr. Millard says.

Mr. Charlton is still on the job but has been refused a leave of absence when the campaign officially starts.

Others with political ambitions not exposed to the glare of publicity—Mr. Charlton's case was raised in the legislature—do not expect to run into the same problem.

Gillian Sandeman, NDP candidate in Peterborough and a probation officer, has been granted leave of absence.

Catharine Chariton, contender for the Conservative nomination Wednesday in the Toronto riding of Armourdale, says she will not quit her job as executive assistant to Dr. George Bell, general manager of administration the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs, if she gets the nomination.

North York Mayor Mel Lastman and lawyer John Freeman also are seeking the nomination.

Miss Charlton, no relation to the Hamilton assessor, says her job is not one of the "designated categories" under the Public Service Act imposes tighter restrictions.

Mr. Millard says he has been unable to sort out how many of the thousands of civil servants fall into the act's "designated categories" which he says appear totally arbitrary.

Some prohibitions apply to Crown employees, others to public servants, he said. Some are prohibited from active canvassing for a candidate, soliciting for funds or taking an active part in a political party only at election time, but others are prohibited from federal or provincial political involvement year-round.

Mr. Millard said the CSAO has advised its members that most could display lawn signs, join a party "as long as they're not very active," contribute money or act as a scrutineer.

"But we're also telling our members to be careful because these things have never been tested in court."

The Brian Charlton case, the first legal test, will be based in part on the contention the legislature did not have the authority to pass the law which limits its political rights.

The challenge of the pre-dismissal hearing will also contend there was bias at the hearing because Mr. Charlton was given notice of firing before informing of the hearing date, and that he was not given adequate time to prepare his case.

Morgentaler Enraged, Saddened, by Incident

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Henry Morgentaler says he has felt "humiliation, impotent rage, a sadness and often repeated surprise at the inhumanity of man to man" during his imprisonment for performing an abortion.

In the letter to a CTV journalist, he describes his experiences the night of June 15 when he was taken from his cell at the Waterloo, Que., rehabilitation centre, stripped and put in one of the small cells called "the hole" by prisoners.

The letter was written Saturday and broadcast by CTV Sunday night. A text of the letter was available prior to the broadcast.

Dr. Morgentaler says he was lying on his cell bed writing in his diary with his small night lamp on, which regulations permitted. Jean-Yves Desrochers, the jail's deputy director, "suddenly appeared out of nowhere" and told him to undress and get inside the bed-covers.

There was an exchange of words in which the doctor told Mr. Desrochers to "get off my back." Then "about eight guards" were called in.

"To my great astonishment and horror . . . Desrochers curtly orders: 'Put him in the hole. I didn't even know a hole existed here. Even Jerome Choquette, Quebec Justice minister, denied its existence."

Later "a feeling of oppression in my chest makes its appearance . . . spreads, grows and radiates into my left arm. Same symptoms I had three weeks ago . . .

"If only I had a nitro-glycerine tablet with me. I panic. I might die with heart attack right here with nobody around."

He says he knocked on the door and shouted to get a guard's attention.

"No response. My stomach gets upset. I start retching and can't stop."

A guard arrived and Dr. Morgentaler told him he thought he was having a heart attack. The guard left saying he would see what could be done.

"I am sure that I am going to die here, alone," Dr. Morgentaler says. Finally, "after an interminable wait, 50 minutes according to their calculations," he was helped to a car and taken to Granby Hospital, about 20 miles away, where he received treatment.

Milk.
You need it every day...
not just from time to time.

No other food rivals milk as a balanced, and nearly complete, source of the nutrients needed for human health. At all ages of life.

Nature's most nearly perfect food.

Nutritionally speaking, milk is in a class by itself. Read these facts:

• Milk provides most of the nutrients you need for health than any other everyday food.
• These nutrients are present in proportions properly balanced to the body's need of them.
• Milk is an excellent source of the type of protein which the human body utilizes most efficiently.
• Milk is an excellent, and readily available, source of calcium. And the need for calcium is now known to be a lifelong one, which does not cease when growth is attained.
• Milk supplies significant amounts (in fact, it is classed as an "excellent source") of Vitamin A and Riboflavin (a B Vitamin). Vitamin D is also normally added in Ontario.
• And lastly, it delivers more nutrient value per penny of cost than any other food you buy!

Can a food this good be just for children? No, it can't. That's the point of this message; nobody ever outgrows the need for milk's nutrition. Every day.

A message that's particularly important for women to hear.

You know the value of milk, all right. That's why you work so hard making sure that your children are healthy and strong.

But in spite of your efforts, someone in your family isn't drinking enough milk. Who is that someone? You.

In your concern for your family's nutritional good, you have probably not paid enough attention to your own. (This isn't conjecture, it's established fact: the worst-fed members of the general Canadian population are women.)

That is why it is important for you to realize that milk is as necessary to your health as to your children's.

And why you need to drink it the same way they do. In good big glasses full...and every day.

Fortunately, it is an easy thing to do.

Just pour it—and drink it.
Takes 3 minutes or less.

If you're a sipper, it could take a little longer. If you're a gulper, a little less.

But the point is, milk is truly one of the great convenience foods of our age. Nothing to mix, cook, add. Nature did the work, you get the benefits.

You needn't change your eating patterns, either. Milk will fit in, wherever you want to include it.

A glass of milk every morning can make a sketchy breakfast much more adequate nutritionally—and a good breakfast even better.

Changing your midmorning coffee break into a milk break is one of the easiest, and easiest, nutritional favours you can do for yourself.

Or just pour yourself a glass when you're pouring them out for your kids, and drink it with them.

Get a good thing going again—every day.

Good things don't come much better than milk. That's for sure.

But over and above its nutritional benefits, milk is a good thing in other ways, too.

In today's world, it is reassuring to know that milk is still...well, milk. One of the best foods Nature makes.

And now it's time that you and milk got together again, every day.

Because you haven't outgrown it. And you never will.

Meagher and Reid Combine to Lead Macs

By TOM GAVEY

The Kitchener Evergreens must be wondering what they did to make the Belleville McDonalds mad at them.

At least, that's the way it seemed on Sunday when in a single Ontario Baseball League game at Alemite Park.

Earlier in the weekend the Macs lost a couple of games to the London Dukes 2-1 and 6-2, but that was Saturday night, and Sunday the Macs looked like a different team.

In the Sunday game the McDonalds scored five runs, the most they have totalled in a single game so far this season, to hand the Evergreens their 11th loss of the season 5-0.

In other weekend results, on Sunday night, Oshawa defeated London 6-5, St. Catharines swept a doubleheader from Woodstock, 2-1 and 7-1, while Toronto defeated Burlington 7-1.

In Saturday's play Burlington defeated Newmarket 3-0 in the first half of a doubleheader while Newmarket won the second game 1-0. Also on Saturday Oshawa downed Hamilton 3-2 and Toronto beat Kitchener 7-4.

Larry Mavety decided to take things into his own hand in the fourth inning when he slammed a homer over the 250 foot fence off Kitchener starter Keith Wagler. It was Mavety's third homer of the year and got the Macs going offensively.

The sixth inning provided more runs for the home team when four scored on singles by Carl Beauchamp, Mavety, Paul Goodfellow, Wayne McTaggart and a double from Terry Meagher. Meagher's double brought in two runs and gave him four RBI's over the weekend.

Scott Reid took the win for the Macs, giving up just four Kitchener hits and walking only one. Reid struck out five batters and never lost control of the game.

Wagler was the loser. He gave up nine hits, but he walks and struck out five McDonald batters.

Other hitters for the Belleville were Jim Clement, McTaggart with two, and Steve Ling, all with singles.

On Saturday night things didn't go quite so well for the Macs, as the Dukes defeated them 3-1 in the first game.

London took an early lead on starter Bob Ethier, scoring once in the third and twice in the fifth.

The Macs were not mute at bat, almost making a comeback in the bottom of the seventh when Terry Meagher's clutch single brought in Paul Goodfellow who had previously doubled. The Macs promised to load the bases, but couldn't capitalize as Mervin Dominus, who had come in to pitch for the Macs, in the bottom of the seventh, hit a single to left field.

Ethier took the loss for Belleville, giving up six Duke hits before being relieved by Scott Reid.

Dominus was the winner, although he did get into trouble in the later innings, he only gave up three McDonald hits during his five innings pitching.

Meagher had the best night at the plate for the Macs with a triple and a single, while Ling singled, Goodfellow doubled and Jim Clement singled.

The second game of the Saturday doubleheader saw the Macs on the short side of a 2-1 score.

Ted Waite started for Belleville and was lucked for two runs early in the game when London came up with a couple of doubles in the third.

London's catcher, Jim Brown lined a 250-foot homer in the fifth inning to help the Dukes along. It was the third homer of the OFL season in the Alemite. The Dukes scored two more in the fifth to give themselves a 5-0 lead.

In the seventh London scored again on pitcher Dick Haines single, an error and a wild pitch.

The Macs rallied in the bottom of the seventh for two runs, with Terry Meagher striking in his second RBI of the evening on a single, bringing in Dale Duval. Duval had already knocked in Glen Carleton on a pinch hit double. The last minute hitting by the Macs wasn't enough though as Haines settled down to retire the side and take the win.

The starter, Waite, took the loss for Belleville, fireman Scott Reid came in in the seventh, giving up no runs and one hit.

The next Macs game will be July 1 in Toronto, while the next home game will be July 3rd in a doubleheader against Canadian Champion Oshawa Tony's.

TERRY MEAGHER

Szeryk, in relief of starter Don Dominus, pitched London out of trouble.

Ethier took the loss for Belleville, giving up six Duke hits before being relieved by Scott Reid.

Dominus was the winner, although he did get into trouble in the later innings, he only gave up three McDonald hits during his five innings pitching.

Meagher had the best night at the plate for the Macs with a triple and a single, while Ling singled, Goodfellow doubled and Jim Clement singled.

Expos in Split with Philadelphia

Tap, Tap, Tap — Then Start Swinging

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jug-bearer Rod Gilbreath was swinging his bat, it didn't make him the villain. That role belonged, in a roundabout way, to Willie Montanez, using his glove.

Gilbreath, a pinch hitter for Atlanta Braves, with two outs in the eighth inning Sunday ruined San Francisco Giant rookie Pete Falcone's bid for a no-hitter. But it was Montanez' astro with his glove at first base which ruined Falcone's concentration. And that's what ruined the no-hitter.

So with that out of the way, the Giants settled down to beat the Braves 5-2 and salvage a split of their National League baseball doubleheader Sunday. Atlanta took the opener 8-2 on the strength of a seven-run first inning.

In other National League action Sunday, Philadelphia Phillies bounced back to beat Montreal in their nightcap 4-3 after the Expos had taken the opener 4-0, St. Louis Cardinals defeated Chicago Cubs 7-2, Pittsburgh Pirates beat New York Mets 3-0, Los Angeles Dodgers edged San Diego Padres 3-2 and Houston Astros beat Cincinnati Reds 8-4.

Saturday, the Expos beat Philadelphia 5-1, Pittsburgh defeated New York 7-3, San Francisco edged Atlanta 4-3, Chicago beat St. Louis 6-1, the Dodgers edged San Diego 4-3 and Cincinnati beat Houston 7-6.

Falcone, a 21-year-old left-hander, had just walked Vic Correll and was facing Gilbreath when the fracas brupted.

Montanez has a habit of tapping opposing players on their behinds with his glove. Most players don't seem to mind. Correll did.

"I was tapping the runner like I always do," said Montanez. "He turned around and he told me if I did it again he would drop me. I did it again."

Vic didn't deck Willie, but he tried. He threw a punch. Suddenly, both benches were empty-ing. It took about 10 minutes to restore order, with Montanez out of the game. Then Falcone returned to work and Gilbreath hit his first pitch into center field for a single.

"I feel sore the fight caused Falcone to lose his concentration," Gilbreath said. Falcone agreed: "It might have . . . yeah, it probably did."

Darrell Thomas singled to drive in the first of two runs in the third inning and singled for two more in the fourth in the nightcap. Marty Perez singled to start and finish the Braves' big inning in the opener, with Biff Pocoroba drilling a two-run single in the middle of it.

Steve Rogers pitched and balked in its opening game victory. He allowed just seven hits, singled and scored one run, then drove in two with a bases-loaded single.

In the nightcap, Greg Lusinski led-off the ninth with his 16th homer for the Phils to tie it, then Tommy Hutton singled and Tony Taylor doubled to win it.

Figueroa Shades Jenkins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A Sunday afternoon matchup with veteran Ferguson Jenkins turned out to be just as tough for Pat Figueroa as he figured it would be.

"When I found out last night that Fergie Jenkins would be pitching for Texas, I told my wife that it would be a touch game," said the California right-hander.

Not that Jenkins pitched a bad game, losing a nine-hit shutout on an unearned California run.

But Figueroa was seven hits and one run better than his veteran opponent, and that meant a 1-0 Angels triumph over the Rangers in an American League baseball game.

In Sunday's other American League games, Oakland swept a doubleheader from Kansas City Royals 7-6 and 8-1, Baltimore Orioles beat Boston Red Sox 3-0 then dropped the nightcap 5-1, Chicago White Sox swept Minnesota Twins 6-5 and 9-2, New York Yankees trimmed Detroit Tigers 9-3, and Cleveland Indians edged Milwaukee Brewers 3-2.

On Saturday Frank Tanana struck out 17 batters as he pitched California to a 4-2 win over Texas in the first game of a doubleheader. The Rangers were 8-5 winners in the nightcap.

In other Saturday games, Baltimore blanked Boston 3-0, Minnesota topped Chicago 8-3, New York dropped Detroit 4-1, Kansas City stopped Oakland 4-1 and Milwaukee outslugged Cleveland 11-9.
